$6.8 Million Restored To University

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska was the biggest winner Wednesday as the Legislature overrode Gov. J. James Exon's vetoes of $11 million in state tax appropriations.

Some $19 million in gubernatorial veto reductions and rejections were sustained.

When the smoke had cleared from the rapid-fire legislative budget decisions, Exon's proposed 1977 decrease in state income tax rates had been wiped out.

But, if Exon administration revenue projections hold up, the new state tax spending total of $451 million will probably not trigger any hike in tax rates.

(More conservative legislative fiscal staff revenue projections indicate that a boost in the state sales tax rate from 2.5% to 3% may be required to fund the new budget in 1977.)

NU Wins Key Vote

In its major veto override decision, the Legislature restored $6.8 million in tax support for the university.

That will give NU a 23% budget hike for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The $94.4 million tax support total is some $17½ million higher than its current appropriation.

NU President D. B. Varner immediately issued a statement praising the Legislature for its "courageous action" which, he said, "will permit (the university) to move into a more favorable position relative to similar universities in our region."

Also Restored

The 32-16 vote overriding Exon's veto reductions in LB690, the higher education budget bill, also restored $1 million in funding cut from state aid to technical community colleges and $600,000 sliced from the budgets of the four state colleges.

Other successful veto overrides restored:

—$1.5 million for welfare assistance for the temporarily disabled; contained in LB454A on a vote of 30-18.

—$1 million for expanded special education services, particularly evaluation and diagnosis of children; contained in LB761A on a 31-17 vote.

—about $62,000 to transfer benefits for state employes moved to mental health regions or community centers; contained in LB794A on a 34-6 vote.

Thirty votes were required to override the governor's vetoes.

Long Debate Ends

The university victory ended a session-long budget battle with Exon, whose original tax support recommendation was more than $10 million below the legislative figure. The governor accepted $3.5 million of that increase in his veto actions.

At one point during the budget dispute, Varner offered his resignation to the Board of Regents if it believed he was pressing his case harder than regents wished. They responded with a vote of confidence.

NU had originally asked for more than $100 million for fiscal 1976-77, but later accepted the legislative recommendations which emerged from the Appropriations Committee.

In a final plea to senators Wednesday, Varner wrote that the governor's vetoes could result in program reductions at the Medical Center and the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The Lincoln campus would have less than $100,000 in new instructional funds to meet inflationary pressures and other costs after salary increases and benefits, he said.

Sports Threatened

And the new Sports Center in Lincoln might need to be closed at mid-year (depending on utility costs and weather) if Exon's vetoes were sustained, Varner warned.

The governor had cut $3 million each from the legislative figures for the Lincoln campus and the Medical Center, and some $700,000 from the UNO budget.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly offered the motion to override the veto, arguing that there appears to be "no way" NU can meet its needs with Exon's revised budget figure of $87.6 million.

Close To Maximum

Total spending after Wednesday's override decisions was pegged at $450.9 million, precariously close to the administration's estimate of $451.5 million in maximum spending at current tax rates.

In final reading action, the Legislature added about $400,000 to its total figure in two bills which are still subject to gubernatorial veto.

Exon has said that the personal income tax rate of 15% could have been reduced to 13% in 1977 if lawmakers had sustained all his vetoes.

(The more conservative revenue estimates of the legislative fiscal office had suggested that no tax decrease would have been possible even at the governor's revised spending figures.)

On the key vote to override the vetoes in LB690, all Lancaster County senators voted with Warner. Omaha's delegation split 8-3.

Here is the vote:

For: Anderson, Barnett, Bereuter, Burbach, Carsten, Chambers, Cope, Fitzgerald, Fowler, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Johnson, Kime, Koch, Kremer, F. Lewis, R. Lewis, Luedtke, Marsh, Mills, Moylan, Nichol, Rumery, Savage, Schmit, Simpson, Stoney, Stull, Swigart, Syas, Warner, Wiltse.

Unicam Falls 2 Votes Short Of Upsetting School Aid Veto

Legislature stories on Pages 5, 6

In what has become an annual photo finish, the Unicameral Wednesday came within two votes of overriding Gov. J. James Exon's veto of a $15 million increase in state school aid.

Needing 30 votes, Sen. Frank Lewis' motion sagged on a 28-20 vote.

At one point, he was within a single vote of victory — but the 29-19 count which lighted up on the Legislature's electric scoreboard changed in a last ditch futile roll call bid for the 30th vote.

The action also sustained another $900,000 in veto reductions contained in LB691, the state agency operational budget bill.

Those cuts had been imposed on the legislative budget totals for 13 agencies.

In other budget veto action, senators twice refused to override the governor's rejection of funding for a $6.7 million health, physical education and recreation building at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Sen. Glenn Goodrich's first effort fell on a 26-16 score. A later attempt lost ground on a 25-20 vote.

Among other gubernatorial vetoes sustained by the Legislature:

— the $25,000 appropriation for preliminary planning for a cardiovascular treatment, research and education center at the NU Medical Center in Omaha.

— authorization for NU to spend an additional $773,000 in unanticipated cash funds generated on the Lincoln campus prior to July 1.

— some $500,000 in replacement money for federal funds lost by the Medical Center this fiscal year.

— a $450,000 appropriation to purchase a dormitory from bondholders at Peru State College.

Exon's successful veto reductions in LB691 will leave state school aid at its current $55 million level in fiscal 1976-77.

Lewis argued that "the real tax crunch" in Nebraska is on property, while the governor concentrates on state sales and income tax rates.

The additional $15 million in state assistance from sales and income tax revenue would have reduced the pressure on local property taxes, he noted.

Goodrich argued that the health building contained in LB1007 is needed now to replace old and deteriorating facilities at UNO.

The Legislature has approved the project in the past, but its construction was stopped by a previous Exon veto.

LB1007, passed last week on a 34-11 vote, would have appropriated $2 million in first-year construction funds.

The cardiovascular center veto in LB984 was sustained on a 24-24 vote.

The motion to override the NU deficiency fund vetoes in LB972 fell on a 25-24 count. And the Peru appropriation, contained in LB1011, failed on a 26-21 vote.

Here is the vote to override the school aid veto:

For: Barnett, Bereuter, Burbach, Carsten, Cavanaugh, Cope, Dickinson, Fitzgerald, Fowler, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Johnson, Keyes, Koch, Kremer, F. Lewis, Luedtke, Marsh, Nichol, Rasmussen, Rumery, Savage, Schmit, Simpson, Stoney, Stull, Warner, Wiltse.

Toy-Armed Youth Surrounded By Miami Police SWAT Team

MIAMI (AP) — A 14-year-old boy wielding a toy pistol in imitation of a television cop show nearly triggered a real-life tragedy as edgy members of a police SWAT team rushed to his apartment building in response to a call from neighbors.

Officers said Wednesday that Johnny Barcena was re-enacting antics he had seen on the TV series "Starsky and Hutch" when he pointed the realistic-looking gun at a group of elderly neighbors Tuesday and said: "Don't move. This is the police."

Johnny, described by his mother as having a learning disability, then retreated to his apartment, and neighbors called police.

All nine members of Miami's Special Weapons and Tactics Squad and about a dozen other officers promptly arrived and surrounded the building in what became a two-hour standoff. They were especially nervous because three area policemen were killed in an incident less than a week ago,

One SWAT member worked himself into position to fire into the window of the second-floor apartment where the gunman was believed to be lurking. A terrified woman was brought down by ladder from a nearby apartment. Police set up a roadblock around the area.

The situation was further complicated when Johnny's mother — who was away from home — heard radio reports about a search for a gunman in the building. Police said the mother, Josepha Cruz, telephoned the youth, saying, "Be careful, don't open the door or someone might do you harm."

Johnny obeyed his mother, refusing to answer a police knock on his door or respond to their calls from a bullhorn outside.

The crisis finally eased when the boy's stepfather, Jose Cruz, arrived, grabbed the bullhorn and explained the situation to him, police said. Johnny was questioned by authorities and released to undergo a mental examination, officials said.

"My God, this kid wouldn't harm anything," said Mrs. Cruz. She said neighbors apparently didn't recognize him because the family has lived in the neighborhood only a brief time and he usually was in school.

Mrs. Cruz said Johnny regularly watches "Starsky and Hutch," a show depicting the violent adventures of two young undercover policemen.

"We're very fortunate the stepfather came by," Lt. Michael Cosgrove said. "That saved us a lot of trouble."

Senate Unit OKs Reform Of Inspection

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Agriculture Committee Wednesday approved a sweeping overhaul of the nation's scandal-wracked grain inspection system calling for creation of a new federal inspection service at ports and major inland markets.

Backers of the bill led by Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Dick Clark, D-Iowa, conceded, however, that they probably will be forced to water down some of their proposed reforms when Senate and House versions of the measure are eventually compromised.

The legislation was drafted in the wake of inspection scandals which have produced more than 60 indictments at Gulf ports on charges involving bribery, misgrading and shortweighing. It would replace an existing system which puts all domestic and export grain inspection in the hands of private and state agencies operating under the supervision of the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Committee members agreed quickly on the first stage of the reform proposed by Humphrey — eliminating both private and state inspection agencies at ports in favor of inspection by Agriclture Department employes.

On a second stage, however, Humphrey won only a narrow 6-4 vote upholding his proposal to also require federal inspection at 25 major inland grain terminals.

Humphrey warned members including Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., who wanted to leave private and state agencies in business at inland terminals under tighter federal supervision, that investigations of wrongdoing are continuing and "there may possibly be some indictments" at inland markets.

Anyway, Humphrey noted, the House has already passed its own version of the grain reform bill calling for federal-state inspection at ports but continued private-state inspection at all major and minor inland markets. An eventual Senate-House conference will probably compromise on preserving state agencies at the major inland markets, Humphrey indicated.

Humphrey and Clark argued that the tougher Senate provisions should be maintained for the present to give senators a bargaining base for the final compromise with the House.

The Senate committee bill would preserve private and state agencies only for minor inland markets which handle about 15% of grain inspection.

The measure also would provide for federal supervision of weighing of grain for export. Other features include stiffer federal supervision of whatever private and state inspection agencies are left in business, and a requirement for federal registration of grain companies.

Hijackers Renege On Freeing Hostages

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Three hijackers holding 73 hostages aboard a Philippine Airlines jet reneged on an agreement Thursday to release a woman and her infant child, military sources said.

The hijackers "changed their minds and said they will release the mother and her child along with the others if and when they decided to release all the passengers," the sources said.

Asked about the condition of the hijackers, air force chief Brig. Gen. Sammuel Sarmiento said, "There seems to be no sign that they are wearing down."

Air force information officer Lt. Col. Pablo Gonzales said the hijackers — who seized the twin-engine BAC111 at a stop on a domestic flight 24 hours earlier — had been persuaded to release the two hostages.

But the hijackers changed their minds about the arguments of Luningning Pangandaman, Philippine ambassador to Saudi Arabia, and Rafael Yabut, one of five prisoners whose freedom was sought by the hijackers, according to the military sources.

They threatened to blow up the plane unless the prisoners were freed and $300,000 ransom was paid. Officials at first said the hijackers had demanded the release of six prisoners, but later said the hijackers only wanted five freed. The government refused the demands.

Pangandaman said he saw the hijackers had two .45-caliber pistols and two hand grenades.

Earlier, PAL executive vice president Rafael Ygoa said his company was prepared to pay the ransom if the military would allow it.

Gonzales said the 67 passengers and six crew members were calm and comfortable

Power Board Offers Manager Time Off

Roy Speece

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — The York County Public Power District Board of Directors Wednesday offered district manager Roy Speece a temporary leave of absence.

"There should be no inference that he resigned or was fired," board secretary John Nelson said. "The board is behind Roy 100% and we took this action in order to conserve his talents. We don't want him to over-do."

Nelson said the pressures on Speece from York and Fillmore County farmers who were hardest hit by the storm that knocked out power in south central Nebraska and fears for the safety of linemen "have been almost unbearable."

"With those problems on your back, it's difficult to get sleep at night," Nelson said.

Speece wanted time to discuss the offer with his family and will probably announce his decision Friday, Nelson said.

Officials of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) were in York Wednesday to discuss the emergency, Nelson said, and offered to find an interim manager if the board requested one.

In voting Speece authority last week to handle the emergency in any way he saw fit, the board recognized that pressures would mount from irrigators anxious to insure their crops this summer.

It appears those concerns came more quickly and vehemently than the board expected.

A group calling itself the Concerned REA Customers of York and Fillmore County has called an informational meeting at the York City Auditorium at [illegible] p.m. Friday.

Some of the members of that group were in [illegible] to discuss getting electricity for irrigation with REA officials.

Nelson said some members of the board will attend Friday's meeting.

Speece wanted time to discuss the offer with his family and will probably announce his decision Friday, Nelson said.

Officials of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) were in York Wednesday to discuss the emergency, Nelson said, and offered to find an interim manager if the board requested one.

In voting Speece authority last week to handle the emergency in any way he saw fit, the board recognized that pressures would mount from irrigators anxious to insure their crops this summer.

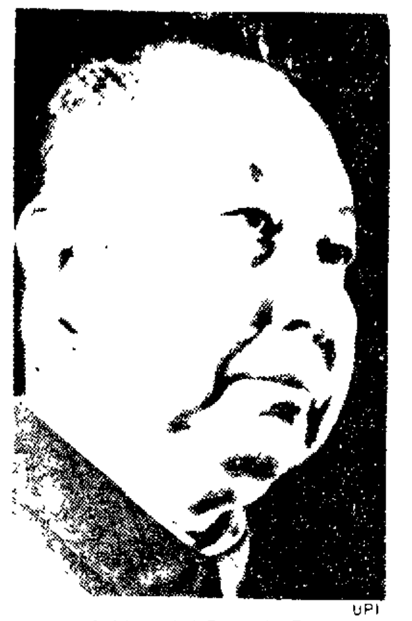
It appears those concerns came more quickly and vehemently than the board expected.

A group calling itself the Concerned REA Customers of York and Fillmore County has called an informational meeting at the York City Auditorium at 2 p.m. Friday.

Some of the members of that group were in Lincoln Monday to discuss getting electricity for irrigation with REA officials.

Nelson said some members of the board will attend Friday's meeting.

Hua Is Raised Up By Mao Who Casts Down Teng



UPI

HUA KUO-FENG

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung raised Hua Kuo-feng, unknown outside China two months ago, to the posts of premier and party first vice chairman Wednesday — making clear Hua is his personal choice to be the next leader of the People's Republic of China. At the same time, Mao cut down an old foe, Teng Hsiao-ping.

The 56-year-old Hua, a Mao protege from his own Hunan Province, steps into the premiership that the late Chou En-lai had hoped would go to Teng. Premier Chou died on Jan. 8, and Hua, then security chief, was named acting premier in mid-February. His latest promotions make him, in effect, No. 2 man in China.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Peking's Tien An Men Square, where supporters of Teng demonstrated and battled with militiamen on Monday, was filled Wednesday night with drums, music and people shouting slogans in celebration of Hua's promotion.

Teng, 72 and under official criticism as a "capitalist-roader" since Chou's death, was stripped of powerful positions as first vice premier, vice chairman of the party and chief of the army general staff.

Brief communiques of the party Politburo, distributed by Hsinhua news agency monitored here, made it plain that the ouster of Teng and the promotion of Hua were at the personal instigation of the 82-year-old Mao.

The party has only once before designated anyone a first vice-chairman. He was Lin Piao, the late defense minister who died in a plane crash in 1971 after, it was said, plotting to kill Mao and overthrow communism.

The leadership changes were a victory for the radical forces epitomized by Mao's wife Chiang Ching over the moderate realist side represented by Chou and Teng. The radicals believe that class struggle must continue to dominate life in China while the moderates favor setting aside such differences to make economic progress.

Whether Hua survives or not may well depend on how successfully he can bring about compromises between these two forces. The key may rest in the hands of the 2.5 million-man armed forces.

Though the communiques did not say so in so many words, it was clear that the action — unexpectedly swift and dramatic — resulted from the pro-Teng demonstrations in Tien An Men Square involving up to 100,000 persons. The crowds set off fires that destroyed five vehicles and damaged a military barracks. A score of people described as Maoist resisters were injured.

This turmoil — the first on such a scale since the turbulent days of the cultural revolution of 1966-69 — apparently forced Mao to act. Though there have been recurrent reports that he is feeble and only a figurehead in Chinese politics, the founder of the People's Republic appears to have acted with force and decisiveness.

A homely, rangy man with an easy sense of humor, China's new premier is expected to continue the Chou-Mao policy of opposition to the Soviet Union and rapprochement with the United States and the West in international affairs.

Domestically, his job will be to carry out the Chou blueprint for industrialization while maintaining radical reforms in education, science and other areas which Teng is said to have rejected.

His expertise as an agriculturist — he delivered the keynote speech at an important national conference on agriculture and made his mark by carrying out successful irrigation projects in Hunan — will help him in a thankless and difficult job.

George Bush, director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and former envoy to China, said in Washington he believes U.S.-China relations "will not be adversely affected" by the leadership changes. He said the elevation of Hua "should have a stabilizing influence" on the country.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the changes without comment.

Ford Backs Off

Washington — After six months of study by the White House and intense lobbying by broadcasters, the Ford administration has decided against recommending legislation aimed at permitting cable television to compete against over-the-air broadcasters. The decision not to take on the politically powerful broadcast industry in an election year was reached by the White House after a lengthy series of meetings with many of those who would be affected by changes in the present law.

Where's The Will?

San Francisco — There appears to be a growing feeling among knowledgable associates of Howard Hughes that the eccentric billionaire left no will to guide the disposal of his great estate. A source that asked not to be identified said that executives of Summa Corp. seem to be making plans to try to pay inheritance taxes out of corporate earnings if they can get payment deferred.

Syrian Blockade Maintains Truce

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI) — Syria has imposed a blockade along Lebanon's coast to keep military supplies from reaching rebel Moslem leftists who oppose the Syrian peace efforts, political sources said Wednesday.

The sources said the blockade is one of the main reasons the current 10-day truce is holding despite isolated Christian-Moslem clashes.

Both Christian and Moslem sides have felt the blockade. There were bread shortages in Moslem-controlled western Beirut and fuel shortages in the Christian-held eastern sector.

"With both sides short on supplies and the leftists particularly finding it difficult to import weapons, there seems to be a reluctance to launch new offensives," the sources said.

With the Moslem leftists opposing Syrian armed intervention and the United States having openly cautioned against it, Syria tightened its sea blockade to force Lebanon's battling factions to accept a settlement.

On Monday, the Syrian torpedo boats, enforcing the blockade, attacked and drove away a British container ship apparently bound for the northern port of Tripoli.

The Syrians made their first move to block supplies to the leftists when pro-Syrian Saiqa troops surrounded the Zahrani oil refinery at Sidon on south Lebanon Saturday.

Moslem leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt charged the Saiqa forces were really Syrian army troops in disguise and that they surrounded the sea terminal refinery to "prevent weapons and foodstuffs from reaching us."

Saiqa ranks were also reinforced in and around Beirut where they have clashed several times with leftists over the past several days.

On the political front, France joined the United States in sending a special envoy to help in negotiations toward a settlement.

French Middle East expert George Gorse is due to fly to Beirut Thursday to show "the French desire to make its contribution" towards Lebanon's peace. He will work with U.S. Ambassador L. Dean Brown in the international efforts to help mediate a settlement.

Both missions are expected to cooperate with and back Syria which, despite its currently frosty relations with the Moslem Lebanese left, still remains the only foreign power capable of exerting the muscle to achieve a truce and, once implemented, police it, diplomatic sources said.

Ford Vows To Veto Extra Aid To Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The continuing conflict between the Ford administration and Congress over U.S. policy in the Middle East flared anew Wednesday when Ford said he would veto a foreign aid bill if it contains extra funds for Israel.

At issue is an additional $550 million for Israel that the Senate included in a $5.6 billion foreign aid package. The funds for Israel are part of $772 million that the Senate added for the Middle East.

Ford said the extra funds "are not needed to meet the essential needs of the recipients."

In the case of Israel, he said, his fiscal 1976 and 1977 budget requests "provide sufficient levels of assistance to meet that nation's needs."

Ford said if he receives from Congress a bill that includes the additional funds, "I will be forced to exercise my veto."

The President's stand was written in a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert and released by the White House.

An effort is expected in the House to add the extra funds to the foreign aid bill. Senate supporters have said they are essential to support Israel's already strained economy.

A House-Senate conference committee has agreed on $2.2 billion for Israel for the fiscal 1976 year ending June 30, and the administration is asking another $1.785 billion for the new year beginning Oct. 1 under the revised fiscal calendar.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said that if Ford vetoes the foreign aid bill "I think we're on the brink of a major executive-congressional confrontation."

Brooke said he felt the conflict would have "only negative results for the United States and Israel" and he urged Congress to delay action on the bill until after the Eastern recess which starts the middle of next week.

Brooke, who was the senior Republican among the Senate conferees, said in a statement the delay would provide time to find a compromise.

Congressional leaders of both parties met with Ford at the White House Wednesday to discuss the issue.

Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Ford assured congressional leaders that "he was not going to let Israel suffer for lack of weapons at any time."

The aid bill conflict with the administration was the latest in a series of clashes over Middle East policy.

Only last week, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger managed to quiet congressional unrest over plans to sell C130 cargo planes to Egypt.

Congressional opponents of the sale were gaining support to block it until Kissinger provided firm assurances that no other arms sales to Egypt would be made this year.

Meanwhile, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Kissinger had told him there was no objection to the additional funds for Israel.

"The secretary of state informed me that he would not object to providing Israel with the funds that President Ford now wishes to deny," Humphrey said.

The Minnesota Democrat, who has been a key figure in negotiations between Congress and the administration over Middle East policy, said a Ford veto "could be interpreted by Israel's neighbors as a weakening of the American commitment to Israel's security."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., urged that Ford "give the most conscientious consideration to Israel's needs." Javits said in a statement that "it is well known that Israel's economic situation is very grave."

Top U.S. Scientist Warns Of Collapse Of Civilization

New York (UPI) — Western civilization could collapse if it fails to conserve dwindling energy resources and develop new sources of supply, a top scientist warned Wednesday.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, former head of the Atomic Energy Commission under three presidents, said a 20 to 30% cut in energy supplies could topple Western civilization.

Seaborg also cautioned against U.S. isolationism in reaction to tightened supplies of foreign fuel.

"The harsh facts are that we live in a highly interdependent world in which accomoodation grows increasingly important," he said.

"My travels over the world in the past years to more than 60 countries — including the People's Republic of China — have led me to believe that all nations need each other, that all have something to offer, and all could benefit by a greater exchange of human material resources of knowledge and goods."

Seaborg deplored the spendthrift depletion of natural resources and ecological problems caused by their rapid and ill-managed use.

Carter, Jackson, Udall Plunge Into Pennsylvania

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Carter, Henry M. Jackson and Morris K Udall — the candidate who woke up a loser — plunged without pause Wednesday into the campaign for Pennsylvania's presidential primary, a contest that could be their Democratic showdown.

There are other candidates waiting to test them later, and there is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, biding his time and looking for running room after the primary season is over.

But it is evident now that the Pennsylvania balloting on April 27 will sort things out among the current crop of primary contenders.

Carter won the Wisconsin presidential preference vote with 37% of the ballots, edging Udall, who held a premature victory celebration election night Early Wednesday, late-counted ballots turned things around.

Carter had gone to bed in Milwaukee talking as though he had been defeated, although he never conceded. He got up to tell his supporters: "We're No. 1," and to wave a newspaper with a banner headline saying he had been upset.

"And we won anyhow," the former Georgia governor said.

For Udall, it was a night of disappointment. "Oh, how sweet it is," the Arizona congressman had said when he was leading in the partial vote count and pronounced the winner in the projections of ABC and NBC. It would have been his first primary victory, in a state he had made a major target with campaign money and time. But the sweetness didn't last.

Nonetheless, Udall said Wednesday that he had stopped the Carter bandwagon with his 36% of the vote, just behind Carter.

"It was practically a dead heat in Wisconsin," he told United Auto Workers Union officials in Detroit. "If Carter had his way, his people would have wiped me out. But there are still 22 primaries to go.

"This election is going to be won or lost in the big industrial states, and Carter's record is not great in them, " he said. "The Carter landslide has been stopped.

Jackson won a commanding, 104-vote share of the Democratic delegates awarded in Tuesday's New York primary, and he said he would have more votes from nominally uncommitted delegates. Udall supporters captured 70 national convention seats, uncommitted entries won 65 and Carter had 35.

The New York system offered a test among delegates, listed with their candidate preferences. But there was no direct test of the presidential contenders since the three major entries had varying numbers of delegate entries.

Jackson said in an interview Wednesday that the New York outcome means a tough, three-way contest in Pennsylvania, which will have 178 Democratic convention votes. In addition, there is a presidential preference primary, matching the candidates themselves in Pennsylvania.

Jackson forecast victory. "I believe that we will carry Pennsylvania," the Washington senator said. He said his victory in New York, a state he called a symbol of political power and movement, will boost his standing in Pennsylvania.

Given the Tuesday verdicts, Jackson said, he, Carter and Udall will all be there. "I think it will be an all-out, three-way fight instead of what otherwise might have been one on one."

"Any time you win over 100 delegates in an election, it has definite political impact," Jackson said. His New York victory was short of the majority he had forecast, but Jackson pronounced himself more than satisfied. He said 10 of the uncommitted delegates already are on his side and forecast more to follow.

President Ford won the Wisconsin Republican primary, easily outdistancing challenger Ronald Reagan — and sweeping the state's 45 Republican nominating delelgates. Ford is entered in Pennsylvania, which will have 103 Republican delegate votes, but Reagan is not running again until the May 1 Texas primary, which now looms as his make or break test.

In addition, 151 uncommitted Republican delegates, considered likely to wind up with Ford, were chosen in New York. Reagan supporters ran for only 12 seats, and won three:

Ford said Wednesday that the Wisconsin victory gave him a big lift. He also said it "fully justified my faith in Henry Kissinger," the embattled secretary of state who has been under Reagan's campaign attack.

"As far as I'm concerned, my full support of Secretary Kissinger is fortified in Wisconsin," Ford said. "I think he is one of the greatest secretaries of state in the history of the United States."

Harris To Cease Active Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris has decided to withdraw from active campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, sources said Wednesday.

Harris will remain a declared candidate and will continue to seek the nomination at the Democratic National Convention in New York in July, the sources said.

But they said all of his active campaigning for votes in the remaining Democratic primary elections will cease.

UDALL . . . celebrates victory prematurely.

Computers Outfoxed

New York (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter's slender victory in the Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary outfoxed at least two computers — those at NBC and ABC which predicted victory for Morris Udall.

ABC projected the election for Udall at 8.27 p m CST Wednesday. NBC projected it for the Arizona congressman at 9 22 p m. The third network, CBS, held off, saying the race was to close to declare a winner At 1:45 a.m Thursday CBS declared Carter the winner

"Our data from key precincts early in the evening showed Udall with a clean-cut but small margin," said John Thompson of ABC. He said the miscalculation was the result of a large turnout of marginal voters, those who sometimes go to the polls and sometimes don t

ABC's research had shown this group would vote for Carter but there was no way of determining how many actually were voting, thus distorting the early computer projections of the final outcome, he said.

Richard Scammon, vote analyst for NBC, said the network's data indicated a close Udall win "But when it's that close, within a couple of points, there's that old margin of error," said Scammon

NBC switched to Carter at 1·55 a.m. and ABC changed its projection about 2 20 a m

Conservatives Make Trouble For Food Stamp Compromise

Washington (UPI) A compromise version of the Senate's food stamp reform bill ran into trouble Wednesday from conservative forces who say previous saving estimates are wrong and the proposal may actually increase the cost of the $5 8 billion program

Sen James Allen, D-Ala , said he has information from the Agriculture Department indicating that the compromise, drafted by Sens Robert Dole, R-Kan , and George McGovern, D-S.D., could cost as much as $500 million more than the $6 3 billion projected cost for the program in fiscal 1977

This compares with the Congressional Budget Office s estimate of a $241 million savings Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said he is sticking by this estimate

Allen managed to delay until Thursday a vote on a Dole motion to suspend a section of the new Congressional budget act so the compromise would be in order regardless of its budgetary impact in fiscal 1976 or fiscal 1977

Allen branded the Dole motion budget busting" and said it would be ' reform in reverse if the Senate approved a bill that actually increased the cost of the food stamp program

Talmadge said the administration might be trying to torpedo Senate reform efforts by coming forth with '11th hour new cost estimates' that subject the legislation to a budgetary challenge

It seems strange that the budget act could be used to stall the first attempt at meaningful reform of a program that is out of control he said

Under the compromise that Talmadge endorsed Dole and McGovern agreed to drop plans to push for free food stamps in exchange for other changes in the original committee version of the bill The changes would substantially lessen savings but still close loopholes that have brought the program under fire

A key provision in the compromise will reduce the amount an individual must pay for bonus food coupons from a flat 27 5 [illegible] to 25 [illegible] of net monthly income This compares with the current average charge of about 24 [illegible] of net income and an administration proposal to increase that to 30

Board Won't Ban SST From U.S.

Washington (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board refused Wednesday to ban the Concorde supersonic transport from the United States, handing environmentalists their second defeat by a federal agency in the SST controversy

Ruling on a motion filed by the Environmental Defense Fund, the board said it saw no need to hold its own hearings on the Anglo-French SST or to bar the craft by revising operating permits held by British Airways and Air France

EDF lawyer John Hellegers challenged the ruling, saying the board failed to deal with environmental impacts posed by SST fares He said too low a fare could endanger the environment by encouraging SST travel.

"One way or another we will bring the thing back to the CAB," Hellegers said He said EDF might take its case to the U S Court of Appeals or might wait and raise the issue again when the board considers an international proposal setting SST fares 20% above first class ticket prices.

In rejecting the EDF motion, which had been backed by several members of Congress and numerous local and state officials the board relied heavily on a ruling by Transportation Secretary William Coleman in approving a 16-month test of daily Concorde flights to New York and Washington

Motorists Misjudge Positions Of Sirens

(c) Chicago Daily News

Tests show that people in automobiles can judge correctly position of a siren or wail of an emergency vehicle only one-fourth of the time, two acoustical engineers reported Wednesday.

Not until the driver sees the police car, ambulance or fire truck can he pinpoint its location and direction.

"A siren alone is incomplete," said R C. Potter and Hsien-sheng Pei of Cambridge, Mass. "It does not say what direction the emergency vehicle is approaching, whether the driver should get out of its way and how quickly."

The tests were part of a program to develop more effective sirens. The test subjects were blindfolded — first while seated in the open air, and then while seated in an automobile with the motor idling The siren was operated at random positions around them.

The subject could almost always (91% of the time) identify the position of the siren in the open air, but sitting in a car, even with the car windows wide open, they were completely confused 3 out of 4 times.

Speaking before the Acoustical Society of America in Washington, Potter and Pei said when the siren was sounded either directly in front of or immediately behind the car, the test subjects were correct only 18% of the time. These positions most closely simulated the commonest positions of emergency vehicles in actual city and suburban driving.

"Test subjects might have been expected to locate the siren correctly in at least 12% of the positions by simply guessing," the scientists said.

They explained that people normally locate the positions of sounds by differences in loudness and phase of signals heard by the two ears. (Phase is the determination of which ear hears cyclic peaks of the sound first).

But sound heard inside an automobile is changed as it travels through the structure of the vehicle. Reflections from buildings and nearby vehicles may affect the sound. And the drivers themselves may be listening to their radios, the sound of windshield wipers or the hum of heaters and air conditioners.

The scientists said a search continues for warning sounds with better penetration. In the meantime, they added, drivers should use their eyes as well as their ears.

FBI Confirms It Was Hughes

HOUSTON (AP) — Howard Robard Hughes, whose exploits brought him fabulous wealth and world fame, was buried in an unmarked grave alongside his parents Wednesday while the FBI confirmed through fingerprints that it was the body of the billionaire recluse

Carter, Jackson, Udall Plunge Into Pennsylvania

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Carter, Henry M. Jackson and Morris K. Udall — the candidate who woke up a loser — plunged without pause Wednesday into the campaign for Pennsylvania's presidential primary, a contest that could be their Democratic showdown.

There are other candidates waiting to test them later, and there is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, biding his time and looking for running room after the primary season is over.

But it is evident now that the Pennsylvania balloting on April 27 will sort things out among the current crop of primary contenders.

Carter won the Wisconsin presidential preference vote with 37% of the ballots, edging Udall, who held a premature victory celebration election night. Early Wednesday, late-counted ballots turned things around.

Carter had gone to bed in Milwaukee talking as though he had been defeated, although he never conceded. He got up to tell his supporters: "We're No. 1," and to wave a newspaper with a banner headline saying he had been upset.

"And we won anyhow," the former Georgia governor said.

For Udall, it was a night of disappointment. "Oh, how sweet it is," the Arizona congressman had said when he was leading in the partial vote count and pronounced the winner in the projections of ABC and NBC. It would have been his first primary victory, in a state he had made a major target with campaign money and time. But the sweetness didn't last.

Nonetheless, Udall said Wednesday that he had stopped the Carter bandwagon with his 36% of the vote, just behind Carter.

"It was practically a dead heat in Wisconsin," he told United Auto Workers Union officials in Detroit. "If Carter had his way, his people would have wiped me out. But there are still 22 primaries to go.

"This election is going to be won or lost in the big industrial states, and Carter's record is not great in them, " he said. "The Carter landslide has been stopped.

Jackson won a commanding, 104-vote share of the Democratic delegates awarded in Tuesday's New York primary, and he said he would have more votes from nominally uncommitted delegates. Udall supporters captured 70 national convention seats, uncommitted entries won 65 and Carter had 35.

The New York system offered a test among delegates, listed with their candidate preferences. But there was no direct test of the presidential contenders since the three major entries had varying numbers of delegate entries.

Jackson said in an interview Wednesday that the New York outcome means a tough, three-way contest in Pennsylvania, which will have 178 Democratic convention votes. In addition, there is a presidential preference primary, matching the candidates themselves in Pennsylvania.

Jackson forecast victory. "I believe that we will carry Pennsylvania," the Washington senator said. He said his victory in New York, a state he called a symbol of political power and movement, will boost his standing in Pennsylvania.

Given the Tuesday verdicts, Jackson said, he, Carter and Udall will all be there. "I think it will be an all-out, three-way fight instead of what otherwise might have been one on one."

"Any time you win over 100 delegates in an election, it has definite political impact," Jackson said. His New York victory was short of the majority he had forecast, but Jackson pronounced himself more than satisfied. He said 10 of the uncommitted delegates already are on his side and forecast more to follow.

President Ford won the Wisconsin Republican primary, easily outdistancing challenger Ronald Reagan — and sweeping the state's 45 Republican nominating delelgates. Ford is entered in Pennsylvania, which will have 103 Republican delegate votes, but Reagan is not running again until the May 1 Texas primary, which now looms as his make or break test.

Conservatives Make Trouble For Food Stamp Compromise

Washington (UPI) — A compromise version of the Senate's food stamp reform bill ran into trouble Wednesday from conservative forces who say previous saving estimates are wrong and the proposal may actually increase the cost of the $5.8 billion program.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., said he has information from the Agriculture Department indicating that the compromise, drafted by Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and George McGovern, D-S.D., could cost as much as $500 million more than the $6.3 billion projected cost for the program in fiscal 1977.

Nobody Looked Good

The vote-counting in the Wisconsin and New York primaries Tuesday illustrated the advisability of not counting unhatched chickens.

Sen. Henry Jackson won 107 of the 206 delegates New York Democrats elected to go to the national nominating convention in July He won more than any other candidate (Mo Udall was second, claiming 69 delegates, about the same number of delegates won election uncommitted and Jimmy Carter claimed 33).

But Jackson had predicted a landslide in New York delegate selection following his preferential primary victory last month in Massachusetts.

Tuesday night Jackson could boast of a solid victory, but it was one which would have looked better had he not been speaking of a New York sweep all these weeks. And he sounded almost as foolish as Ronald Reagan claiming less than 50% of the vote as victories in his head-to-head encounters with President Ford. Jackson said "We got our landslide" — with less than half the total number of delegates pledged to him.

As the dust settled Wednesday, nobody looked very good on the basis of Tuesday's vote.

President Ford, who campaigned in Wisconsin, took that state with a respectable but not overwhelming 55% against Reagan, who didn't campaign there. Reagan said he was thankful for every percentage point over 30%, but it was nevertheless his sixth loss to Ford.

Jimmy Carter has to be looking back over his shoulder with some apprehension. If the bandwagon was not derailed, it was slowed a mite. Carter squeaked by over Udall in Wisconsin — just barely — and ran behind "uncommitted" in New York's delegate selection.

And now Udall — who believed the two networks which gave him Wisconsin prematurely and delivered a victory speech — must engage in soul-searching.

He campaigned vigorously and extensively in Wisconsin over a year's time, was well organized and spent a lot of money. But when the last votes were counted, Udall was in second place. Carter had not campaigned a great deal in Wisconsin, but he had momentum and "progressives" apparently are finding it tough going this year.

Udall gave it his best shot in Wisconsin. The chances for a brighter day for him on down the primary trail appear slim indeed.

The two latest stops proved that network computers can be fallible, that early assumptions of splendid victories can get you in trouble and that right now, there are still no clear favorites for the nominations.

Exemptions Challenged

Recent actions by Douglas County Assessor Frank Bemis and Lancaster County Assessor Fritz Meyer in challenging county board exemptions of certain properties from the property tax rolls are commendable.

In Omaha, Bemis challenged the decisions of his county board to exempt ten properties, including some church-owned property, vacant land and labor union buildings. Here in Lincoln, Meyer has asked State Tax Commissioner William Peters to review exemptions given by the Lancaster County commissioners, sitting as a board of equalization, to four local nursing homes after hearings last month.

By such challenges, the assessors are acting in behalf of tax equity and are seeking to protect a tax base always under threat of erosion.

The laws governing exemptions apparently invite loose interpretations.

The Douglas County Board of Equalization Monday on a split vote granted the Omaha Press Club a property tax exemption for the coming year. That action was characterized by Douglas County Commissioner Michael Albert, who voted aginst the exemption, as "grossly irresponsible". Albert said he felt that the exemption was granted because this is an election year.

Whatever the reason, an establishment such as the Omaha Press Club — even though it engages in some charitable and educational activities — should not qualify for a property tax exemption.

The Omaha Press Club should never apply for a property tax exemption. That is not practicing what is preached by the media, and media types comprise much of the club's membership.

A harder look at what properties are off the tax rolls is in order.

Revision Of Hatch Act

Lincoln, Neb

President Ford's intended veto of the Hatch Act revision bill which allows federal employes to achieve full political participation rights granted without question to their 18-year-old sons and daughters is hardly in the best interests of the country

Mr Ford has said "You can't have career servants with government employment and get them involved with political work He might have said that you can't have servants of any kind and get them involved with political work The improbity of his position becomes clearer if one substitutes "career teachers" or "bankers" or "baby-sitters" Reasonable people simply can no longer require the abdication of full citizenship as a penalty for government employment Why should anything more than an honest day's work be needed for any job?

The Star editorial of April 6 speaks of "the threat of a militantly politicized federal bureaucracy" Revision of the Hatch Act would more likely yield jubilance and optimism on the part of heretofore disenfranchised public employes Indeed it is regrettable that The Star should wave the red flag of militancy and speak of threats without supportive evidence or elucidation

I doubt however that the fears and shapes thus conjured will blind anyone to the injustice of the Hatch Act Perhaps the good of the country will be best served if we all write to our congressmen and make our wishes known so that our eminently enfranchised friends who saw fit to pass the revision of the Hatch Act, will not let it die under the pen of one man

ROBERT RAY CLARK

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

I am sitting on the ledge before the fireplace writing my lines . . . thankful at least that I do not have an electric typewriter. The popular item is the manually operated machine . . . a step back in history but a step ahead in comfort.

Winter was not ready to bow out gracefully but with April so close at hand, I preferred to think we had had the last of our winter weather. Now with my back to the warming fire, I think what problems it brings.

Living such as many communities are without power certainly makes the Bicentennial more vivid. The problems we are facing were taken in stride two hundred years ago, or one hundred years ago or less.

Candle power which certainly isn't much power was used by many people the first night. The second night I found our kerosene lamp, shined the globe and filled it with kerosene The Farmer purchased at our local filling station.

As I shined and polished the globe, I thought of my very early childhood when it was my duty to clean the lamps every Saturday. Every so often my mother would trim the wicks, a task she did not trust me with at so young an age. If they were not trimmed straight across, the light would be uneven.

I have also learned to cook in the fireplace and certainly have learned a new respect for the pioneer woman who cooked all of the family food over the fire.

The first day for dinner I wrapped chicken pieces in foil and put them on a piece of iron The Farmer found. Today we improved upon our culinary technique by using a piece of metal from a grain bin that had perforations in it allowing the heat of the live coals to come up through the metal. I found this an easier way to regulate the heat. The baked fish fillets were done to perfection.

Food in the deep-freeze is of concern to many people, also. Long years ago the hams and bacon were home-cured. Canned meat provided variety along with meat that had been fried and put down in lard.

With coal-burning parlor furnaces and cook stoves for heat, people were self sufficient. Winter storms brewed and farm families were isolated for days. There was never the feeling that we were being deprived of anything, probably because there was nothing better.

Now I have heard the younger generation remark there is nothing to do . . . no television. There was always the art of conversation in years gone by.

I know my sister and I played games of every kind during the winter months or wrote letters to faraway cousins. There was the battery radio with its headphones. What a day it was when we had a new model of radio without headphones. Today The Farmer and I have an electric radio and TV and nothing works.

However, I do notice we are talking more in the evening. We have discussed many things that somehow we never found the time to do because we had to be quiet to hear the TV program. Our conversation has not been earth-shaking but just the small things that make up living the full turn of a day.

The philosophy of the common man is also good. In fact we are living without Walter Cronkite very well. Politics had become a bit boring. We have lost sight of Henry Kissinger. However the daily paper brings us up to date, although a day late. In that span of time, Kissinger can be in another part of the world.

As for washing of the clothes, I have decided to wait another two or three days and take a chance on the electricity pulsating through the wires again. Somewhere in the attic of my childhood home is a washboard. I think I will leave it there to relish in its memories. With a bigger supply of clothing today, wash-day can be postponed.

The Farmer has just come with another armful of logs for the fireplace and dusk is closing in around the windows. Soon it will be time to light the lamp in the wonderful modern age of 1976.

The Other Power Struggle

WASHINGTON — One of the few sure bets in the federal elections of 1976 is that the Democrats will retain control of the Senate and the House of Representatives, as they have done for 28 out of the last 32 years, but there is one important difference this year.

There will be a change of Democratic leaders in the Senate and almost certainly in the House, and while the attention of the nation is on the presidential race, the attention of the House and Senate is also focused on the struggle for succession to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Speaker Carl Albert on Capitol Hill.

Mansfield has already announced his retirement as Senate majority leader, and it is understood that Albert will announce his retirement from the speakership when he heads a congressional delegation to bring back the Magna Carta from London for the Bicentennial celebrations at the end of May.

The Democratic leaders, or at least some of the most thoughtful of them, are beginning to analyze, not only how to win the presidential election, but how best to govern the nation if they do, and specifically, how to put together the most effective combination of party leaders who can bring the White House and the Congress into closer consultation and understanding.

This will obviously be one of their major campaign arguments: Divided government with one party in control of the White House and the other in control of the Congress doesn't work.

Also, that the balance of the Supreme Court has changed from liberal to conservative with the five Republican appointees of the Nixon-Ford years.

So goes this Democratic theme: "For cooperation between the executive and the legislature and a balance on the court, vote Democratic."

It is easier for the Democrats to agree on this, however, than to agree on that "cooperative party leadership" they want at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. Hubert Humphrey, for example, is available for both the Democratic presidential nomination and, if he doesn't make it, for the Democratic leadership of the Senate. This is holding up the maneuvering for Mike Mansfield's successor.

The situation in the House is clearer. Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, is certain to be speaker when Albert retires, but there will then be a battle for the House majority leadership, with Phil Burton and Jack McFall of California, John Brademas of Indiana, and Dick Bolling of Missouri as the leading candidates.

The main contenders for the Democratic leadership in the Senate, if Humphrey is nominated for the presidency, will be Robert Byrd of West Virginia, Ed Muskie of Maine, and Fritz Hollings of South Carolina.

Sen. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who has a good chance to be chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee if James Eastland of Mississippi retires in the next session of Congress as expected, has decided not to try for the majority leadership.

Though Kennedy has taken himself out of this year's presidential race, his reasons for not seeking the majority leadership are interesting. He wants to be free to debate the issues as an individual senator, and would also like to chair the judiciary and technology committees, but he also feels that nobody who might later seek national office should be majority leader. In other words, if not now, he is thinking about the presidency in 1980.

What is obviously holding up the planning for the Democratic leadership of the Congress is the rising feeling here that Jimmy Carter of Georgia may finally run away with the nomination, as Jack Kennedy did in 1960 and George McGovern in 1972.

Even Tip O'Neill, who is backing Mo Udall and will switch to Humphrey if Udall falters, is saying privately that, whatever the party leaders do, Carter may not be stoppable.

Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey, who knows all the cards in the political deck in that state, is saying about the same thing. The leaders can try to hold the line and deadlock the convention, but the voters for Carter may not agree.

☆ ☆ ☆

In any event, it is fairly clear that the leadership of this government is going to be quite different next January, even if President Ford is nominated in August and elected in November, for a whole new team will be in control on Capitol Hill, and even a Ford cabinet will be quite different.

The change is already taking place. The top men at the State Department, except Kissinger, have already started moving out, and Kissinger's speeches begin to sound like chapters in his coming books.

The Democrats may lose a few seats in the Congress, but they now have a majority of 61 to 37 in the Senate and 289 to 145 in the House, so there is no reasonable expectation that the balance of power there will change very much.

The new leadership of the next Democratic Congress, however, will probably be more aggressive under O'Neill in the House or Humphrey, Byrd, Muskie or Hollings in the Senate.

Either way, the days of presidential domination are likely to be over for a while, and the Democratic objective is to end the days of divided government as well. They want to dominate both branches for the first time since LBJ, even if they have to do it with Carter.

Tell Them Ronnie Boy Should Go

WASHINGTON — One of the shockers of a dismal campaign is that Ronald Reagan, running for president of the United States, should choose this moment when peace in the Middle East is gravely threatened to decry our foreign policy His nationwide television speech will go down as a low point, not just of this current dreary exercise but of the political history of this century.

His attack on detente, the "one-way street," and America's second place in the arms race was a frequently repeated theme as he toured the country. That is the common coin of Cold War warriors such as Admiral Elmo Zumwalt. The Reagan theme, Kissinger's surrender, with Russia as Sparta and the United States as Athens (bad history, incidentally), sounded almost as though he had plagiarized from the speech Zumwalt gives so often.

For this observer Reagan's attack on the Ford attempt to resolve the conflict over the Panama Canal was more disturbing For at least two years the administration has been working to achieve a reasonable treaty that will retain American control of the operation of the canal but at the same time end the special privileges of the Canal Zone that, in the heart of Panama, a sovereign nation, constitute the last vestige of American imperialism. Popular feeling against this privileged enclave runs so high that failure to reach a compromise would, according to those most familiar with the situation, result in something like guerrilla warfare and sabotage of the canal

Every nation south of the border sides with Panama Failure to achieve a treaty will disrupt the Organization of American States at a time when America's position in Latin America is about as low as it could be One quick trip touching several bases in the hemisphere by Secretary Kissinger could hardly make up for the neglect and uncertainty prevailing for so long

A dedicated and skilled diplomat has been directing the American effort to formulate a treaty that will satisfy both sides. Ellsworth Bunker is not only an able diplomat but also a devoted public servant who, at 82, might long since have retired to his beloved farm in Vermont.

ELLSWORTH BUNKER
. . . directing effort toward acceptable treaty . . .

Instead, he has virtually commuted to Panama There he has established friendly relations with his opposite numbers in working out the treaty Bunker is a remarkable figure, an unmistakeable Yankee with a seriousness of expression broken by his quick sense of humor

Because of the election year there had been no prospect of a treaty that could be concluded and ratified before 1977. That great statesman from South Carolina, Sen. Strom Thurmond, had undertaken to sign up more than one-third of the Senate on a declaration resolving never to approve any treaty changing the status of the Canal Zone.

Reagan's demagoguery is not to be discounted Not for him the flamboyance of a George Wallace and his pointy-headed intellectuals with their briefcases He is the demagogue in the Brooks Brothers suit, slick and plausible, as when he was traveling around the country selling General Electric

It was an impressive performance, smooth as glass but not quite as transparent. An actor in all those B-films turned politician, Reagan has a style with which Gerald Ford cannot possibly compete

I had thought they would want to stop putting their money on a losing and a deeply divisive venture and conserve it to throw into the real contest in the fall backing a Republican candidate for president

I was wrong. Their loyalty to Ronnie Boy apparently has no limits nor, with the dramatic rise in the stock market, does their money. They have masterminded the fund-raising drives that have put Reagan's resources at least on a par with those of the President.

Reagan can be satisfied that he is dividing his party so it will face an election as a ragged, frustrated minority This is the pitiful anticlimax of Watergate and all the humiliation and shame that went with it

Nobody Looked Good

The vote-counting in the Wisconsin and New York primaries Tuesday illustrated the advisability of not counting unhatched chickens.

Sen. Henry Jackson won 107 of the 206 delegates New York Democrats elected to go to the national nominating convention in July. He won more than any other candidate (Mo Udall was second, claiming 69 delegates, about the same number of delegates won election uncommitted and Jimmy Carter claimed 33).

But Jackson had predicted a landslide in New York delegate selection following his preferential primary victory last month in Massachusetts.

Tuesday night Jackson could boast of a solid victory, but it was one which would have looked better had he not been speaking of a New York sweep all these weeks. And he sounded almost as foolish as Ronald Reagan claiming less than 50% of the vote as victories in his head-to-head encounters with President Ford. Jackson said "We got our landslide" — with less than half the total number of delegates pledged to him.

As the dust settled Wednesday, nobody looked very good on the basis of Tuesday's vote.

President Ford, who campaigned in Wisconsin, took that state with a respectable but not overwhelming 55% against Reagan, who didn't campaign there. Reagan said he was thankful for every percentage point over 30%, but it was nevertheless his sixth loss to Ford.

Jimmy Carter has to be looking back over his shoulder with some apprehension. If the bandwagon was not derailed, it was slowed a mite. Carter squeaked by over Udall in Wisconsin — just barely — and ran behind "uncommitted" in New York's delegate selection.

And now Udall — who believed the two networks which gave him Wisconsin prematurely and delivered a victory speech — must engage in soul-searching.

He campaigned vigorously and extensively in Wisconsin over a year's time, was well organized and spent a lot of money. But when the last votes were counted, Udall was in second place. Carter had not campaigned a great deal in Wisconsin, but he had momentum and "progressives" apparently are finding it tough going this year.

Udall gave it his best shot in Wisconsin. The chances for a brighter day for him on down the primary trail appear slim indeed.

The two latest stops proved that network computers can be fallible, that early assumptions of splendid victories can get you in trouble and that right now, there are still no clear favorites for the nominations.

Exemptions Challenged

Recent actions by Douglas County Assessor Frank Bemis and Lancaster County Assessor Fritz Meyer in challenging county board exemptions of certain properties from the property tax rolls are commendable.

In Omaha, Bemis challenged the decisions of his county board to exempt ten properties, including some church-owned property, vacant land and labor union buildings. Here in Lincoln, Meyer has asked State Tax Commissioner William Peters to review exemptions given by the Lancaster County commissioners, sitting as a board of equalization, to four local nursing homes after hearings last month.

By such challenges, the assessors are acting in behalf of tax equity and are seeking to protect a tax base always under threat of erosion.

The laws governing exemptions apparently invite loose interpretations.

The Douglas County Board of Equalization Monday on a split vote granted the Omaha Press Club a property tax exemption for the coming year. That action was characterized by Douglas County Commissioner Michael Albert, who voted aginst the exemption, as "grossly irresponsible". Albert said he felt that the exemption was granted because this is an election year.

Whatever the reason, an establishment such as the Omaha Press Club — even though it engages in some charitable and educational activities — should not qualify for a property tax exemption.

The Omaha Press Club should never apply for a property tax exemption. That is not practicing what is preached by the media, and media types comprise much of the club's membership.

A harder look at what properties are off the tax rolls is in order.

Living at Tabitha Home is like being with one big happy family. You can call to a friend across the hall. One person will tie another's shoestrings because her hands are crippled with arthritis. We discuss the weather, the news. And the food gets its share of discussion, some good, some bad.

If someone has lost her thimble, I'll loan her mine. My own room is rather a mess now, because we are making things for the bazaar. I call my room "The Doll Room" because that is what I am making. They are clown or yo-yo dolls made from scraps of material. One doll takes 70 circles, five bells and a heap of work. There will also be a lot of crocheting, knitting, fancy-work and many other things at our bazaar.

Revision Of Hatch Act

Lincoln, Neb.

President Ford's intended veto of the Hatch Act revision bill which allows federal employes to achieve full political participation rights granted without question to their 18-year-old sons and daughters is hardly in the best interests of the country.

Mr. Ford has said, "You can't have career servants with government employment and get them involved with political work." He might have said that you can't have servants of any kind and get them involved with political work. The improbity of his position becomes clearer if one substitutes "career teachers" or "bankers" or "baby-sitters". Reasonable people simply can no longer require the abdication of full citizenship as a penalty for government employment. Why should anything more than an honest day's work be needed for any job?

The Star editorial of April 6 speaks of "the threat of a militantly politicized federal bureaucracy". Revision of the Hatch Act would more likely yield jubilance and optimism on the part of heretofore disenfranchised public employes. Indeed, it is regrettable that The Star should wave the red flag of militancy and speak of threats without supportive evidence or elucidation.

I doubt, however, that the fears and shapes thus conjured will blind anyone to the injustice of the Hatch Act. Perhaps the "good of the country" will be best served if we all write to our congressmen and make our wishes known so that our eminently enfranchised friends, who saw fit to pass the revision of the Hatch Act, will not let it die under the pen of one man.

I am sitting on the ledge before the fireplace writing my lines . . . thankful at least that I do not have an electric typewriter. The popular item is the manually operated machine . . . a step back in history but a step ahead in comfort.

Winter was not ready to bow out gracefully but with April so close at hand, I preferred to think we had had the last of our winter weather. Now with my back to the warming fire, I think what problems it brings.

Living such as many communities are without power certainly makes the Bicentennial more vivid. The problems we are facing were taken in stride two hundred years ago, or one hundred years ago or less.

Candle power which certainly isn't much power was used by many people the first night. The second night I found our kerosene lamp, shined the globe and filled it with kerosene The Farmer purchased at our local filling station.

As I shined and polished the globe, I thought of my very early childhood when it was my duty to clean the lamps every Saturday. Every so often my mother would trim the wicks, a task she did not trust me with at so young an age. If they were not trimmed straight across, the light would be uneven.

I have also learned to cook in the fireplace and certainly have learned a new respect for the pioneer woman who cooked all of the family food over the fire.

The first day for dinner I wrapped chicken pieces in foil and put them on a piece of iron The Farmer found. Today we improved upon our culinary technique by using a piece of metal from a grain bin that had perforations in it allowing the heat of the live coals to come up through the metal. I found this an easier way to regulate the heat. The baked fish fillets were done to perfection.

Food in the deep-freeze is of concern to many people, also. Long years ago the hams and bacon were home-cured. Canned meat provided variety along with meat that had been fried and put down in lard.

With coal-burning parlor furnaces and cook stoves for heat, people were self sufficient. Winter storms brewed and farm families were isolated for days. There was never the feeling that we were being deprived of anything, probably because there was nothing better.

Now I have heard the younger generation remark there is nothing to do . . . no television. There was always the art of conversation in years gone by.

I know my sister and I played games of every kind during the winter months or wrote letters to faraway cousins. There was the battery radio with its headphones. What a day it was when we had a new model of radio without headphones. Today The Farmer and I have an electric radio and TV and nothing works.

However, I do notice we are talking more in the evening. We have discussed many things that somehow we never found the time to do because we had to be quiet to hear the TV program. Our conversation has not been earth-shaking but just the small things that make up living the full turn of a day.

Unicameral Session Is Extended

By United Press International

Nebraska's lawmakers Wednesday, for the first time since the Unicameral began meeting every year in 1971, extended this year's session by two days to pass a new speed limit law to replace one adopted last year that will self destruct in 90 days.

The vote to extend was 41-5. The Constitution limits sessions in even numbered years to 60 days and in odd numbered years to 90 days. Extensions require 40 votes.

On the heels of the successful move to extend the session, Speaker Jules Burbach of Hartington gutted, on a 43-0 vote, LB202 of its county welfare program provisions and replaced them with a repealer of the destruct clause.

The bill was then given second round approval and speeded on its way for a Friday final vote.

The alternative to the extension was a special session which Gov. J. James Exon announced Tuesday he would call to solve the speed limit problem. A special session must last seven days in order to meet constitutional time requirements for valid passage of legislation.

The lawmakers also voted 32-8 to kill all bills other than LB202, introduced last year and this year, which would have died with the adjournment of this year's session anyway.

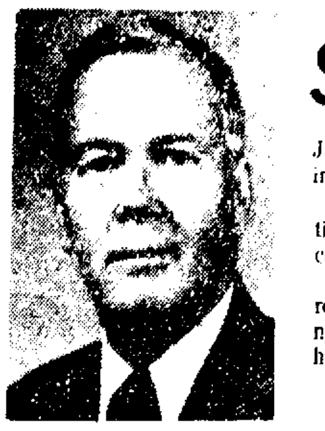
Burbach allowed that motion by Sen. Irving Wiltse of Nebraska City in response to fears expressed by Exon and some senators about an extension.

The speaker said the governor preferred a special session because it could be limited only to the speed limit issue while an extension carries no limitations on activities. Burbach's extension motion also called for a limit to the one emergency issue, but he and others noted it could be overruled and thus accepted the kill motion as a safeguard.

Burbach urged lawmakers to exercise "self restraint and self discipline" and not open up the extension to any other subject through reconsideration of the kill motion.

He said he preferred a two-day extension, something that could be accomplished because LB202 was already at the second round stage of floor consideration, to a seven-day special session because of cost to both the state and the legislators.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue objected to the way Exon handled the speed limit law situation. Lewis said Exon erroneously placed full blame for the situation on the lawmakers and did so because "it creates headlines."



Sen. William Nichol

State Gas Tax Won't Rise

The Legislature Wednesday sustained Gov. J. James Exon's veto of a one-cent-a-gallon increase in the state gasoline tax.

Needing 30 votes, Sen. William Nichol's motion to override the veto of LB863 fell on a 25-23 count.

Nichol said the $9.5 million in additional revenue which could have been raised by the penny tax hike is needed to meet the rising costs of highway construction and maintenance.

The state tax is not 8½ cents per gallon.

Exon vetoed the bill because lawmakers refused to include a rider which would have allowed the state to transfer some sparsely traveled roads to county jurisdiction.

Funds from the gasoline tax are distributed among the state, cities and counties.

Here is the vote to override the veto:

For: Bereuter, Burrows, Carsten, Cope, DeCamp, Dworak, Fitzgerald, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Johnson, Kelly, Koch, Kremer, Luedtke, Mahoney, Maresh, Marsh, Mills, Moylan, Nichol, Rasmussen, Savage, Schmit, Simpson, Wiltse

Against: Anderson, Barnett, Burbach, Cavanaugh, Chambers, Clark, Dickinson, Duis, Fowler, George, Kennedy, Keyes, F. Lewis, R. Lewis, Marvel, Murphy, Rumery, Skarda, Stoney, Stull, Swigart, Syas, Warner

Lawmakers Pass Public Disclosure Law

By The Associated Press

The Legislature voted 28-16 to pass a bill Wednesday to tighten campaign reporting laws, require public officials to disclose financial interests and tighten lobbying reporting laws.

The bill, LB987, was in response to a threat by Common Cause and other groups to file petitions and put a tougher law on the general election ballot for the voters to approve.

Common Cause, the so-called citizens' lobby, and the other backers of the bill have not said whether they are satisfied with the legislative bill or if they will push ahead with the petition drive.

The bill would require public officials to file statements concerning business investments, real property, checking accounts and stocks and bonds. The purpose of the statements is to disclose conflicts of interest.

Candidates would be required to channel all campaign contributions and expenditures through a single bank account.

Reports must be filed with a special commission set up to administer the act.

Lobbyists would be required to report their income, money spent in lobbying and their positions on bills.

Labor organizations and business groups working for candidates would have to report time volunteered to work for candidates.

The Legislature rejected a bill (LB799) which would have reorganized the legislative staff. It required the Executive Board of the Legislative Council, the group of senators who manage the business affairs of the legislative branch, to set up a personnel classification system. It failed on a 20-27 vote.

The bill would have allowed the Legislature to hire an executive director for the staff, a performance auditor and a legal counsel.

The performance auditor was to investigate the effectiveness of state agencies.

By The Associated Press

After more than a decade of debate, the Unicameral voted 25-23 Wednesday to pass a bill to require color photographs on drivers licenses.

However, Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers said Gov. J. James Exon would veto the bill.

The bill LB781, would raise the price of a drivers license from $6 to $7.

Proponents said the bill was needed to provide better identification for law enforcement personnel. Opponents said it was a check cashing aid for merchants and a response to lobbying by photography companies. The issue was debated by the Unicameral as far back as 1965.

Because the session is in its final days, Exon could pocket veto the bill without returning it for a possible legislative override.

LB781A, an accompanying appropriation bill, allows $70,950 to be spent on the new licenses. Drivers would not have to get new licenses until their old ones expired.

The Legislatuer voted 44-0 to pass a bill to lower weight tolerances for trucks and ease air pollution requirements for diesel rigs.

The bill, LB823, would reduce the amount any one axle could exceed weight limitations from 10 to 5%.

It would reduce air pollution violations from an arrest to a repair order.

The bill increases the penalty for noise violations from $10-$25 to $25-$100.

Federal Safe Water Bill Is Passed

The Legislature Wednesday voted 29-17 to pass a safe drinking water act mandated by federal authorities.

The bill, LB821, allows the director of the Department of Health to set tolerances of harmful substances allowed in drinking water supplies in Nebraska.

Opponents of the bill said it would create an unneccessary hardhip on small water systems.

The bill was passed in response to the federal mandate rather than as a response to any known problem with Nebraska drinking water.

However, there was some concern among senators that wells in central Nebraska could contain too much nitrogen.

The nitrogen enters the ground water after being placed on fields as fertilizer.

Unicam Approves Milder Pesticide Bill

The Unicameral passed a bill Wednesday designed to place minimal restrictions on use of pesticides.

The bill is a response to a federal mandate.

The bill, LB332, passed on a 35-7 vote. It falls short of Environmental Protection Agency regulations.

The EPA wanted a bill which would require farmers and ranchers to take training before they could use certain pesticides.

The EPA has threatened to prohibit use of many pesticides in Nebraska after October 1977, unless the Legislature passes a tougher law.

The bill does require commercial applicators of pesticides to take training. Farmers can take the training if they want, but are allowed simply to sign a statement saying they know about pesticides.

An accompanying appropriations bill, LB332A, gives $225,000 to the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service to provide training. It passed 36-8.

Unicameral Session Is Extended

By United Press International

Nebraska's lawmakers Wednesday, for the first time since the Unicameral began meeting every year in 1971, extended this year's session by two days to pass a new speed limit law to replace one adopted last year that will self destruct in 90 days.

The vote to extend was 41-5. The Constitution limits sessions in even numbered years to 60 days and in odd numbered years to 90 days. Extensions require 40 votes.

On the heels of the successful move to extend the session, Speaker Jules Burbach of Hartington gutted, on a 43-0 vote, LB202 of its county welfare program provisions and replaced them with a repealer of the destruct clause.

The bill was then given second round approval and speeded on its way for a Friday final vote.

The alternative to the extension was a special session which Gov. J. James Exon announced Tuesday he would call to solve the speed limit problem. A special session must last seven days in order to meet constitutional time requirements for valid passage of legislation.

The lawmakers also voted 32-8 to kill all bills other than LB202, introduced last year and this year, which would have died with the adjournment of this year's session anyway.

Burbach allowed that motion by Sen. Irving Wiltse of Nebraska City in response to fears expressed by Exon and some senators about an extension.

The speaker said the governor preferred a special session because it could be limited only to the speed limit issue while an extension carries no limitations on activities. Burbach's extension motion also called for a limit to the one emergency issue, but he and others noted it could be overruled and thus accepted the kill motion as a safeguard.

Burbach urged lawmakers to exercise "self restraint and self discipline" and not open up the extension to any other subject through reconsideration of the kill motion.

He said he preferred a two-day extension, something that could be accomplished because LB202 was already at the second round stage of floor consideration, to a seven-day special session because of cost to both the state and the legislators.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue objected to the way Exon handled the speed limit law situation. Lewis said Exon erroneously placed full blame for the situation on the lawmakers and did so because "it creates headlines."

State Gas Tax Won't Rise

The Legislature Wednesday sustained Gov. J. James Exon's veto of a one-cent-a-gallon increase in the state gasoline tax.

Needing 30 votes, Sen. William Nichol's motion to override the veto of LB863 fell on a 25-23 count.

Nichol said the $9.5 million in additional revenue which could have been raised by the penny tax hike is needed to meet the rising costs of highway construction and maintenance.

The state tax is not 8½ cents per gallon.

Exon vetoed the bill because lawmakers refused to include a rider which would have allowed the state to transfer some sparsely traveled roads to county jurisdiction.

Funds from the gasoline tax are distributed among the state, cities and counties.

Here is the vote to override the veto:

For: Bereuter, Burrows, Carsten, Cope, DeCamp, Dworak, Fitzgerald, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Johnson, Kelly, Koch, Kremer, Luedtke, Mahoney, Maresh, Marsh, Mills, Moylan, Nichol, Rasmussen, Savage, Schmit, Simpson, Wiltse.

Against: Anderson, Barnett, Burbach, Cavanaugh, Chambers, Clark, Dickinson, Duis, Fowler, George, Kennedy, Keyes, F. Lewis, R. Lewis, Marvel, Murphy, Rumery, Skarda, Stoney, Stull, Swigart, Syas, Warner.

Not Voting: Kime.

Lawmakers Pass Public Disclosure Law

By The Associated Press

The Legislature voted 28-16 to pass a bill Wednesday to tighten campaign reporting laws, require public officials to disclose financial interests and tighten lobbying reporting laws.

The bill, LB987, was in response to a threat by Common Cause and other groups to file petitions and put a tougher law on the general election ballot for the voters to approve.

Common Cause, the so-called citizens' lobby, and the other backers of the bill have not said whether they are satisfied with the legislative bill or if they will push ahead with the petition drive.

The bill would require public officials to file statements concerning business investments, real property, checking accounts and stocks and bonds. The purpose of the statements is to disclose conflicts of interest.

Candidates would be required to channel all campaign contributions and expenditures through a single bank account.

Reports must be filed with a special commission set up to administer the act.

Lobbyists would be required to report their income, money spent in lobbying and their positions on bills.

Labor organizations and business groups working for candidates would have to report time volunteered to work for candidates.

The Legislature rejected a bill (LB799) which would have reorganized the legislative staff. It required the Executive Board of the Legislative Council, the group of senators who manage the business affairs of the legislative branch, to set up a personnel classification system. It failed on a 20-27 vote.

The bill would have allowed the Legislature to hire an executive director for the staff, a performance auditor and a legal counsel.

The performance auditor was to investigate the effectiveness of state agencies.

Exec Board Nixes Unicam Study On 'Right To Die'

By The Associated Press

The executive board of the Legislative Council rejected Wednesday a resolution proposed by the Judiciary Committee calling for an interim study on the legal right to die

The resolution was introduced after a New Jersey case gained wide publicity in which the father of a young woman sought to have her removed from life support systems after months in a coma

The executive board also rejected a proposal Judiciary Committee study on sex discrimination laws

The board action does not prevent the committee from going ahead with the studies but does remove the expressed support of the Legislature for the study

The board approved an interim study resolution on professional fees paid to faculty members at the University of Nebraska Medical Center The fees largely retained by doctors have been a source of controversy between Gov J James Exon and the university

Another study approved would allow the Public Health and Welfare Committee to determine if pharmacists should be allowed to substitute cheaper drugs if they are identical to more expensive name brand drugs mentioned in prescriptions

Another resolution approved by the board would direct the Appropriations Committee to study the Eastern Nebraska Human Services Agency

The board also approved a Judiciary Committee resolution calling for an interim study on compensation for victims of crimes

Chambers Paves Way For Malpractice Test

Omaha Sen Ernest Chambers invoked a parliamentary procedure Wednesday to create a legislative record for a court challenge of the Legislature's malpractice bill

The bill LB434 signed by Gov J James Exon Tuesday limits malpractice judgments to $500 000 and requires malpractice cases to go through a screening committee of doctors

Chambers moved that the legislative journal be changed to say that the bill was not read properly before it was passed by the Legislature

The Omaha lawmaker played a portion of a tape recording he made of the assistant clerk's reading of the bill The tape recorder made a humming noise which Chambers said was the clerk's reading

The clerk according to tradition reads very rapidly as he skims through bills sounding much like an auctioneer only faster

The Nebraska Constitution requires that each bill be read at large before it is passed

Chambers said he was looking for a lawyer who was willing to file a declaratory judgment action asking the courts to strike down the law

I think there may be some lawyers interested in a two-thirds of all taxis in San Francisco That's because of a dispute with the Teamsters union

Topic Is 'Farewell But Never Goodbye'

Dallas UPI — The voice was the same But the subject was different

This is lifeline Melvin Munn with Freedom Talk Number 94 Today's talk entitled Farewell but never goodbye

After 17 years it was the end of the daily talks on the conservative point of view which liberals decried but which supporters like the late oil titan H L Hunt considered the voice of patriotism

I told them I was going off the air but still would be working and fighting wherever I was said Munn 60 who has been the sole commentator on the Lifeline opinion broadcast since 1965

Freedom Talk No 94 Munn's last broadcast was heard over Lifeline stations April 3 4

The broadcasts began in 1958 At the peak of its popularity in 1971 the show went out to more than 500 radio stations across the country Munn estimates he was reaching 8 to 11 million people

But in the last few years that audience had declined to 2 to 3 million over 120 stations Munn moved his operations from downtown Dallas studio to his home

In the end it was postal increases that forced the show off the air

We printed copies of our broadcast and had phonograph records books and tapes — all patriotic in nature Munn said

The mail order sales kept us in the black but the postal increases last year were the last straw

Unicam OKs Salary Hikes For Judges

The Legislature Wednesday voted 28-14 to pass a bill increasing the governor's salary from $25 000 to $40 000 a year and increasing the salaries of most Nebraska judges

The new salaries, because of a constitutional prohibition, do not apply to current office holders until the beginning of their next terms The bill was LB76

The salary of the judges of the Nebraska Supreme Court would go from $35,500 to $39 750

District judges would get raises from $32 500 a year to $36 500 while county judges would go from $24,000 to $25,440

District judges in counties with more than 150 000 population would get a $1,500 bonus and county judges in areas with more than 100,000 population would get $5 300 bonus

Municipal court judges would go from $29 500 to $33 000 Workmen's Compensation Court judges would be increased from $30 500 to $34 200

Because the bill was passed nearly at session's end the Legislature will not have a chance to attempt an override if Gov J James Exon vetoes it

The Unicameral also passed a bill LB673 to increase the pension of retired teachers from $840 to $1 560 a year It passed on a 45-0 vote

The bill to cover the increases under the Reserve Teachers Act LB673A passed 41-0 It appropriates $173 376

The Nebraska Constitution requires that each bill be "read at large" before it is passed.

Chambers said he was looking for a lawyer who was willing to file a declaratory judgment action asking the courts to strike down the law.

"I think there may be some lawyers interested in a two-thirds of all taxis in San Francisco. That's because of a dispute with the Teamsters union."

Topic Is 'Farewell But Never Goodbye'

Dallas (UPI) — The voice was the same. But the subject was different.

"This is lifeline. Melvin Munn with Freedom Talk Number 94. Today's talk entitled: 'Farewell but never goodbye.' "

After 17 years, it was the end of the daily talks on "the conservative point of view" which liberals decried but which supporters like the late oil titan H. L. Hunt considered the voice of patriotism.

"I told them I was going off the air but still would be working and fighting wherever I was," said Munn, 60, who has been the sole commentator on the Lifeline opinion broadcast since 1965.

Freedom Talk No. 94, Munn's last broadcast, was heard over Lifeline stations April 3-4.

The broadcasts began in 1958. At the peak of its popularity in 1971, the show went out to more than 500 radio stations across the country. Munn estimates he was reaching 8 to 11 million people.

But in the last few years, that audience had declined to 2 to 3 million over 120 stations. Munn moved his operations from downtown Dallas studio to his home.

In the end it was postal increases that forced the show off the air.

"We printed copies of our broadcast and had phonograph records, books and tapes — all patriotic in nature," Munn said. "The mail order sales kept us in the black, but the postal increases last year were the last straw."

Unicam OKs Salary Hikes For Judges

The Legislature Wednesday voted 28-14 to pass a bill increasing the governor's salary from $25,000 to $40,000 a year and increasing the salaries of most Nebraska judges.

The new salaries, because of a constitutional prohibition, do not apply to current office holders until the beginning of their next terms. The bill was LB76.

The salary of the judges of the Nebraska Supreme Court would go from $35,500 to $39,750.

District judges would get raises from $32,500 a year to $36,500 while county judges would go from $24,000 to $25,440.

District judges in counties with more than 150,000 population would get a $1,500 bonus and county judges in areas with more than 100,000 population would get $5,300 bonus.

Municipal court judges would go from $29,500 to $33,000. Workmen's Compensation Court judges would be increased from $30,500 to $34,200.

Because the bill was passed nearly at session's end, the Legislature will not have a chance to attempt an override if Gov. J. James Exon vetoes it.

The Unicameral also passed a bill, LB673, to increase the pension of retired teachers from $840 to $1,560 a year. It passed on a 45-0 vote.

The bill to cover the increases under the Reserve Teachers Act, LB673A, passed 41-0. It appropriates $173,376.

Banana Nuts

An hour-long banana eating contest brought out banana lover Kevin Marchand, 19, of Fitchburg, Mass., above. He and James Eastman, 21, of Waltham took top honors by eating 104 of the fruits apiece. While judges at Bentley College in Waltham, Mass., counted empty skins, Marchand took time out for a snack — you guessed it — another banana.

Ex-Lincolnite Safe After Bailing Out From Plane

A former Lincoln man, Lt. Robert J. Short, was one of two Air Force pilots forced to bail out of their stricken F111 fighter bomber Wednesday, moments before it crashed into the Nevada desert.

Maj. Bob Wright said the men's conditions were not immediately known, but they had radioed their position — about 225 milles north of Las Vegas — to aircraft flying overhead and apparently were not criticially injured.

Short, 26, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Donald Short of 2125 Bradfield Dr. His wife, the former Diane Bryan, is also from Lincoln.

The other pilot was identified as Capt. Benjamin L. Alexander, 26, of Montrose, Colo.

After hearing of the accident, Short's mother said, "I'm certainly delighted to learn he wasn't hurt . . .

"You have to expect this when you have someone flying," she said after a few moments. "The thought always goes through my mind. Then again you would have to expect it if they were out on the highway."

Short, a 1972 graudate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was a member of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC). He has been stationed at Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas for about a year, his mother said.

The jet was on a training mission conducted by the 474th Tactical Fighter Wing from Nellis, Wright said.

Cause of the crash was not immediately known.

It Buys Less Now So $2 Bill Handier

NEW YORK (AP) — Here's something you didn't want to hear about the new $2 bill that will be introduced next week It will buy what $1 15 would buy only 10 years ago

Since 1966, when production of the last series of $2 bills ended the Labor department's consumer price index has jumped 74

Although the new bill was being planned in 1970 before the swift inflation of the past few years, it has become more practical as prices of many goods have soared, a Treasury Department official said Wednesday

"Unquestionably, with what has happened in the market place, a new $2 bill will be very useful," James Conlon, director of the Treasury's Bureau of Engraving and Printing said "For instance, many fast food chains were very enthusiastic about it."

Conlon and Richard Debs, chief administrative officer of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, displayed a stack of the new currency Wednesday in anticipation of the bill's formal debut on Thomas Jefferson's birthday next Tuesday

A key advantage of the new bill, they said, will be the saving on printing and handling costs of $1 bills, about half of which are expected to be replaced by the new bills

The federal government hopes to save $4 million to $7 million a year and the Federal Reserve System hopes to save a total of $27 million over the next five years

The government printed only about six million of the old $2 bills a year Most of the $135 million worth still in circulation are thought to be held by collectors, who value the bills at about $3 each, Conlon said

By contrast, the government will turn out some 400 million of the new bills each year About 225 million bills will have been distributed to the Federal Reserve's member banks by Tuesday, he said "So few were printed that most citizens never had a chance to use one."

He said the scarcity of the bills probably led to the superstitions surrounding them, such as the idea that tearing off a corner "in some way wards off evil spirits"

The front of the new bill, bearing Jefferson's resemblance, is the same size and color as the old one, although some red markings have been removed

In place of Jefferson's home, Monticello, on the back side is a reproduction of John Trumbull's painting, "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence" It shows the signers of the document gathered around a table.

One thing the new $2 bill will buy that the old one couldn't is a British pound—and you would get about 15 cents change

The value of the pound has dropped from about $2.80 in 1966 to about $1 85 today

Army Cadets Accused Of Cheating On Exam

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — About 90 cadets suspected of violating West Point's honor code were accused Wednesday of cheating on an examination in what could be one of the U S Military Academy's worst scandals in its history.

Col. Hal Rhyne, deputy commandant of the 174-year-old Army school, said the accused cadets will go before a 12-member cadet honor board next week.

Others who have been on temporary assignment away from the academy are still to be questioned, he said. They are members of the Cadet Public Relations Council, out recruiting for the Point.

An Army spokesman had reported earlier that about 100 cadets at the Academy could be involved in the cheating scandal

The code by which cadets are instructed to live says they will not lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate those who do

The young men are accused of having collaborated on an examination given to more than 800 students, most of them in their third year, taking Electrical Engineering 304.

The exam in the required course was given in two parts, the first handed out at the beginning March for submission on March 17 and 18. The second part was distributed afterwards, Rhyne said.

He said the first part consisted of an essay and about 10 computations to which the solutions were similar enough to make instructors suspect collaboration. They told Rhyne of their suspicions about March 20

"We're talking about unauthorized collaboration," said Lt Col. Daniel Smmek, the staff judge advocate

The biggest scandal that ever hit this graystone, Gothic school overlooking the Hudson River in the Storm King mountains occurred in 1951. That was the year 37 football players and 53 other cadets resigned after they exchanged exam answers in an organized cheating scheme

Cadet William Andersen, chairman of the 88-member Honor Committee, said he didn't feel the honor system was jeopardized by the current scandal

On Tuesday, a three-member subcommittee of the Honor Committee closeted the more than 100 cadets first suspected of cheating for up to eight or nine hours, Andersen recounted.

The Academy's officers and cadets stressed that there has been no finding yet against any of the suspected students

"Some have already been cleared of wrongdoing and are no longer under investigation," Andersen said

Families With Children Kept From Certain Homes

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (AP) — Families with young children have been banned from parts of this city in southern Florida, and residents who rent or sell homes to such families face jail terms or fines

An ordinance approved by the City Council this week despite the objections of the city attorney imposes a jail term of up to 90 days or a $500 fine, or both, on anyone who sells or rents a home in such areas to a family with children aged 14 or under

The law applies to any area of the city designated as an adult community but officials said it was aimed specifically at the Sunswept Homes subdivision where younger families are moving into a neighborhood designed for adults

"The council is certainly not against children, but this area is a special case" said Pembroke Pines Mayor William Armstrong

Armstrong was the only person on the seven-member council to vote against the ordinance, but he said he approves of the goal

"I just voted against it because the attorney said it was unconstitutional," he said

Councilman James Donlon said the area containing about 1,000 homes was approved by city zoners about 10 years ago to include smaller than standard lots, "because the developer promised that restrictive deed clauses would make it a permanent adult community"

City Attorney James Schweikert said the deed clause expired five years ago, "so people with young children have been moving in, and the others came screaming to the council, saying 'You've got to do something'"

He said the older residents objected to the noise and "kids running up and down the streets

Schweikert strongly opposed the council action, saying it violated the equal protection clause of the U S Constitution He said he could not defend it in court

"I advised the council that I don't think we can sustain the law and would advise the council to retain special counsel if they have to defend a suit because I strongly feel that the ordinance is indefensible," Schweikert said

Schweikert said he expects court challenges

"We've already had four or five people saying 'You can't tell me who to sell my house to'" he said

Food Price Rise May Be Smaller

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday scaled down its official forecast of food inflation for 1976 and one official predicted that grocery price gains will be the smallest in four years.

Scrapping a previous forecast that retail prices would rise 1% in each of the first two quarters of 1976, the department's chief economist said prices held unchanged in the first quarter and may "increase slightly" in the April-June second quarter.

"Lower meat prices from unexpected gains in meat supplies during the first quarter caused most food price indicators to hold steady or even drop," explained economist Don Paarlberg.

Paarlberg added in a later interview that he expects the second quarter increase to be less than the previously predicted 1%. As a result, he said, consumer grocery prices for the first half of this year are now expected to average only 4 to 5% above a year ago instead of the previously forecast 6%.

The official said agriculture experts will not make specific forecasts on food prices in the second half of 1976 until they can look at a survey on 1976-crop planting intentions due later this month.

But if this year's crop prospects are good, he said, "I think prices for the full year 1976 will show an increase over 1975, but it will be the smallest in four years and substantially less than last year."

Retail food prices last year averaged 8.5% above 1974, following jumps of 14.5% in each of the two previous years. The sharp slowdown in food inflation this year has been attributed largely to record 1975 grain crops which led livestock producers — especially cattlemen — to revive meat production which had slumped when feed grain prices were high last year.

Nation's Wheat Crop Is Good To Excellent

Washington (UPI) — The nation's winter wheat crop was in good to excellent condition last week outside drought stricken areas of the southern Great Plains, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials also noted in a weekly crop weather report that mild spring weather across most of the nation has helped farmers get as many as four weeks ahead of normal schedules in their preparation for planting of corn and other spring-seeded crops.

The report said non-irrigated wheat continued in poor condition in the southern Great Plains, lacking the moisture needed to promote growth. Spokesmen for wheat growers recently estimated the drought may have reduced production prospects by 250 million bushels, but they added the remaining harvest will be big enough to meet all domestic and export needs without any price pinch for American consumers.

Administration officials indicated they agree. Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Bell recently said in spite of a wheat crop which probably will be below last year's level, total production of all grains combined is likely to hit another new peak because of a probable new record in corn.

With mild weather and good moisture conditions aiding work on crops planted in the spring, officials said seedings of spring wheat and oats reported to date were ahead of normal for the season. They said corn planting began in Missouri and Tennessee and continued in Virginia last week, about one week ahead of normal schedules.

This Is How It Is Now

Boston (AP) — A reporter and a photographer from the Providence, (R.I.) Journal visited Boston's Charlestown section to find out what the historic area is like 200 years after the nation's birth. They found out the hard way — robbed at knifepoint in a housing project a few blocks from Bunker Hill.

Reporter Tony Lioce, 29, and photographer Bob Emerson, 26, told police they were interviewing in the housing project for a planned bicentennial story when a teen-ager recommended they photograph some abandoned apartments.

They went to the building and soon found three teen-agers wearing ski masks confronting them. One had a switchblade knife. They took Emerson's cameras and lenses, valued at $2,500, and emptied the newsmen's wallets, Lioce and Emerson told police.

Then, upon leaving the building, the newsmen ran into the teen-ager who had suggested they photograph the vacant apartment.

"Guess you learned a lesson, huh?" he asked.

"I guess we did," Lioce told police.

Devaluation No. 8 For '76

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Chile's Central Bank announced an eighth mini-devaluation of the peso for the year Wednesday.

The rates for exports and imports and for tourists purchase of goods went from 11.15 pesos to 11.45 pesos per dollar.

The bank began regular mini-devaluations 1974 to keep the peso on a realistic rate with the dollar.

Jobless Rate Drops

Neurenberg, West Germany (AP) — The number of unemployed in West Germany dropped 156,660 during March to bring the jobless rate down to 5.2% of the total labor force compared with 5.9% in February, the Federal Labor Office reported.

Food Price Rise May Be Smaller

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday scaled down its official forecast of food inflation for 1976 and one official predicted that grocery price gains will be the smallest in four years.

Scrapping a previous forecast that retail prices would rise 1% in each of the first two quarters of 1976, the department's chief economist said prices held unchanged in the first quarter and may "increase slightly" in the April-June second quarter.

"Lower meat prices from unexpected gains in meat supplies during the first quarter caused most food price indicators to hold steady or even drop," explained economist Don Paarlberg.

Paarlberg added in a later interview that he expects the second quarter increase to be less than the previously predicted 1%. As a result, he said, consumer grocery prices for the first half of this year are now expected to average only 4 to 5% above a year ago instead of the previously forecast 6%.

The official said agriculture experts will not make specific forecasts on food prices in the second half of 1976 until they can look at a survey on 1976-crop planting intentions due later this month.

But if this year's crop prospects are good, he said, "I think prices for the full year 1976 will show an increase over 1975, but it will be the smallest in four years and substantially less than last year."

Retail food prices last year averaged 8.5% above 1974, following jumps of 14.5% in each of the two previous years. The sharp slowdown in food inflation this year has been attributed largely to record 1975 grain crops which led livestock producers — especially cattlemen — to revive meat production which had slumped when feed grain prices were high last year.

Nation's Wheat Crop Is Good To Excellent

Washington (UPI) — The nation's winter wheat crop was in good to excellent condition last week outside drought stricken areas of the southern Great Plains, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials also noted in a weekly crop weather report that mild spring weather across most of the nation has helped farmers get as many as four weeks ahead of normal schedules in their preparation for planting of corn and other spring-seeded crops.

The report said non-irrigated wheat continued in poor condition in the southern Great Plains, lacking the moisture needed to promote growth. Spokesmen for wheat growers recently estimated the drought may have reduced production prospects by 250 million bushels, but they added the remaining harvest will be big enough to meet all domestic and export needs without any price pinch for American consumers.

Administration officials indicated they agree. Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Bell recently said in spite of a wheat crop which probably will be below last year's level, total production of all grains combined is likely to hit another new peak because of a probable new record in corn.

With mild weather and good moisture conditions aiding work on crops planted in the spring, officials said seedings of spring wheat and oats reported to date were ahead of normal for the season. They said corn planting began in Missouri and Tennessee and continued in Virginia last week, about one week ahead of normal schedules.

This Is How It Is Now

Boston (AP) — A reporter and a photographer from the Providence, (R.I.) Journal visited Boston's Charlestown section to find out what the historic area is like 200 years after the nation's birth. They found out the hard way — robbed at knifepoint in a housing project a few blocks from Bunker Hill.

Reporter Tony Lioce, 29, and photographer Bob Emerson, 26, told police they were interviewing in the housing project for a planned bicentennial story when a teen-ager recommended they photograph some abandoned apartments.

They went to the building and soon found three teen-agers wearing ski masks confronting them. One had a switchblade knife. They took Emerson's cameras and lenses, valued at $2,500, and emptied the newsmen's wallets, Lioce and Emerson told police.

Then, upon leaving the building, the newsmen ran into the teen-ager who had suggested they photograph the vacant apartment.

"Guess you learned a lesson, huh?" he asked.

"I guess we did," Lioce told police.

Devaluation No. 8 For '76

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Chile's Central Bank announced an eighth mini-devaluation of the peso for the year Wednesday.

The rates for exports and imports and for tourists purchase of goods went from 11.15 pesos to 11.45 pesos per dollar.

The bank began regular mini-devaluations 1974 to keep the peso on a realistic rate with the dollar.

Neurenberg, West Germany (AP) — The number of unemployed in West Germany dropped 156,660 during March to bring the jobless rate down to 5.2% of the total labor force compared with 5.9% in February, the Federal Labor Office reported.

Life Begins At Forty:

Ounce Of Prevention Worth Pound Of Cure

By JOANNE FARRIS

A READER WRITES: Please write a column about locking your car doors when you are out driving.

My wife had a harrowing experience last week. She was driving to have some work done on her car. She pulled up at a light, and I was just enough ahead of her (going to pick her up at the shop while she left the car to have the work done) so that I got through the light before it went red.

While she was waiting for the light to change, a 13- or 14-year-old boy opened the front door and jumped in, and his friend jumped in the back seat. Her purse was on the front seat, so as the boy hopped into the car she pulled the purse over next to her.

The boys demanded her money. She said she only had a dollar, and she refused to give it to them. Instead, she read them the riot act. She told them they should be ashamed of themselves to be acting so; she asked them how they would like it if someone was doing to their mothers what they were doing to her. She told them to get out, go home, and tell their parents what they had done.

Believe it or not, they skedaddled. By the time they did, my wife was shaking so that she could hardly drive the few remaining blocks to the shop where I was waiting for her, terrified that she had been in an accident. Indeed, she had been, but not the kind of accident I expected. She was very spunky and lucky; she is 74, and I am 77, and I don't think I could have done what she did.

The point of my letter to you is to beg you to warn all your readers: Lock the doors of your car whenever you are driving it. Women should also be sure and keep their purse right next to them or on the floor where it cannot be seen from outside the car. You may save someone from going through the traumatic experience which my Gertrude had if you write about car safety.

COMMENT: Your wife was plucky to speak sharply to those would-be terrorists, and I admire her spunk. I am also grateful to you for writing an account of her experience.

Anyone driving a car should learn the habit of locking the doors. Don't forget to lock the back doors. In addition, if we would all lock our cars when we park them a lot of car thefts would be avoided, and no one would ever have the awful experience of finding someone on the floor in the back seat when he or she returned to a parked car. Locking your car at all times is good common sense.

For a woman driver it is wise to put her purse on the floor beside her so that it is out of sight and close to her as she drives, which you suggested.

Another useful precaution is to lock packages and valuable items like golf clubs, cameras, etc., in the trunk so that they are out of sight. Some thieves will break a car window if they think they can get away with the contents before someone discovers them. What's out of sight in the trunk won't attract unwanted attention.

A few more hints along these lines are: Park your car under a streetlight whenever you can, before you go out to your locked car, particularly at night, take your key out of your purse or pocket and have it ready in your hand so that you can unlock your door and step quickly into the car. Whenever possible have someone walk you to your car, especially if it's parked in an out-of-the-way place, or if it's dark.

The old adage still applies: An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

San Francisco — Poets, who are on the radar in matters of love, give May as the choice month for marrying.

But we choose April — the bargains have been pretty well picked over by May.

Start early. This is the time when Samson gets his annual haircut.

Marriage has been bounced around lately what with movie starlets going in for "unstructured relationships."

However, most of the chicks we run into opt for the button-down, license-and-preacher thing. No doubt feeling if you don't button the cat down, he may drift.

"The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," grandma used to say.

Don't know whether that's so anymore. In Grandma's day, girls were taught to bake a light biscuit lest their beau came down with a bellyache before he could demand her hand in wedlock.

☆ ☆ ☆

The bridal season is coming up, girls. Forward march!

"In Spring a young man's fancy
"Lightly turns to thoughts of love."

This is a poetic way of saying young dudes are turned on by the chemistry of the season. They become careless. Candlelight and wine make them dizzy.

The boy is ripe. It's a shame to take the candy. But take it.

It is a curious thing that young muffins grow up to be marriageable. When my older chick had her teeth in braces, the scatter was full of tooth-braced girls.

They sprawled on the floor in sleeping bags. Dripping milk and cake crumbs. They had the volume up on Elvis Presley until the walls bulged.

I felt sorry for them. I thought: "Here's a bunch of no-hopers who will never smell orange blossoms. Unless they get near an orchard."

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, what happened they grew up. They got into white veils. They arm-in-armed it down the aisle with their papas like veterans.

(I must admit they'd changed a lot. I hardly knew them.)

They tossed the bouquets with a little flat spin I taught them myself in backyard football.

The men they married had a dazed look if a salmon in the net. But they looked like they could be put on the right track with morning coffee and a ride to the commute bus.

☆ ☆ ☆

We looked up some odds on the 9 million chicks bent on becoming Mrs. A girl should marry at 23. This is when most chicks score.

Age 30 is a good age to marry and a bad age not to. At year 30 only 55.3 ever marry. No matter how soft the candlelight. No matter how aged the wine.

☆ ☆ ☆

The best age to catch a boy is at 15. The odds that a boy of 15 will marry sometime are 92.4% — the highest the male ever reaches.

A boy of 15 is not much of a catch. Probably some law you have to throw him back. I don't make these odds. I'm just telling you — who are probably making it anyway without anybody meddling.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Ah, love, love! when thou seizeth us
"We may well say, good-bye, prudence!"

You would think with braces on the teeth and a heavy hand with biscuits 9 million girls would never make it.

But Nature is on their side.

Smaller Portions Urged

Grand Island (AP) — The president-elect of the Nebraska Dietetic Assn. says restaurant owners should serve smaller portions.

Mrs. Janice Thayer says that is one of the programs she hopes to implement as president.

Also, she said, restaurants should have foods for salt-free and low roughage diets and offer low-fat dairy products and fresh fruits.

But Mrs. Thayer is not too hopeful of success for that particular program.

Noting the bicentennial, she said eating habits have changed over the last 200 years and not for the better.

"We're eating too much and getting too little exercise today. There's also been a shift in the types of foods we eat," she said.

Through education she hopes to change the emphasis from thinking of nutrition as something to correct a problem, to encouraging good normal nutrition for every human being at each stage of life.

Mrs. Thayer, the mother of three children, will take office in the association this fall.

Poll Shows Old Politics Ineffective In 1976

By LOUIS HARRIS

As far as most Americans are concerned, the old politics are largely finished as a force in the 1976 election. The Harris Survey has found that many of the factors that weighed so heavily in previous contests for the White House over the past 30 years now appear woefully out of date.

This shift is one of the key reasons why many of the liberal Democratic early contenders have faded from the race. Voters are no longer prepared to support the politics on which the New Deal was based.

—By 62-26%, a sizable majority of the public believes that "the trouble with most liberal Democrats is that they think problems can be solved by throwing money at them, and that is wrong."

—By 81-12%, an even larger majority feels that "the trouble with your getting special benefits and handouts from the government these days is that you will have to pay for them four or five times over in higher taxes."

—By 77-14%, a majority also believes that "the candidate for president who promises one group something special from government and another group something else will probably turn out to be a friend of no group if elected."

—An identical 77-14% majority feels that "a candidate who says he can give the unemployed government jobs and not increase federal spending just isn't being honest."

These attitudes are a warning signal to any candidate who resorts to such traditional tactics as making promises of federal help to key segments in the electorate. This sort of appeal appears to have run its course in national politics.

On the Democratic side, there is no doubt that the surprising success of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter can be explained by the fact that he is not pledging vast new government programs. Other Democrats such as Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado and Gov. Hugh Carey of New York have also warned that the old politics of massive governmental solutions no longer work. California's Gov. Jerry Brown is another Democrat who rejects the old New Deal approach to winning the White House.

Louis Harris

Factors Out Of Date

If easy promises are on their way out, the end of Alabama Gov. George Wallace's chances suggests that another familiar strand in American politics, the appeal to easy fear, is finished:

—Despite the four-to-one opposition of the public to school busing for racial purposes, a 69-20% majority feels that "a candidate for president who tries to get the votes of white people by telling them he opposes busing is a hypocrite because if elected, his Administration will have to enforce busing if the U.S. Supreme Court orders it."

—A 58-26% majority is wary of candidates who make a strong appeal to "law and order." They agree that "a candidate for president who accuses his opponent of being 'soft on criminals' probably won't cut the crime rate and could turn out to be crooked himself." This view has become more widespread since Spiro Agnew, a hardliner on the crime issue, had to leave the vice presidency for commiting a criminal act.

Much has been made of the attacks by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Washington Sen. Henry Jackson on the policy of detente as pursued by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Yet, a significant 59-26% majority feels that "a candidate for president who says his opponent is soft on Communism is probably a hypocrite because if elected, he will soon be sitting down in Moscow and Peking to work out agreements with Communist leaders."

In assessing the various hopefuls this year, an overwhelming 86-8% of the electorate feel that "the trouble with most candidates for president is that they are afraid to tell it like it is — that is, tell the public the hard truth about inflation, the recession, energy and other subjects."

Ruling Draws Stinging Dissent

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Justice was thwarted when the Nebraska Supreme Court refused to overlook its own, newly-adopted, operating rules in a Wednesday ruling, according to Judge Hale McCown.

McCown, in a short, stinging, dissenting opinion, wrote "Justice is a fragile thing and can easily be lost in a sea of rules."

His comments came in a majority decision upholding lower court rulings that a renter, Harlan O'Brien, could be removed from land in Buffalo County owned by Lehan Tunks.

The court reasoned that it had no choice in the matter, since rules were not followed to bring the Buffalo County Court transcripts of the original proceedings into the official record in the case.

But McCown contended the decision "represents the triumph of rules over reality."

McCown said there was no reason why the Nebraska Supreme Court could not, on its own, have taken the necessary steps to have the original record brought in as evidence.

Even though formal steps were not taken, McCown observed, it was clear that the original record was considered by the district court of Buffalo County, when the case was appealed the first time.

McCown, noting that the procedures of appeal recently were changed in the state, said that exact compliance with the rules at this time elevates form over substance.

"To deny appellate review under such facts makes a legal mountain out of a procedural molehill," McCown told his fellow justices.

In another ruling the court underlined a paragraph in its ruling upholding the sentencing of three brothers on bad check charges, drawing attention that the brothers avoided Omaha because of a telephone warning system.

The three brothers were arrested in Lincoln. What they apparently were ignorant of was that Lincoln also has a telephone warning system.

Terry, Gary and Duane Wade were sentenced to 18 months to three years in the penal complex on the charges after they were convicted in Lancaster District Court. The three thought they should have received probation.

In other decisions the Supreme Court:

—Upheld the Buffalo County District Court's decision to allow the widow of Ray E. Scott, a janitor at the Grand Island YMCA who drowned after he finished cleaning the pool, Workmens Compensation benefits.

—Agreed with the terms of a divorce decree issued by the Douglas County District court to Elmer and Dorothy Kasper.

—Agreed with the terms of a divorce decree issued by the Buffalo County District court to Thelma and Harold Browers.

—Affirmed the Douglas County District Court's decision in favor of Riekes and sons in a personal injury suit filed by Carl Schwartz.

—Affirmed the Saline County District Court's decision in a deed dispute between Vivian Booth and Deane Wilkinson.

—Reversed and remanded to the Dawson County District court a land dispute filed by Ward Bartlett against Wilbur Kloepping.

Hiss Believed No Communist books by Cynthia

Johnson

In the latter half of the 1940's, Dean Acheson, who was then making fiery anti-communist speeches, defended the tone of his remarks by telling a friend, 'If you don't scare Congress, they'll go fishing "

Perceiving the mind-set of the time, the friend responded, "If you do scare them, they'll go crazy "

And so they did Ironically, as it turned out, ensnaring Acheson's friend in a web of national and congressional hysteria

The friend's name Alger Hiss A symbol to some of communist infiltration into the highest levels of government during the New Deal, to others a symbol of an innocent victim, a man who was in the wrong place at the wrong time

Since the Hiss trials in 1949 and 1950, many researchers and writers have immersed themselves in the case, attempting to shed new light on the still-clouded relationship between Hiss and the self-confessed communist, Whittaker Chambers

The most recent of these attempts has been compiled in a book, "Alger Hiss The True Story ' (Holt, Rinehart & Winston) written by John Chabot Smith, a journalist who covered the Hiss trials for the New York Herald Tribune

Lest anyone mistake his position, Smith admits that, from the outset of the trials, he was reasonably certain of Hiss's innocence

After intensive study preceding his trial reporting assignment, Smith concluded that From the account Hiss had given of himself before the committee (the House Un-American Activities Committee), he didn't sound much like a communist to me or a spy either "

Although he did not become involved in the case until relatively late, Smith does a creditable job with extensive background material on Hiss's life and the events that led up to his ultimate conviction of perjury

The Hiss that Smith describes is a mild-mannered, somewhat naive person who had a social conscience but no traitorous inclinations

A graduate of Johns Hopkins University and the Harvard Law School, Hiss stepped easily into a job as clerk for the then Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes

In successive years, he held positions with the Justice Department and, beginning in 1936, the State Department He served as executive secretary at the Dumbarton Oaks Conference (where the outline for the United Nations was prepared) was a member of the U S delegation at Yalta and served as Secretary General at the San Francisco Conference where the U N charter was drafted

In 1947, he left the State Department to become president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

Then, in 1948, the bombshell was dropped

Testifying before the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC), self-confessed communist Whittaker Chambers said Hiss was a member of a communist cell which had infiltrated the U S government

Shocked by the charge, Hiss requested to appear before the committee to respond

During his HUAC appearances, Hiss was frustrated at every turn, owing primarily to the efforts of Richard Nixon, then a freshman congressman from California

Dissatisfied with HUAC procedures — many of which are detailed in Smith's account — Hiss then brought suit against Chambers for libel

However, things took a turn for the worse when Chambers, looking for some better evidence than he had thus far presented, came up with what he said were copies State Department documents given to him by Hiss

Ultimately, a grand jury indicted Hiss for perjury on the basis of his denials of Chambers' charges (at the same time ignoring Chambers own confession that he had perjured himself)

Because Hiss's attornies didn't have access to all the evidence, the best they could do "at the trials was cast doubt on Chambers' story, and in this case 'reasonable doubt' wasn't enough They couldn't disprove what Chambers said, because they didn't know what really happened And the 'temper of the times' was against them The burden of proof was on the defense rather than the prosecution, in spite of all the constitutional and procedural law on the subject, and the burden was too heavy for the defense to bear "

In his book, Smith offers a readable, detailed analysis of the HUAC hearings and the trials And he presents an interpretation which shows that Chambers had the means, motive and opportunity both to wrongly accuse Hiss and to obtain the controversial government documents on his own

Smith's analysis does not completely clear away the clouds that surround the Hiss case It is doubtful that that will ever be done

The bidding

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	4 ♣	5 ♦	Pass
5 NT	Pass	7 ♦

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

When your side has 33 high-card points, there is an excellent chance for a small slam. With 37 points you can probably make a grand slam.

Of course, some slams are made with fewer points, but this is usually because one or both players have a singleton or a void Such hands naturally require greater bidding skill, with good judgment taking over where point count leaves off

Consider this deal from a team match where both North-South pairs met their obligations in full — though the final contract was not the same

At the first table, West's four club bid was clearly preemptive and North, with a fine trump fit and opening bid values, jumped to five diamonds

South then bid five notrump — the grand slam force — asking North to bid seven with two of the three top trump honors South was willing to gamble that either his partner had the king of spades or that a spade finesse against the king would succeed North dutifully responded seven diamonds, which was easily made, and thus scored 2,140 points

The grand slam was not bid at the second table — but for a good reason The bidding began

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	2 ♣	3 ♦	3 ♥
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	6 ♦

At this point East doubled It wasn't a good double, especially after South had cuebid hearts to show a void. East apparently thought West had a better hand for his two club bid.

South, who had been planning to bid seven diamonds over six, redoubled instead. So North-South failed to reach the grand slam, but this did not hurt them at all They made the contract with an overtrick for a score of 2,180 points, thus gaining 40 points on the exchange of points.

Children Learn About Food

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

With more mothers working and Americans increasingly becoming a "snacking population," Ann Irvine says children are making more decisions than ever before about what foods they'll eat.

"We're trying to get them to make snacks count, not just eat junk food but something that contributes" to good health, and that includes the three main meals, said Mrs. Irvine, home economics consultant for the Lincoln Public Schools.

While students are widely aware that Thursday is National Food Day, varying parts of the school district — from social studies classes to food service workers — play a part every day in teaching children how food affects their own lives.

The kids have learned that changing their eating patterns can be beneficial. "We have a lot of students who don't like breakfast," Mrs. Irvine said, but equally as many do like peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

She counsels that protein-rich "PB&J" is just fine with milk at breakfast, because most standard morning plates lack protein. "There's no sacred thing about having certain things at certain meals," she said.

More than 1,000 boys enrolled in home economics classes last school year, and even more are participating now, Mrs. Irvine said. "We teach nutrition, plus consumer education and decision-making in relation to food.

"We go into how to use and conserve food, how to cook, prepare and store it so you don't lose the nutrients."

For example, in consumer education the focus is on "getting your money's worth" of nutrition, she said. Students are advised to stay away from processed foods, decrease the amount of sugar they eat and increase the bulk. The latter includes eating whole grains instead of white refined flour, and eating more whole fruits and vegetables instead of juice.

Old-fashioned oatmeal gets the nod over "the quick," she said. "We're also concerned with weight control" and the kids learn to count calories, to determine that those come "from the right kinds of foods that make you grow instead of just make you fat."

"We're hitting food nutrition from a variety of angles," she said. Lessons include examining different cultures' diets, from Asian delicacies the new Vietnamese students prefer to Yankee variations such as vegetarianism and "soul food."

"We call it the social side of food," how it affects people and says something about them, Mrs. Irvine said.

Outside home ec, she said, social studies classes have a 9th-grade unit on world hunger, and the health curriculum includes a 5th-grade unit on nutrition. Health students, for instance, feed one white rat a diet with mild products and another without them.

Six weeks later, Mrs. Irvine said, the milk-fed rat will be about a third bigger than the other, who is generally feistier and apt to pick fights.

Edibles have importance in physiology and biology, she said, as "science classes approach food from the internal structure — how the body breaks it down and uses it."

And food service workers give examples of well planned meals that boast variety too. "Elementary school children are encouraged to try new foods," she said, and cafeteria employes will help social studies classes, for example, try out new foods akin to other cultures.

Star Survey Finds Breakfast Surprisingly Popular

Contrary to popular belief, breakfast is not on the way out

At least that is the general consensus of 54 fifth and sixth graders at Norwood Park Elementary School, 4710 N 72nd St

The Star recently asked the children to list everything they had eaten for their previous three meals

Surprisingly, for a generation accustomed to starting the day without a bite, only one of the children answered "nothing" when asked "What did you have for breakfast today?"

Carol M Reed, Norwood Park principal, expressed pleasure with what the kids had for breakfast and that so many of them did, in fact, start the day with something in their stomachs

Cereal was the breakaway winner of the early morning eating poll Half the dids said they had cereal and milk for breakfast, somemixed it with a slice of toast and/or juice

The cereal landslide probably won't have some folds dancing in the streets, however, since many nutrition experts have been blasting the cereal industries for the lack of nutritional content in their puffed, cracked and sugar-coated breakfast treats

About 10 of the children said they started the day with eggs — some adding a strip or two of bacon on toast

Three kids said breakfast was pancakes trimmings, many had toast with or without milk But breakfast consisted of a Poptart and milk for one child Pop and hard rolls was the way another youngster started the day

More than half of the kids indicated they had good, well balanced dinners

But when the dinners were bad, they were bad Some examples of dinners

— Two helpings potatoes and gravy, banana nut bread, kidney beans

— Apricots

— Chocolate malt and "smashed" egg

— Tater tots and Kool-aid

— Beans

— Potatoes and gravy

About half the youngsters apparently had the school lunch, which that day was barbecued beef on a bun celery, apple raisins, milk and peach cobbler However, about half of those didn t eat everything, so this tipped the scales away from a nutritious lunch

The same holds true for those who didn t have the school lunch — half had well-balanced meals the rest had lunches that left something to be desired

Sandwiches cookies fruit milk and snack chips led the well-balanced lunches On the other end of the scale were these noon-time perker uppers

— Toast and fruit cocktail

— Potatoes and milk

— Milk fruit

— Apple banana

From a general viewpoint nutritionists would be aghast that some but not many of the kids went the entire 24 hours without any meat still others went without vegetables

If the kids had their way they would be restricted to a lifelong diet of pizza runsas tacos ice cream cake and cookies That is according to the popularity poll of most liked foods

That diet to the majority thinking would omit spinach — the most mentioned most disliked food — as well as cauliflower broccoli asparagus in the vegetable category liver especially accompanied by oysters fish and yes even meat — roast beef hamburger chicken and all the rest

Don't Let 'Soft Spot' Move To Your Head

DEAR ABBY I went with this man for three years, and it was the real thing, but we had a big fight Before he cooled off, he jumped into a marriage that he regretted right away

I am still single but I have no time for him because he is a married man now and has been for six years

Every time his wife goes to the hospital to have another baby, he calls me at work and sends me telegrams begging me to see him He says he still loves me

To tell the truth I still have a soft spot in my heart for him I know I shouldn t see him but how can I get him out of my heart before I weaken?

STILL CARE

DEAR STILL There is nothing you can do about a "soft spot in your heart" Just make sure it doesn't spread to your head Try to get interested in someone else. Nothing kills an old romance quicker than a new one

Star Survey Finds Breakfast Surprisingly Popular

Contrary to popular belief, breakfast is not on the way out.

At least that is the general consensus of 54 fifth and sixth graders at Norwood Park Elementary School, 4710 N. 72nd St.

The Star recently asked the children to list everything they had eaten for their previous three meals.

Surprisingly, for a generation accustomed to starting the day without a bite, only one of the children answered "nothing" when asked "What did you have for breakfast today?"

Carol M. Reed, Norwood Park principal, expressed pleasure with what the kids had for breakfast and that so many of them did, in fact, start the day with something in their stomachs.

Cereal was the breakaway winner of the early morning eating poll. Half the dids said they had cereal and milk for breakfast; somemixed it with a slice of toast and/or juice.

The cereal landslide probably won't have some folds dancing in the streets, however, since many nutrition experts have been blasting the cereal industries for the lack of nutritional content in their puffed, cracked and sugar-coated breakfast treats.

About 10 of the children said they started the day with eggs — some adding a strip or two of bacon on toast.

Three kids said breakfast was pancakes trimmings; many had toast with or without milk. But breakfast consisted of a Poptart and milk for one child. Pop and hard rolls was the way another youngster started the day.

More than half of the kids indicated they had good, well balanced dinners.

But when the dinners were bad, they were bad. Some examples of dinners:

— Two helpings potatoes and gravy, banana nut bread, kidney beans.

— Apricots.

— Chocolate malt and "smashed" egg.

— Tater tots and Kool-aid.

— Beans.

— Potatoes and gravy.

About half the youngsters apparently had the school lunch, which that day was barbecued beef on a bun, celery, apple, raisins, milk and peach cobbler. However, about half of those didn't eat everything, so this tipped the scales away from a nutritious lunch.

The same holds true for those who didn't have the school lunch — half had well-balanced meals, the rest had lunches that left something to be desired.

Sandwiches, cookies, fruit, milk and snack chips led the well-balanced lunches. On the other end of the scale were these noon-time perker-uppers:

— Toast and fruit cocktail.

— Potatoes and milk.

— Milk, fruit.

— Apple, banana.

From a general viewpoint, nutritionists would be aghast that some, but not many, of the kids went the entire 24 hours without any meat, still others went without vegetables.

If the kids had their way they would be restricted to a lifelong diet of pizza, runsas, tacos, ice cream, cake and cookies. That is, according to the popularity poll of most-liked foods.

That diet, to the majority thinking, would omit spinach — the most mentioned, most disliked food — as well as cauliflower, broccoli, asparagus in the vegetable category; liver, especially, accompanied by oysters, fish and, yes, even meat — roast beef, hamburger, chicken and all the rest.

Don't Let 'Soft Spot' Move To Your Head

DEAR ABBY: I went with this man for three years, and it was the real thing, but we had a big fight. Before he cooled off, he jumped into a marriage that he regretted right away.

I am still single, but I have no time for him because he is a married man now and has been for six years.

Every time his wife goes to the hospital to have another baby, he calls me at work and sends me telegrams begging me to see him. He says he still loves me.

To tell the truth, I still have a soft spot in my heart for him. I know I shouldn't see him, but how can I get him out of my heart before I weaken?

Jackson Asks Backer Cut From Ballot

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

US Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., has asked Nebraska Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann to remove George Burr's name from the ballot as a Democratic delegate candidate pledged to Jackson.

Beermann has notified Jackson that he will not remove Burr even though Burr was not approved for inclusion in the slate of Jackson delegates.

"Because of legal, administrative and ethical reasons we are therefore leaving the name of George T. Burr on the official ballots," Beermann wrote.

In a letter sent to Beermann last week, Jackson said, "Pursuant to national and state Democratic Party rules, I have formally approved a full slate of delegates committed to my candidacy.

"As Mr. Burr was not on this list, I respectfully request that his name be removed from the ballot."

Under new rules for Democratic convention delegate candidates, all candidates must be approved by their respective presidential candidates, if they run committed.

The rule is intended to insure that delegate candidates are genuinely supporting the presidential candidates they have declared for and to prevent an excessive number of candidates committed to one candidate from diluting the vote.

Burr apparently managed to beat the new delegate rules which have some Democrats grumbling.

Beermann said Burr had his filing as a delegate candidate notarized on Aug. 24, 1975. On Aug. 25, Beermann notified the national and state Democratic Party that he had adtoped the rules requiring presidential contenders' approval for pledged delegate candidates.

The next day, Burr's filing arrived in the secretary of state's office. Beermann said since Burr's filing was notarized the day before the rules were adopted, the state was not bound to refuse Burr's candidacy.

Beermann said the news media and others were periodically given lists of delegate filings. Twice after the filing deadline, delegate lists including Burr were given the Jackson committee.

"Still, no objections came forth. At no time did any person under the provisions of Nebraska statutes challenge this filing," Beermann said.

In addition, Beermann cited physical problems which prevent the removal of Burr's name. Absentee ballots bearing Burr's name had to be ready for distribution by April 6. Douglas County is using an optical scanning method for counting ballots and Beermann said those ballots have been printed.

Amin Cuts Off Oil Headed For Little Rwanda

Nairobi, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin is blocking all oil shipments to neighboring Rwanda, bringing the economy of that small impoverished East African nation to a standstill, diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

The sources said Amin imposed the blockade after his nation's own oil supplies were curtailed in a dispute with neighboring Kenya over Amin's claims to Kenyan territory.

Amin apparently refused to lift the oil blockade Wednesday after a day of crisis talks with Maj. Gen. Juvenal Habyarimana, president of Rwanda, in the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

Parents' Neglect Leads To Foster Homes

By United Press International

Parental neglect is the leading cause for placing a child in foster care, according to preliminary findings of a Nebraska Department of Pbulic Welfare study.

The main reasons for parental neglect were insufficient income, unemployment, heavy child-rearing responsibilities and family conflicts.

"The statewide study, the first of its kind in recent years, was conducted as the intial step in developing a departmental plan to improve child welfare services," said Larry E. Nedrow, chief of the department's division of social services.

"When this profile on foster children in Nebraska is completed in July," he said, "the division plans to initiate programs to emphasize and coördinate services to the family at the local community level in an effort to reduce the need for foster care placements."

Of the 2,964 children in the survey, 1,950 were 10 years or older. Children 15 or older made up 45%.

Other findings:

—1,227 children were still in their original placement but 435 had been placed at least four times.

—1,176 children have been in placement more than two years. A big majority of foster children were in non-institutional placement with long-term foster family home care the most common.

—more than half the children have both parents living, one-third have one parent alive and 9.4% reported both parents deceased or unknown.

—adoption was cited in the future plans of 15% of the children and nearly 10% were scheduled to return home. A total of 1,307 children, 46%, were to remain in foster care indefinitely and 16.7% were awaiting the age of majority.

Nedrow said the final study results will be released in July.

Feds 'Full Defendants' In Omaha Bus Buying Case

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz Wednesday ordered the federal government to become a full defendant in a taxation without representation case filed against the Omaha Board of Education.

Schatz acted on a motion filed by Omaha School Board attorneys last Wednesday requesting the government become a full defendant since the suit by Free Americans for Constitutional Taxation (FACT) involved the school district's integration order from the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Schatz denied a Justice Department request filed last Friday that it be only a "friend of the court" in the case.

In agreeing with the school district, Schatz said the absence of the government in the case would leave several defendants subject to "a substantial risk of incurring inconsistent obligations."

FACT contends the school district shouldn't use taxpayer dollars to purchase buses for the integration plan without voter approval. The Omaha area citizens group further alleges the legislative branch of government has the sole power of authorizing expendures and not the judiciary.

Last Friday, Schtaz declined to issue a temporary restraining order against the school district, and on Monday, the Board of Education contracted with a private firm to lease buses for the upcoming school year.

FACT has asked Schatz for a hearing on a temporary injunction against the school district, but the judge has yet to set a date.

FACT has said it will take its case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Schatz is expected to approve an integration plan later this month.

Peery Trial Testimony Possible Next Week

Testimony may begin Wednesday in the trial of Wesley H. Peery in the shooting death of Mrs. Marriane Mitzner almost 10 months ago.

The woman's body was found June 6, 1975, in a restroom at the Mitzner Rare Coin Shop, 6106 Havelock. She was bound and gagged and had been shot three times in the head, police said.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys in the case have been questioning potential jurors for the past two days to select the jurors who will hear the case.

Court observers are speculating that the trial may last several weeks. The first degree murder and robbery charges against Peery have already been hotly contested.

Peery's attorneys, Donald Hays and Stanley Cohen won a reversal in September of Lancaster County Judge Jeffre Cheuvront's decision to bind Peery over for trial on the charges.

Lancaster District Judge Sam Van Pelt ordered another preliminary hearing in the case. The Lancaster County Attorney's Office was successful the next time in passing that hurdle.

Cohen and Hays started the cases as Peery's private attorneys. Several weeks ago, however, they said that Peery's family had not paid them as anticipated, and asked Judge Dale Fahrnbruch to appoint them or other attorneys to defend Peery.

Fahrnbruch has since appointed the pair to defend Peery in the case at taxpayer expense.

Four Protestants Killed In N. Ireland

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI) — An IRA bomb and ambush killed four Protestants Wednesday.

A woman member of the Ulster Defense Regiment, the regular Protestant militia manned by local volunteers, died when gunmen ambushed two jeeps on night patrol near Armagh, 35 miles south of Belfast. She was killed when her jeep swerved to avoid the gunfire and crashed.

At Dromore, 12 miles south of Belfast, a 64-year-old merchant, his wife and their 27-year-old daughter died when an incendiary bomb left in their store triggered a blaze that gutted the shop and the upstairs apartment where the family was sleeping.

Ed Board Offer Appears Firm

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Taking a firm position with an air of finality, Lincoln Board of Education contract negotiators declared plainly that teachers had better not expect overall pay and fringe benefit increases much beyond the 7.17% the board offered Wednesday.

"The Lincoln Education Association appears to want to make an inching movement" toward the percentage compromise, to which the board team will reply in kind, said chief negotiator Terry Workman.

But "We cannot make many more moves on behalf of the board," he said, hinting openly at no settlement unless LEA demands get below 8%. LEA negotiator John Rogers, an East High music teacher, said the association's 1.66% drop last week to 8.6% is "not inching."

The LEA team Wednesday opened with a counterproposal of 8.33%, then cut that to 8.08%, an increase of $1.5 million on the current $18.6 million pay-fringe budget.

While the gap now at issue is one full percentage point, the board team's 7.17% offer represents a $1.3 million boost, putting the deciding distance only at $169,147.

Not Many To Go

"We will probably be inching the next go-around," said LEA Executive Director Robert F. Peterson. "Well," Workman replied, "we don't have many inches to go."

Workman deplored the LEA's previous "hard-line talk" about possibly having a fact-finding team recommend a compromise, or going to the State Court of Industrial Relations, saying that "does not really get us anywhere."

Workman said the public schools pay raises have exceeded those of other Lincoln public employes in the past few years, at 10.5%, 10.3% and before the recession, 5.5%.

"There's no way that we can continue to have high percentages for everyone," Workman stated, adding that the value of fringe benefits the board offered ($170,269 plus the current $424,863) compensates for the tight pay stance.

Workman said Lincoln board members, attending a national convention next week and comparing contract boosts elsewhere, may return with adverse reactions to LEA's demands.

"It is not the board's intent to go to court or fact-finding — not because of money, but because of (teacher) morale," Workman said. Either course would "jeopardize" good board-association relations, he said.

Moreover, Workman insisted that Lincoln teachers' pay, their "cafeteria" options for fringe benefits and the district's commitment to fund staff development are "far superior than anywhere in the state."

Already Exceeded

And the board's latest offer is "now above the cost of living" or inflation rise. Workman said further that "indirect benefits" such as the district's cost for retirement programs and Social Security payments aren't reflected in the final percentage. If they were, he said, the total per cent increase would already exceed LEA demands.

Peterson agreed the district is "remarkably fine" for teachers and said he's confident of sustained good relations.

And while "I feel we're very close to settlement," he replied that previous agreements were actually underpaid because of staff shifts, and didn't keep up with inflation.

The LEA must try not only to "catch up, but improve" teachers' relative pay position, to capture what was lost before and hedge against future inflation, he said.

The board's 7.17% offer would increase the $8,415 base pay for inexperienced, beginning teachers to $8,705. The LEA came down to $8,800. If the board package were adopted, it would mean an estimated property levy increase of 2.5 mills. Current total levy is 51.379.

The teams reached agreement on two more fringe benefit items. One grants teachers paid leaves for family deaths, up to five days per occurrence. The LEA won a broadened policy to cover in-laws. Estimated cost: $5,700.

Emergency Fill-In

The second states that teachers will not be required to cover a class when substitutes are unavailable, except in emergencies when staff assignments must be made equitably, not always relying on a few individuals. For that, the LEA dropped its request for compensatory time for the extra duties.

The teams debated a proposal for professional leave, but the board finally backed off, saying inequitable eligibility might cause morale problems. The LEA offered to drop the demand if the board would allow 25 hours staff development credit for pay raises. The item was deferred.

Board attorney Ed Perry said he's reached "substantial agreement" with the LEA lawyer on new language to comply with legal rulings on leaves for maternity, sickness and personal reasons.

President May Be Planning To Visit

Omaha (AP) — Is he or isn't he? — Only President Ford and his closest political advisors know, and then the decision appears to be only tentative, but it looks like Ford will make a campaign trip to Nebraska, most likely to Omaha, before the state's May 11 presidential primary.

Rumors of Ford's trip to the state where he was born have been circulating for several weeks, but officials have only confirmed the possibility of such a trip.

However, the tentative planning stages of a possible trip were confirmed for the Associated Press Wednesday by several Nebraska Republicans.

Since the assassination attempts of last year, the White House has been reluctant to publicize the President's schedule too far in advance. When asked Wednesday about a possible Ford visit to Nebraska, the White House said it had nothing to announce on the President's travel beyond his trip to Texas this weekend.

Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., was the most solid source in tracking down the possibility of the trip. The Omaha lawmaker, a candidate for the GOP nomination for the Senate seat being vacated by the retiring Sen. Roman Hruska, also a Republican, said that as he understands it, the presidential visit is tentatively being slated for May 10, the day before the primary.

"Somebody (from Ford's campaign staff) talked (about the Nebraska visit) with somebody on my staff. I don't know who talked with whom," said McCollister in a telephone interview late Wednesday.

"I can't confirm the date, but I think it's May 10. I understand that (date) was talked about," McCollister added.

McCollister, who has tried to keep a "neutral" stance in the presidential race, said his main concern about the visit is where he was going to be the day of Ford's planned visit. "I can't even tell you that at this moment," the congressman said.

A spokesman for Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., also confirmed that the senator's office has been contacted about a possible visit to Nebraska.

"Our office has been contacted by the White House about the possibility of President Ford going to Nebraska, and Sen. Curtis expects he (Ford) will go to Nebraska to campaign. That's all I can say," said the Curtis spokesman in a telephone interview.

William Barrett of Lexington, the head of Ford's campaign in the state, said he "can't confirm, or deny" the visit.

"I can't say a thing. My lips are sealed," said Barrett, the former head of the Nebraska GOP.

"I think there is a good chance of a Ford visit, as I indicated a couple of weeks ago," said Barrett in a telephone interview. "I think the chances (of the trip) have increased considerably that the President will be here, but more than that I just can't say."

RODDENBERRY . . . you don't plan to create a phenomenon.

Originator Of 'Star Trek' Marvels At Fans' Loyalty

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

It's like the old movie in which Dr. Frankenstein loses control of a seemingly docile creation.

Star Trek originator Gene Roddenberry never anticipated the fierce-loyalty-bordering-on-madness his brainchild would arouse.

"Obviously not — only a lunatic writer could sit down and say, 'Well, today I'll create a phenomenon'," he told University of Nebraska-Lincoln students Wednesday. "I kept thinking it (the Trekkie craze) would all go away.

"My own father used to go around and apologize to the neighbors. He's say, 'I know he's into something crazy now, but just wait. He'll write a great American western'."

Seven years after the starship Enterprise was blasted off NBC by low ratings ("I came one year from being a millionaire," Roddenberry sighs), Star Trek remains popular.

Around And Around

Currently on its twelfth to fourteenth syndicated rerun, it is seen in 142 U.S. television markets and 54 foreign countries. "Lately we've been getting an increasing amount of mail in Arabic — none of which we can read," Roddenberry said.

By one count, 14 local journalists wanted interviews with the creator of phasers, transporters and Klingon warships.

The Nebraska Union Program Council sponsored Roddenberry's visit.

Four times a year, he makes 7- to 10-day Star Trek speaking tours. Twice a year, he attends Star Trek conventions because "the fans have been really good to us. We owe it to them to say thank you."

Conventions Scary

"The conventions scare the hell out of me," Roddenberry admits. "I'm not a performer. I get no joy out of having a hundred people coming at me, screaming and laughing."

But he quickly defends Trekkies, fanatical Star Trek fans who sometimes paint themselves green, wear pointed ears and act Vulcan a la Dr. Spock, a popular series character.

"Yes, we have some people who run around going 'wo-wo-wo'," he said. "But they're probably not doing anything crazier than what I've seen at Masonic meetings."

The show's success partially is due to its combination of drama and science fiction, Roddenberry said.

"Blinking lights are a small part of science fiction. You can't make a story out of a zap gun any more than you can out of a revolver. The story is what happens to the person who holds it."

Movie Scheduled

In October, Roddenberry begins filming a full length, multi-million dollar Star Trek movie, probably with the original television cast.

If it is successful, there will be sequels and possibly a television series. Roddenberry denies it is an attempt to "make a quick buck."

Medical Services Concern Havelock

Concerned Havelock neighborhood residents met Wednesday night to discuss the lack of adequate medical facilities in their area.

The meeting, chaired by VISTA organizer Roger Jaffe, was attended by about 20 residents who expressed a desire to have the nursing station services provided by the county expanded; to discuss new life for the Northgate Clinic at 62nd and Platte; and to determine ways to attract a doctor to the area.

The clinic has been closed since the doctor who owned and operated it retired several years ago. The Havelock Businessmen's Association has purchased some of the equipment in the clinic so that the building and business could remain intact.

Havelock presently has an optometrist and a dentist, but a family physician hasn't been in the area for nearly a decade, according to several citizens.

The nursing station operates out of the Havelock school and the YMCA but steps in those buildings create a problem for some of the patients.

Five goals were adopted by the group which also planned another, more in-depth look at the situation at a future meeting.

The goals, getting the nursing station on a ground level; studying the reopening of the clinic; attempting to attract a doctor; contacting industry in the area for support of a doctor for their plant services; and a meeting with interested groups to discuss the future of medical services in Havelock.

Members of the Havelock Businessmen's group, the County Health Department, the Lancaster County Medical Society and others will be invited to the meeting at a date to be announced.

City Of Hope Honors Lincoln Civic Leader

Leo Hill

Well-known Lincoln civic leader Leo Hill was honored by the City of Hope national medical center with the National Humanitarian Award and the establishment of a research fund during a banquet Wednesday night.

Hill, chairman of the board of Northwestern Metal, is the first Lincoln man to receive the honor and has been named Nebraska Man of the Year. Proceeds from the banquet went to the research fund in Hill's name.

Leonard Schaffer, vice president of the City of Hope, was the keynote speaker at the event. He is chairman of the board of Monro-Matic and president of three other companies.

Hill is a former B'nai B'rith regional governor; board member of the American Legion, YMCA, Multiple Sclerosis Society and Urban League and a past president of the Lincoln Symphony, Cornhusker Boy Scout Council, Lincoln Broadway Theatre League and the Lincoln Community Playhouse.

Lincoln Man Critically Burned In House Fire

A Lincoln man is in critical condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center with burns received in a house fire at 2635 N. 61st Wednesday afternoon.

Firemen said that Terry Sparks, 30, was found in a hallway between the living room and kitchen of the house he rents from Alfred Calvert. Sparks suffered second and third degree burns over 40% of his body, they said.

The fire is believed to have started in a TV set in the living room. Two kerosene lanterns on top of the television also ignited and added to the heat and smoke which damaged most of the home. The living room was gutted, firemen said.

15 Vehicles Damaged

Nearly $2,000 damage was done to 15 vehicles owned by DeBrown Leasing, 1646 N St., sometime early Wednesday morning.

Lincoln police said that the building was broken into and windshields and other window glass was broken out of cars and vans in the building with a total damage estimate of $1860. In addition, $200 in cash was taken from the building, police said.

Vandals Damage Building

Vandals did approximately $1200 property damage to windows on the Farmers Mutual of Nebraska building at 1220 J Street sometime Tuesday, according to police.

Police said a BB gun was apparently used to damage the 6' by 6' area of glass.

West Lincolnites Debate Park Along Nance Ave.

A citizen information meeting sponsored by the City and Urban Development Department Wednesday evening turned into a heated debate as about 35 west Lincoln residents discussed a proposal to develop a park in the area.

The recommended site for the park is between 1st and 4th Sts. on both sides of Nance Ave.

The discussion ended with a poll of area residents. Thirty-one persons said they wanted a park, four said they did not and one person had no opinion.

In a vote on the proposed site for the park, 14 persons favored the location, 12 persons voted against the site and three had no opinion.

The Community Development Task Force will review the results of the information meeting and will present its report to the City Council Monday evening.

Handcuffed Suspect Arrested After Hour-Long Police Chase

A 29-year-old Lincoln man, arrested late Wednesday night for shoplifting some dog food at the Belmont Jack and Jill Store at 11th and Cornhusker Highway, ran, handcuffed, from the scene and eluded Lincoln police for nearly an hour.

Officers aided by the police helicopter, searched an area bounded by Interstate 80, Cornhusker and Belmont Ave. before the man, Jack Shotsman, 29, of 2164 Clinton was arrested about a block north of the store.

One-Room School Alive To Kids' Hollers Again

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

McCool Junction — Students in York and surrounding counties are getting a firsthand look at the kind of school Grandpa walked five miles to through rain, snow and cold to get his education.

The one-room, District 73 school that was built 100 years ago is once again alive with the cries of "Andy-Andy Over" during recess.

The idea of giving city kids a chance to see what a rural education was all about was spearheaded by Evadena Peterson and her sister Amelia for the Newly Retired Teacher Organization in York.

Evadena vouches for the authenticity of the school's furnishings — save for the propane stove that heats the room.

"I began my teaching career in York County in a school something like this," she said. "Only we had to start the fire in the morning with coal or cobs."

Half Day Of Slates

The retired teachers will act as hostesses for visiting teachers and classes that will spend a half day writing on slates and throwing a ball over the building in the traditional "Andy Over" recess game

A big picture of George Washington, which Evadena says was also traditional in one-room schools, overlooks the recitation bench. The rows of desks are complete with ink wells for dipping hair into.

The sign above the teacher's desk admonishes pupils that "Silence Is Golden," and Evadena believes that could teach modern-day teachers a lesson.

'Discipline Essential'

"Discipline was essential in this kind of school," she said. "It had to be quiet so students could think and study on their own, while the teacher worked with other classes."

Students aren't given much time to study quietly under today's more open teaching techniques, she said.

Evadora retired last year after spending the last 14 years for her career teaching Latin at North High School in Omaha.

Modern facilities and teaching tools available to students are valuable, she said, but much of what was worthwhile in the old system has been lost.

If a student got bored in a one-room school, they could listen to the lessons given older students or help their classmates, she said.

"You don't have to have a modern set-up if you have a creative teacher, which you had to be, and interested students," shes aid.

Similar But Modern

Gladys Luebbe isn't sure what all the excitement about one-room schoolhouses is, because she teaches in a similar, but more modern facility near the old building.

"This will be great for us," Mrs. Luebbe said. "With only five pupils it gets kind of boring out here. Normally we don't have enough to even play ball."

Mrs. Luebbe's students will continue their normal studies in the new school, she said, including work on the class project of writing a history of the old building.

"When it was first built, a cut-off of the Oregon Trail went by near here, and the wagon ruts were so deep, they couldn't play ball there." Mrs. Luebbe said.

At one time there were 30-40 students including high schoolers in the building, the class learned, but Mrs. Luebbe said 10 would be the ideal number.

Ex-Policeman Charged With Hiring Hit Man

Omaha (AP) — A former Omaha police detective and unsuccessful candidate for Douglas County sheriff was released Wednesday on bond after being charged with conspiracy to commit first degree murder.

Robert O. Lickert, 52, now the president of the National Security Co., which he founded after retiring from the Police Division in 1962, appeared before Municipal Court Judge A. Q. Wolf Wednesday afternoon.

Earlier in the day, Deputy Douglas County Atty. Sam Cooper filed the charges, which allege that Lickert hired a man to kill Leonard J. "Moe" Gass, 32, a convicted gambler and a potential witness in a local gambling case in federal court.

Cooper said the arrest was made after Lickert was observed by the FBI for several weeks.

Cooper said Lickert allegedly hired the hit man for $1,000, and gave the man detailed descriptions of Gass' residence and other places Gass frequents, and that he also allegedly provided the ammunition and made an advance payment on the "contract."

Judge Wolf set bond at $20,000, and set a preliminary hearing for April 16. Wolf also advised newsmen that he will allow no photographs in the courtroom, the hallways or anyplace else in the old police station, which is now used as a Municipal Courthouse and jail.

Lickert was arrested Tuesday night as he allegedly made part of the $1,000 payment to the hired killer.

Police said it was the man Lickert allegedly hired, an Omahan on federal parole, who tipped them to the plot.

According to police reports, the unidentified man first worked with the FBI then with police in gathering evidence against Lickert.

Lickert met with the man several times during the past week to discuss the plan, and the meetings were observed by police and the conversations were taped through the use of a microphone hidden on the informant's person.

According to the police reports, Lickert wanted Gass killed because he knew of some of Lickert's gambling debts, and he wanted him killed by April 2, because of the impending start of a federal gambling trial.

Gass, also a former policeman, told authorities that he could think of only one person who might want him dead — the estranged husband of the woman he is dating. After being told of the plan, Gass also agreed to work with police, and dropped out of sight.

The informant then allegedly told Lickert that the contract had been carried out, showing him a bloody blanket and Gass' driver's license as proof when the arrest was made.

In 1974, Lickert won the Democratic primary for Douglas County sheriff, but lost in the general election to incumbent Sheriff Ted Janing by about 21,000 votes.

4 Gambling Defendants Waive Right To Trial

Omaha (UPI) — Four defendants in a federal gambling case Wednesday acknowledged the government's evidence, including conversations from wiretaps, was correct and waived the right to a jury trial.

The stipulations placed the fate of the four in the hands of U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz, who has little alternative but to find the defendants guilty since they acknowledged the prosecution's evidence was without error.

Wednesday's action, however, preserves the right of the four defendants to appeal on alleged government pre-trial errors, including an allegation the government's information from wiretaps was obtained illegally.

Public Won't Know

By virtue of plea bargaining actions Wednesday, evidence alleging involvement of Omaha area public officials in the gambling conspiracy will never be fully known.

Those waiving a jury trial Wednesday were John Salanitro, Paul Cappellano Sr., his son, Paul Jr., and Frank Bonfiglio.

Salanitro was the only one of the 18 original defendants charged with all five counts in the indictment handed down by a federal grand jury a year ago. Paul Cappellano Jr., was charged with two counts, and his father and Bonfiglio with one each.

The government Wednesday agreed to drop three of the five charges against Salanitro and one of the two against Paul Cappellano Jr.

The remaining three defendants, Maxie Abramson, Wayne Womochil and Gordon Olsen face one count each of gambling conspiracy, and the jury selection process continues in their case.

'Not Pressured'

Following the evidence stipulation Wednesday, Salanitro said he was "definitely not pressured" into waiving his right to a trial, adding, "I'm not bitter against anyone."

"I don't want to say anything more out of school," Salanitro said, "until the judge reviews the case."

Earlier Wednesday, another defendant, Bert Reid Howard, 43, pleaded guilty to two counts, including one of attempting to influence public officials in connection with the gambling operation.

Howard admitted to the government allegation that he purchased drinks for then Omaha Assistant City Prosecutor Anthony Troia, who was an unindicted co-conspirator in the case. Howard said he gave his attorney at the time, Walter J. Matejka, a car for Troia's use free of charge.

Officials 'Unnamed'

In addition to Troia, the government also alleged there were other "unnamed" public officials involved in the gambling conspiracy but Wednesday's action by the four defendants rules out any further public disclosures in that area.

If Salanitro is found guilty by Schatz of the gambling conspiracy count, the government agreed to a 15-month prison sentence. If he is found guilty on the second count the government agreed to a two-year suspended prison sentence or probation.

The government made no agreements for the sentencing of the Cappellanos or Bonfiglio.

Salanitro and the three other defendants agreed to government facts that if FBI agents and Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. were called as witnesses they would testify from their personal knowledge to conversations obtained from wiretaps.

The defendants stipulated to using a "call diverter" service at the residence of Paul Cappellano Sr. to divert calls from bettors to locations used by Salanitro and Paul Cappellano Jr. to accept wagers over the telephone.

The defendants agreed they conducted a gambling operation involving five or more persons with a gross revenue of $2,000 or more on one or more single days between August 1, 1973 and January 30, 1974.

The remaining three defendants, Maxie Abramson, Wayne Womochil and Gordon Olsen face one count each of gambling conspiracy, and the jury selection process continues in their case.

'Not Pressured'

Following the evidence stipulation Wednesday, Salanitro said he was "definitely not pressured" into waiving his right to a trial, adding, "I'm not bitter against anyone."

"I don't want to say anything more out of school," Salanitro said, "until the judge reviews the case."

Earlier Wednesday, another defendant, Bert Reid Howard, 43, pleaded guilty to two counts, including one of attempting to influence public officials in connection with the gambling operation.

Howard admitted to the government allegation that he purchased drinks for then Omaha Assistant City Prosecutor Anthony Troia, who was an unindicted co-conspirator in the case. Howard said he gave his attorney at the time, Walter J. Matejka, a car for Troia's use free of charge.

Officials 'Unnamed'

In addition to Troia, the government also alleged there were other "unnamed" public officials involved in the gambling conspiracy but Wednesday's action by the four defendants rules out any further public disclosures in that area.

If Salanitro is found guilty by Schatz of the gambling conspiracy count, the government agreed to a 15-month prison sentence. If he is found guilty on the second count the government agreed to a two-year suspended prison sentence or probation.

The government made no agreements for the sentencing of the Cappellanos or Bonfiglio.

Salanitro and the three other defendants agreed to government facts that if FBI agents and Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. were called as witnesses they would testify from their personal knowledge to conversations obtained from wiretaps.

The defendants stipulated to using a "call diverter" service at the residence of Paul Cappellano Sr. to divert calls from bettors to locations used by Salanitro and Paul Cappellano Jr. to accept wagers over the telephone.

The defendants agreed they conducted a gambling operation involving five or more persons with a gross revenue of $2,000 or more on one or more single days between August 1, 1973 and January 30, 1974.

ABP Creditor Said Equally Guilty'

Omaha (UPI) — American Beef Packers Inc. said Wednesday its mainline creditor was "equally as guilty, if not more so" than ABP in a funding diversion which contributed to ABP's limited bankruptcy leaving creditors holding some $31 million in debts.

Lyle Strom, an Omaha attorney representing ABP, made the allegation in attempting to have 28 convictions against ABP overturned by U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney.

Last January, Denney found ABP and its founder, Frank R. West, guilty of a multimillion dollar scheme to defraud General Electric Credit Corp., ABP's mainline creditor.

Mail, Wire Fraud

The 28 convictions in question involved mail and wire fraud in a scheme the government said at one time diverted into ABP coffers more than $4 million in accounts receivable payments designated for General Electric Credit.

Strom told Denney Wednesday General Electric Credit was "equally as guilty, if not more so" than American Beef in GECC's apparent knowledge of the diversion before it was discovered by a Northwestern National Bank official in Omaha.

"I have an almost impossible time," Strom said, "in seeing how this constitutes a crime."

Assistant U.S. Atty. Michael Schleich, who prosecuted ABP and West, said regardless of GECC's responsibility, the corporation wasn't indicted. Thus its role had no bearing on ABP's guilt.

Denney declined to reconsider his earlier verdicts, but did take the remaining four of the 32 verdict total under advisement.

Those four convictions concerned wire fraud and illegal transportation of fraudulently obtained cattle. The charges were filed in connection with the purchase of 150 head of cattle from a Sidney feedlot and transporting them to ABP's Fort Morgan, Colo., plant.

The cattle were owned by William Chapman, president of Chapman Cattle Co., of Omaha, and valued at $69,500.

Chapman, former co-chairman of the ABP creditors committee and now on the firm's board of directors, testified he made an unsuccessful attempt to recover the cattle, but they apparently had been processed and sold.

Strom argued the bulk of the actions on the Chapman cattle purchase occurred after ABP filed limited bankruptcy and thus Chapman was bound by bankruptcy statutes to wait for his money as did everyone else.

West To Appeal

West's attorneys are scheduled to appear before Denney Friday on similar motions, and Denney said he would wait until he hears West's motions before ruling on the entire matter.

Denney said he felt he was one of the "most reasonable judges in the country" in only fining ABP a total of $3,200, or $100 on each count. Denney could have levied a maximum fine of $5,000 on each charge.

At the time, Denney said he levied the lesser amount because any ABP fine would have to be paid by creditors. The ultimate objective, Denney said, was repayment of the creditors and getting the one-time meatpacking giant back on its feet.

High Schoolers Protest Election

Mitchell (AP) — In apparent protest of the results of a special election Tuesday, most 7th through 12th grade students in the Sunflower School District didn't show up for school Wednesday, according to School Supt. Joe Herner.

In Tuesday's election, voters in the rural district north of here voted 138-86 to dissolve the district.

Under the plan, kindergarten through 6th-graders will continue to attend classes in the Sunflower School, but 7th- through 12th-graders would attend classes in the Mitchell School District.

Vernon Keener, head of the Sunflower Board of Education, said he was unhappy with the results and that he had expected a much closer count.

Most of the students in the district campaigned actively against the consolidation, and held a mini demonstration near the school Tuesday.

Horner said very few of the 95 to 100 upper level students showed up for classes Wednesday, but that he expected them back in school Thursday.

Horner said the students haven't lost any days this year because of bad weather, so he doesn't think the day will have to be made up. However, he added, the school board will have to make that decision.

Keener said some high school teachers in the district will probably lose their jobs as the result of the election's outcome, but that some of them might get hired at Mitchell.

Wymore Man Dies Of Injuries From Accident

Myron E. Trout, 78, of Wymore, died in a hospital March 15 of injuries received when he was struck by a car in Wymore on March 11, the State Accident Records Bureau reported Wednesday.

The bureau identified the driver of the car as Elizabeth E. Benda, 61, of Wymore.

The death boosts the 1976 Nebraska traffic death toll to 65.

All But 6 Towns Have Electricity

Nebraska Public Power District officials announced late Wednesday power had been restored to all but six of the more than 60 towns in south central Nebraska darkened by last week s giant ice snow and wind storm

Lushton, Grafton, Ong, Shickley Davenport and Beaver Crossing were still without electricity Wednesday, but should have power restored by late Thursday, contingent on favorable weather conditions according to Ron Bogus, a spokesman for NPPD

Three rural substations owned by the York County Rural Public Power District are still out of service, Bogus said

NPPD has a few retail customers in scattered areas whose power should be restored some time next week, Bogus added

Meanwhile Gov J James Exon announced Wednesday he has been assured by the regional office of the Federal Disaster Assistance Agency that it is forwarding a report to Washington, D C on Exon s request for federal aid for the stricken 16-county south central area

Exon said the Kansas City office has also assured him that all required information had been properly filed with federal officials

2,300 LT&T Phones Are Not Ringing Yet

An estimated 2 300 rural customers of Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co are still without phone service due to the March 29 storm the firm reported Wednesday

The total damage caused by the storm has topped $1 2 million and 300 LT&T employes assisted by 18 Northwestern Bell employes are working on repairs according to the firm

Speaking for LT&T, James Vanderslice said the situation has improved since the storm, when an estimated 7 000 customers at 62 exchanges were without service

Here is a schedule of when phone service is expected to be resumed to rural customers in areas hard-hit

Clay Center should have service restored by the end of this week

Cordova Friend, Brainerd, Shelby Fairbury Alexandria, Daykin, Beaver Crossing, Tamora and Utica should have service by this weekend

Nelson will have service by the end of next week

Geneva Exeter, Milligan, Ohiowa Ong Tobias Sutton, Hebron, Bruning, Carlton, Davenport, York, Benedict Bradshaw Waco Stromsburg and Polk will not have service until the end of next week

Vanderslice said efforts to get service restored to areas hit by the storm has delayed routine in areas unaffected by the storm

Reasons Demanded For Gas Rate Boost

North Platte (AP) — The North Platte City Council has tabled a 20 per cent natural gas rate increase requested by Northwestern Public Service Co and will not take action on the proposal until the utility comes up with some justification for the hike

The action was taken Tuesday night after Councilman George Schell told Clarence Becker, Northwestern s local district manager ' Nobody s taken the bull by the horns, maybe now the gas company will stand on its heels and protest to the Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company '

Kansas-Nebraska (K-N) is the wholesaler which supplies Northwestern with natural gas, and Becker said the requested increase is the result of a wholesale hike passed along by K-N

However Schell said no justification for the increase has been presented other than that the hike is being passed on to the consumer because it was passed down from the supplier

Councilman Dr Thomas Miller recommended that the council file protests with the gas company K N and the Federal Power Commission (FPC)

Becker said Kansas-Nebraska filed application for the increase several months ago and that the FPC allowed the company to implement the increases under bond pending a final ruling by the commission

Rock Island Settles Suits For Abandoning Tracks

Three suits seeking damages for the abandonment of rail lines between Fairbury and Ruskin have been settled

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co agreed to payments to the three grain companies which sued although in amounts far less than they asked

The Farmers Union Co-op of Ruskin is to receive $25,300, the J Lynch Co of Deshler is to receive $21,450 and Gladstone Grain is to receive $8,250

Lincoln Attorney Richard Kluender, who represented the grain shippers, said, however that the amounts the firms actually receive may be less because the railroad is going through bankruptcy reorganization proceedings

The grain companies contended the railroad illegally abandoned the 39-mile stretch of track between Fairbury and Ruskin without the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission

The abandonment, the companies claimed, meant they lost money in being forced to find other methods to ship grain

Farmers Union had asked for $267,404, J Lynch asked for $154,758 and Gladstone Grain asked for $73,300

Agriculture Is Base

West Des Moines, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa agriculture continues to be the basic industry in the state with about 36% of the workers depending directly on agriculture for their jobs according to the 1976 facts on Iowa agriculture publication released by the Iowa Farm Bureau

Hastings College Building 'Good For 100 Years'

Hastings (UPI) — McCormick Hall, a central Nebraska landmark for 100 years, is structurally sound and should be repaired a restoration consultant has told the Hastings College Board of Trustees

McCormick Hall is good for at least another 100 years ' Charles A Howell III, of Nashville, Tenn , told the board "The structure is of sufficient size and merit, in terms of just raw space, to warrant recycling it for use

Howell was brought to Hastings by the Adams County Historical Society with the permission of the Hastings College Board to review the condition of McCormick Hall

The structure built with funds donated by Cyrus McCormick in 1883, was damaged Feb 28 during a three-alarm fire

The fire which started in a northeast classroom on the first floor spread to the second floor and basement as well as spreading horizontally to the south and west

Howell said "The fire obviously generated a lot of heat The Hastings Fire Department is to be commended for the great job they did in saving the building '

All But 6 Towns Have Electricity

Nebraska Public Power District officials announced late Wednesday power had been restored to all but six of the more than 60 towns in south central Nebraska darkened by last week's giant ice, snow and wind storm.

Lushton, Grafton, Ong, Shickley, Davenport and Beaver Crossing were still without electricity Wednesday, but should have power restored by late Thursday, contingent on favorable weather conditions, according to Ron Bogus, a spokesman for NPPD.

Three rural substations owned by the York County Rural Public Power District are still out of service, Bogus said.

NPPD has a few retail customers in scattered areas whose power should be restored some time next week, Bogus added.

Meanwhile, Gov. J. James Exon announced Wednesday he has been assured by the regional office of the Federal Disaster Assistance Agency that it is forwarding a report to Washington, D.C., on Exon's request for federal aid for the stricken 16-county south central area.

Exon said the Kansas City office has also assured him that all required information had been properly filed with federal officials.

2,300 LT&T Phones Are Not Ringing Yet

An estimated 2,300 rural customers of Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. are still without phone service due to the March 29 storm, the firm reported Wednesday.

The total damage caused by the storm has topped $1.2 million, and 300 LT&T employes assisted by 18 Northwestern Bell employes are working on repairs, according to the firm.

Speaking for LT&T, James Vanderslice said the situation has improved since the storm, when an estimated 7,000 customers at 62 exchanges were without service.

Here is a schedule of when phone service is expected to be resumed to rural customers in areas hard-hit:

Clay Center should have service restored by the end of this week.

Cordova, Friend, Brainerd, Shelby, Fairbury, Alexandria, Daykin, Beaver Crossing, Tamora and Utica should have service by this weekend.

Nelson will have service by the end of next week.

Geneva, Exeter, Milligan, Ohiowa, Ong, Tobias, Sutton, Hebron, Bruning, Carlton, Davenport, York, Benedict, Bradshaw, Waco, Stromsburg and Polk will not have service until the end of next week.

Vanderslice said efforts to get service restored to areas hit by the storm has delayed routine in areas unaffected by the storm.

Joan Rischling

Lincoln Girl Wins Merit Scholarship

Lincolnite Joan Rischling is among four Nebraskans who have been awarded corporate-sponsored National Merit Scholarships.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Rischling, of 3441 Cooper, Joan is among 1,200 high school seniors nationwide selected for the awards.

Joan received a Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. Fund Merit Scholarship which is worth $1,000 to $6,000 during the undergraduate years of college.

The Southeast High School senior also won a Regents Scholarship. She is a member of the National Honor Society and is one of 500 high school seniors across the country nominated to be a Presidential Scholar.

Joan, 17, expects to attend the University of Nebraska-Lincoln next year, with a major in elementary and secondary education. French and math are the subjects she'd like to teach someday.

She's currently teaching French to a group of 6th-graders as part of an enrichment program at Calvert School.

Reasons Demanded For Gas Rate Boost

North Platte (AP) — The North Platte City Council has tabled a 20 per cent natural gas rate increase requested by Northwestern Public Service Co., and will not take action on the proposal until the utility comes up with some justification for the hike.

The action was taken Tuesday night after Councilman George Schell told Clarence Becker, Northwestern's local district manager, "Nobody's taken the bull by the horns; maybe now the gas company will stand on its heels and protest to the Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company."

Kansas-Nebraska (K-N) is the wholesaler which supplies Northwestern with natural gas, and Becker said the requested increase is the result of a wholesale hike passed along by K-N.

However, Schell said no justification for the increase has been presented other than that the hike is being passed on to the consumer because it was passed down from the supplier.

Councilman Dr. Thomas Miller recommended that the council file protests with the gas company, K-N and the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

Becker said Kansas-Nebraska filed application for the increase several months ago, and that the FPC allowed the company to implement the increases under bond pending a final ruling by the commission.

Rock Island Settles Suits For Abandoning Tracks

Three suits seeking damages for the abandonment of rail lines between Fairbury and Ruskin have been settled.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co. agreed to payments to the three grain companies which sued, although in amounts far less than they asked.

The Farmers Union Co-op of Ruskin is to receive $25,300; the J. Lynch Co. of Deshler is to receive $21,450 and Gladstone Grain is to receive $8,250.

Lincoln Attorney Richard Kluender, who represented the grain shippers, said, however that the amounts the firms actually receive may be less because the railroad is going through bankruptcy reorganization proceedings.

The grain companies contended the railroad illegally abandoned the 39-mile stretch of track between Fairbury and Ruskin without the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The abandonment, the companies claimed, meant they lost money in being forced to find other methods to ship grain.

Farmers Union had asked for $267,404, J. Lynch asked for $154,758 and Gladstone Grain asked for $73,300.

Agriculture Is Base

West Des Moines, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa agriculture continues to be the basic industry in the state with about 36% of the workers depending directly on agriculture for their jobs, according to the 1976 facts on Iowa agriculture publication released by the Iowa Farm Bureau.

Hastings College Building 'Good For 100 Years'

Hastings (UPI) — McCormick Hall, a central Nebraska landmark for 100 years, is structurally sound and should be repaired, a restoration consultant has told the Hastings College Board of Trustees.

"McCormick Hall is good for at least another 100 years," Charles A. Howell III, of Nashville, Tenn., told the board. "The structure is of sufficient size and merit, in terms of just raw space, to warrant recycling it for use."

Howell was brought to Hastings by the Adams County Historical Society with the permission of the Hastings College Board to review the condition of McCormick Hall.

The structure, built with funds donated by Cyrus McCormick in 1883, was damaged Feb. 28 during a three-alarm fire.

The fire, which started in a northeast classroom on the first floor, spread to the second floor and basement as well as spreading horizontally to the south and west.

Howell said, "The fire obviously generated a lot of heat. The Hastings Fire Department is to be commended for the great job they did in saving the building."

How Long Should Students Have To Wait For Profs?

Time and tide may wait for no man, but students do have to sometimes wait for professors

Just how long to wait has been the question of generations of collegians

On Tuesday, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Senate will consider a resolution establishing a uniform policy on how long students must wait if teachers are late for class

The senate will meet at 3 p m in 306 Keim Hall on the UNL east campus

Students historically never agreed on the traditional tardy sitting, some allowing 15 minutes, others just 10 But that left a no-man's-land of unknown consequences if the instructor arrived 12 minutes late, took roll and popped a quiz

The senate's professional conduct committee proposes that after a regularly scheduled class begins, students are expected to wait 15 minutes for the faculty member then "may consider themselves dismissed without penalty or prejudice "

The proposed resolution allows for late starts by faculty-class previous agreement

The Nebraska Builders student organization will present Distinguished Teacher Awards to UNL faculty members, and the Council on Student Life will deliver its 7th annual report

In other business, the UNL faculty salary committee will reveal its report at the session The retirement, insurance and faculty benefits panel will submit its annual report, which notes an unsuccessful attempt this year to remove legal bans on "deferred compensation" plans will be attempted again in the 1977 Legislature

Osborne Criticizes Condition Of Turf In NU Stadium

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne expressed concern about the condition of the AstroTurf in NU's Memorial Stadium following Wednesday afternoon's workout.

"It's not the same field it was a few years ago, especially when it's wet," Osborne said "We are concerned about injuries. It's slick and hazardous"

The carpet, which is headed for its seventh season of use, is showing its wear and no longer gives the traction it did when it was new The padding under the carpet isn't as soft as it was a few years ago.

Osborne said he didn't know what the cost of a new pad and carpet would be, but he suspects it might be as much today as the total seven years ago when a base also had to be installed. The base wouldn't have to be replaced.

The new depth chart, revised as a result of a study of movies of Sunday's scrimmage, had very few changes.

Most notable was the switch of Jeff Hansen, 6-2, 190-pound junior from Sacramento, Calif., from linebacker to safety

"We moved him because we are concerned about the safety position right now," Osborne explained. "Also, his size is a problem at linebacker. He runs a 4.6 in the 40-yard dash and that's fast enough to play in the secondary. He played there in high school and as a freshman here"

Hansen is listed with Dennis Payne, a junior from Lincoln at No. 2 safety behind Larry Valasek, junior from Silver Creek who lettered last year as backup for graduated Jim Burrow.

Nebraska's two junior college transfers, tight end Mark DuFresne and cornerback Rene Anderson, moved into No 2 spots at their positions.

"Both of them are playing pretty well," Osborne said. "They still have a lot to learn because they really haven't had the system presented to them yet."

Osborne said the scrimmage last Sunday was "overall pretty good," but that nobody really was "all that amazing, yet there were no real bad performances."

The chart listed sophomore Darrell Walton running with Curtis Craig at No. 1 wingback and Monte Anthony sharing the top I-back spot with senior Dave Gillespie.

"Walton had a good day," Osborne said "He's finally getting over his knee problems and showing us what he can do."

Osborne said the staff has been cautious to make many moves even though there are players we suspect are better than those ahead of them on the list. He said there'll probably be some moves after next Saturday's second scrimmage of the spring and that the depth chart will begin to take on a little more significance

Missing Wednesday were eleven defensive players and six from offense because of injuries

The most hard hit position has been linebacker where returning starter Clete Pillen is out with a strained knee, and Tom Vering has a broken hand Also missing were Dan LeFever and Lee Kunz

Baseball Starts Despite Problems

By The Associated Press

There are problems galore, on the field and off. But, ready or not, baseball begins its 1976 season Thursday.

Cincinnati hosts the traditional National League opener. It will be a particularly gala event with the Reds raising the 1975 World Championship flag in Riverfront Stadium. A sellout crowd of more than 52,000 will be on hand for the celebration of Cincinnati's memorable seven-game World Series victory over Boston.

Manager Sparky Anderson will hand the baseball to right-hander Gary Nolan for openers—but there's almost no chance the Reds' starting pitcher will be around at the finish. Anderson owns one of baseball's best bullpens and says he won't risk tender arms early in the year. Houston will use lanky J.R. Richard against the Big Red Machine.

In the American League opener, Milwaukee expects a crowd of 50.000 for the Brewers' game against the New York Yankees. Jim Slaton goes for Milwaukee against Catfish Hunter, ace of the Yankee staff.

There are eight games scheduled for Friday, four in each league.

In the National League, Montreal sends Steve Rogers against Tom Seaver of the New York Mets. Seaver staged a bitter spring-long holdout that ended earlier this week. But the ace pitcher's contract agreement with the club will need approval from NL President Chub Feeney because it contains certain incentive clauses that may not be permitted under baseball law.

During his holdout, Seaver had been rumored headed for Los Angeles in a trade. The man the Dodgers were offering was reportedly Don Sutton— their opening-day pitcher in San Francisco against John Montefusco. But that game has been threatened by a strike of city workers that has picket lines set up in front of Candlestick Park.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro goes at San Diego with Randy Jones starting for the Padres, and the Chicago Cubs will use Ray Burris at St. Louis against Lynn McGlothen.

The final N opener is scheduled for Saturday with Pittsburgh using Jerry Reuss against Philadelphia's Steve Carlton.

In Friday's top American League opener, Boston goes with Ferguson Jenkins against Baltimore's Jim Palmer.

The Orioles hope to have convinced slugger Reggie Jackson to play for them in time for that game. Jackson was acquired in a blockbuster trade with Oakland last week but has balked at joining Baltimore.

In other AL games Friday, Kansas City will use Paul Splittorff to face the Chicago White Sox' Wilbur Wood. Minnesota starts with Bert Blyleven against Texas' Gaylord Perry, and Oakland will start Mike Torrez against California's Frank Tanana. Torrez went to the A's in the Jackson trade. The final American League opener has Detroit sending Joe Coleman against Cleveland's Dennis Eckersley on Saturday.

Meanwhile, baseball continues to wrestle with franchise problems as the American and National Leagues duel over Toronto. The players are without a basic agreement and if one is not reached before October, some 150 unsigned major leaguers stand to become free agents.

And Andy Messersmith, the only current free agent, remains without a team. He is still considering offers from San Diego snd Los Angeles and has a standing bid from the California Angels as well.

ROGER BENJAMIN . . . lifting 465 pounds is as easy as it looks.

They Get A Lift Out Of Life

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Weightlifting

You picture yourself paying a quarter at the circus or state fair and walking behind a facade and watching some enormous hulk toting horses, barbells and what all. Or watching some Russian with a belly as big as a beer keg hefting weights on television.

But weightlifting, powerlifting in particular, has come a long way since the old "strongman" days, and now almost every high school and college have added some sort of weightlifting program to develop muscles for every sport.

So you get the big arms and legs. So what?

Well, to Lincolnites like Roger Benjamin and Tom Pollard, powerlifting is a way for you to prove yourself and set yourself apart from others.

Benjamin, who holds a Master's degree from the University of Nebraska, was overweight and teaching music before he started a powerlifting program.

Now he's preparing to go to Valencia, Venezuela, for the Pan-Am powerlifting championships April 24-25. At 220 pounds, Benjamin is one of the nation's top powerlifters in his class, and he's top-seeded in the Pan-Am championships.

His qualification lifts included 610 pounds in the squat-lift, 390 in the bench press and 720 in the deadlift.

"Everything boils down to nine seconds (three seconds, three lifts) in powerlifting competition," Benjamin said. "You become totally absorbed in working towards a three-second blast that will (hopefully) be the most energy you've ever produced in your life. when you lift I haven't missed a workout in 58 months and that includes the times when I've been injured The only way to gain the top is to keep working on more repetitions (lifts) and higher weights, over and over again."

Pollard, an assistant wrestling coach at Nebraska, just returned from the NCAA-AAU Collegiate Powerlifting Championships with a three-lift total of 935 pounds. Pollard weighs 123 pounds.

The NU Masters candidate has won titles in five of the six meets he's entered this year and set records in all six. His recent mark was a 430-pound deadlift in the Collegiate championships in Athens, Ohio.

"My goal is to deadlift 500 pounds," Pollard said. "There are only three other people in the world in my weight class that have done it."

"Eventually I want to start a program for executives and businessmen to show how lifting can help people see what they are capable of doing," said Pollard, who graduates in May. "My lifting will help me show others what I've done for myself and what I can teach others."

"The psychology of wrestling and weightlifting is the same," Pollard said. "It's a personal battle with yourself.

"I started as an Olympic lifter (clean and jerk, snatch lifts) but there is more competition in powerlifting. And unlike Olympic lifting, you get better as you get older in powerlifting

"This year's college championship was cosponsored by the NCAA and AAU but next year the NCAA is taking over and will establish a meet of their own Dual meets and regional meets along with a tournament type of competition are expected," Pollard said

A powerlifting meet is slated at 10 a m. Saturday at the men's Physical Education building on the University campus

More than 60 persons have entered and more entries still are arriving. Five teams have entered, including the Lincoln Health Club and the Nebraska-Lincoln Weightlifting team

Favorites in the meet include Pollard, at 123 pounds. Howard Nissen, a heavyweight, and Jim Demetry, at 198-pounds.

Nissen, a Nebraska state trooper, weighs 260 pounds and can squat lift "about 550 pounds" according to Benjamin, his coach. Demetry, a computer technician and navigator in the Air National Guard, also seeks "some big lifts," said Benjamin.

"Powerlifting is the competition of the future in weightlifting," said Benjamin. "The Olympic style is too easily altered and involved with too much politics, while the powerlifts can't really be tampered with."

Benjamin noted that for every Olympic style lifter there are now five powerlifters in the country. "The press was taken out of Olympic lifting because of the changes in the lift and now the other two lifts are being changed and don't challenge the overall physique the way powerlifting does."

"The deadlift tests the back and overall body, the bench press the upper body strength, and the squat the lower muscles," Benjamin said. "The only limits to how much a person can powerlift is the condition of the connective tissue and the body structure"

No. 1 Favorite At Masters? Mr. Nicklaus

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, possessor of the greatest record in the history of golf and—he insists—still building to the peak of his powers, occupies his familiar role as the overwhelming favorite going into the 40th Masters championship.

"It is more difficult to win now than ever before," Nicklaus said before Thursday's start to this annual spring celebration that holds such a unique role in sports. "It is more difficult because there are more good players than ever before."

He paused, smiled and added· "But I'm a better player than I've ever been before.

"That's not to say I'll play better than I have I don't know whether I will or not. No one knows But I know I'm a better, smarter player than I ever have been I hope I'm improving every year.

"When you stop improving, there's only one way to go," he said, making a sliding, downhill gesture with his hands.

And Nicklaus, 36, holder of almost all the golf records worth owning, has the figures to support his contention that he's still improving. Last year was one of his best. He won five American titles—including the Masters and the PGA—and the Australian Open. He was the Player of the Year and the leading money winner. He missed the unaccomplished Grand Slam—a one-year sweep of the game's Big Four—by three strokes.

And, he says, he playing even better now.

"I haven't won as much this year as I did last," he said. "But, actually, I really think I'm playing better. My over-all performance has been better. My game is in better shape for the Masters than it was last year."

But the competition is greater, too, said the man who has won a record five Masters titles, along with four PGA national crowns, two British Opens and three American Opens

Arrayed against him, however, is perhaps the strongest field of challengers he's ever encountered over the flower-bedecked, beautifully-manicured rolling hills of the Augusta National Golf Club course.

"There probably are more players with a chance to win—not just with a look but with a real chance to win—than ever before," Nicklaus said, pointing to an ambitious, confident corps of seasoned, tested performers who are threatening to claim the pro tour for their very own

Chief among them are Hubert Green, the lanky, likeable guy who is unbeaten in his last three starts, and two-time 1976 champions Hale Irwin, Johnny Miller and Ben Crenshaw

Among the more traditional challengers to Nicklaus' supremacy are Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and, possibly, Arnold Palmer.

"I'm playing so good it scares me. I'm very, very close to playing really well," said the 46-year-old Palmer, who has spent the last two weeks working on his game, seeking to recapture the magic that once was his alone

"I'm just afraid I'm playing good enough that I'll put myself in position to choke," added the four-time Masters champion, who hasn't scored an American victory in more than three long years

And it's been more than a year since Player—who, with Palmer and Nicklaus, once formed golf's Big Three—won in the United States. But that doesn't mean the gritty, determined little South African isn't a definite threat.

"Gary's just Gary," Nicklaus said. "You know what he can do."

"I haven't won," Player said, "but there's hardly a tournament in America this year that I haven't been in contention. I'm grinding. That's how you win. You stay close, keep moving at the top players and eventually you are going to win."

Trevino, who once vowed he'd never again play in this event, has a brand-new interest in an Augusta victory.

"I've got a new attitude about this golf tournament and that makes a lot of difference," said Trevino, who has abandoned his role of quick-quipping clown and turned dead-serious. The change occurred when he won the 1974 PGA national championship.

"Now I've got a chance," he said. "Only four guys—Nicklaus, Player, Hogan and Sarazen—have ever won all of the Big Four. That's pretty good company for a little fat Mexican. I'd be outta my mind not to try to get in there.

"It's probably the biggest goal of my career."

The tall, undeniably talented but sometimes tempermental Weiskopf has his own reasons to covet the green jacket that goes to the winner.

"I'm tired of finishing second," said Weiskopf.

Orr To Miss Playoffs

By United Press International

Preliminary round participants in the Stanley Cup playoffs can take heart. Whoever gets past the early National Hockey League post-season games won't have to face Bobby Orr in subsequent rounds.

Orr, pro hockey's premier defenseman, was scrubbed from action for the rest of the season when his damaged knee failed to pass the strength test in a hard Boston workout this week.

While the Bruins, who drew a preliminary bye, wait to learn their opening Cup opponent, Buffalo, Vancouver and Atlanta seek their first playoff victories Thursday night with home court stands in the best-of-three series matchups.

On Tuesday night, St. Louis surprised Buffalo, 5-2, Vancouver lost to the New York Islanders, 5-3, and Atlanta lost a 2-1 decision to Los Angeles

Buffalo finished the season 33 points better than the Blues, but ran into rookie goalie Ed Staniowski on one of his best nights of the season

"Ed's saves in the first four minutes of the game made the difference," said Blues' coach Leo Boivin.

Ironically, Buffalo passed up Staniowski in the first round of last year's junior draft and St. Louis grabbed him on the second go-around The Blues' netminder made the Sabres front office look a little silly as he shut out Buffalo until midway through the final period while St Louis was building a 4-0 lead

Vancouver beat the Islanders in all five regular season games, but New York finally solved Canuck goalie Curt Ridley's defense when it counted the most.

The loss did not erase Canuck coach Phil Maloney's optimism.

"We beat them five out of six, so to lose a game is not the end of the world," Maloney said "Still, we let them come in and manhandle our goaltender. We didn't play well enough to win"

On the other end of the ice, goalie Glen Resch insists his Islanders "have gotta play better, more physically on Thursday. We were nervous and scared as hell, especially in the first period. Maybe we won't be so tight Thursday. Their backs are against the wall."

Lorne Henning's short-handed goal with 10 seconds gone in the second period was the turning point in the game since it gave the Islanders a three-goal lead Little Rogie Vachon, a 5-foot-7 giant killer in the Los Angeles nets, blocked 19 of 20 Atlanta shots to maintain expansionist Atlanta's winless string in playoff competiton.

Vachon posted a shutout over the Flames during the season, but he didn't think he would survive the barrage in Tuesday's game

"I felt like they fired 50 shots," Vachon said in recalling the action "They were getting a lot of shots that were missing the net"

Leroy Selmon Invades 'Runner' Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League scouts will tell you this is the Year of the Runner—but the first choice in Thursday's college draft is almost certain to be a player whose job it is to stop those runners—defensive tackle Leroy Selmon.

The expansionist Tampa Bay Buccaneers own the opening selection in the draft lottery and unless there is a very sudden, very unexpected change of plans, Selmon, an All-American at Oklahoma, will be their man.

"I think we'll go for him," said Ron Wolfe, Tampa Bay's vice president of operations. "I've felt pretty much that way all along and I haven't seen anything to change my mind"

Selmon, winner of the Outland Trophy as college football's outstanding lineman, said the Buccaneers had been in touch with him "They've told me there's a lot of interest in me," the 6-foot-2, 256-pound lineman said

Playing for a brand new team won't bother Selmon "It's all right It's a chance to play in the NFL. With an expansion team, you have a chance to grow with it. It might be neat

It could be even neater for the family if Leroy's brother, All-American nose guard Dewey Selmon, winds up be drafted by Tampa, too.

"I hope to go in the first two rounds," said Dewey.

Tampa's expansion partners, the Seattle Seahawks, will draft second and are expected to select running back Chuck Muncie of California

Seahawks' Coach Jack Patera believes football games are won on defense, but that won't prevent the Seahalks from going for an offensive player like Muncie with the first of their 25 draft choices.

"If the 25 best players available are offensive guards," said Patera, "then we'll take 25 offensive guards and sort them out later."

Muncie heads the rushing class that includes Ohio State's Archie Griffin, a two-time Heisman Trophy winner and college football's first 5,000-yard man, Joe Washington of Oklahoma, Tony Galbreath of Missouri and Lawrence Gaines of Wyoming.

Besides the Selmons, linemen who figure to go early include Charles Philyaw of Texas Southern, Arizona's Mike Dawson and Ken Novak of Purdue. The top tight ends include Bennie Cunningham of Clemson and Mike Barber of Lousiana Tech with Larry Dorsey of Tennessee State and Bill Brooks of Oklahoma among the best wide receivers

The quarterback class seems slim with the best of the crop Craig Penrose of San Diego State, Gene Swick of Toledo, Scott Gardner of Virginia and Richard Todd of Alabama

The New England Patriots own the most first-round selections with three, two of them acquired from San Francisco in the the Jim Plunkett trade this week Five teams, Houston, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Washington and Oakland, will sit out the first round, having swapped their choices away earlier

Giants Sign Csonka

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fullback Larry Csonka, whose bone-jarring running powered the Miami Dolphins to two straight Super Bowl championships, signed a million dollar, multi-year contract with the New York Giants Wednesday night

Announcement of Csonka's suprise signing was made jointly by the 29-year-old fullback, Wellington Mara, President of the Giants, and Club General Manager Andy Robustelli at a hurriedly called news conference

Specific terms of the deal were not announced, but it was reported that Csonka received close to the $250,000 per year contract he had been seeking from the Dolphins who lost his services to the World Football League two years ago

It's great to be here said Csonka It's nice to be here and have a deal worked out at this early stage It's nice to be able to know where I'm and get my head together It's tough being a football player in the off-season without a team"

Csonka said Giant' Coach Bill Arnsparger was the biggest factor influencing his decision to sign

The biggest reason I chose New York was Coach Bill Arnsparger," he explained "I got to know him in Miami and I think he's a great coach I know we'll work together well

Also this is New York The promotional possibilities are just great Everyone wants to be a pro athlete in New York and here I am

Csonka, who signed an incredible $3 million contract to play in the World Football League two years ago, returns to the NFL after a one-year absence He became a free agent last month when National Football League owners turned down a bid by John Bassett owner of the defunct Memphis Southmen of the WFL, to join the NFL.

"Both of them are playing pretty well," Osborne said. "They still have a lot to learn because they really haven't had the system presented to them yet."

Osborne said the scrimmage last Sunday was "overall pretty good," but that nobody really was "all that amazing, yet there were no real bad performances."

The chart listed sophomore Darrell Walton running with Curtis Craig at No. 1 wingback and Monte Anthony sharing the top I-back spot with senior Dave Gillespie.

"Walton had a good day," Osborne said. "He's finally getting over his knee problems and showing us what he can do."

Osborne said the staff has been cautious to make many moves even though there are players we suspect are better than those ahead of them on the list. He said there'll probably be some moves after next Saturday's second scrimmage of the spring and that the depth chart will begin to take on a little more significance.

Missing Wednesday were eleven defensive players and six from offense because of injuries.

The most hard hit position has been linebacker where returning starter Clete Pillen is out with a strained knee, and Tom Vering has a broken hand. Also missing were Dan LeFever and Lee Kunz.

The depth chart:

Baseball Starts Despite Problems

By The Associated Press

There are problems galore, on the field and off. But, ready or not, baseball begins its 1976 season Thursday.

Cincinnati hosts the traditional National League opener. It will be a particularly gala event with the Reds raising the 1975 World Championship flag in Riverfront Stadium. A sellout crowd of more than 52,000 will be on hand for the celebration of Cincinnati's memorable seven-game World Series victory over Boston.

Manager Sparky Anderson will hand the baseball to right-hander Gary Nolan for openers—but there's almost no chance the Reds' starting pitcher will be around at the finish. Anderson owns one of baseball's best bullpens and says he won't risk tender arms early in the year. Houston will use lanky J.R. Richard against the Big Red Machine.

In the American League opener, Milwaukee expects a crowd of 50,000 for the Brewers' game against the New York Yankees. Jim Slaton goes for Milwaukee against Catfish Hunter, ace of the Yankee staff.

There are eight games scheduled for Friday, four in each league.

In the National League, Montreal sends Steve Rogers against Tom Seaver of the New York Mets. Seaver staged a bitter spring-long holdout that ended earlier this week. But the ace pitcher's contract agreement with the club will need approval from NL President Chub Feeney because it contains certain incentive clauses that may not be permitted under baseball law.

During his holdout, Seaver had been rumored headed for Los Angeles in a trade. The man the Dodgers were offering was reportedly Don Sutton— their opening-day pitcher in San Francisco against John Montefusco. But that game has been threatened by a strike of city workers that has picket lines set up in front of Candlestick Park.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro goes at San Diego with Randy Jones starting for the Padres, and the Chicago Cubs will use Ray Burris at St. Louis against Lynn McGlothen.

The final N opener is scheduled for Saturday with Pittsburgh using Jerry Reuss against Philadelphia's Steve Carlton.

In Friday's top American League opener, Boston goes with Ferguson Jenkins against Baltimore's Jim Palmer.

The Orioles hope to have convinced slugger Reggie Jackson to play for them in time for that game. Jackson was acquired in a blockbuster trade with Oakland last week but has balked at joining Baltimore.

In other AL games Friday, Kansas City will use Paul Splittorff to face the Chicago White Sox' Wilbur Wood. Minnesota starts with Bert Blyleven against Texas' Gaylord Perry, and Oakland will start Mike Torrez against California's Frank Tanana. Torrez went to the A's in the Jackson trade. The final American League opener has Detroit sending Joe Coleman against Cleveland's Dennis Eckersley on Saturday.

Meanwhile, baseball continues to wrestle with franchise problems as the American and National Leagues duel over Toronto. The players are without a basic agreement and if one is not reached before October, some 150 unsigned major leaguers stand to become free agents.

And Andy Messersmith, the only current free agent, remains without a team. He is still considering offers from San Diego snd Los Angeles and has a standing bid from the California Angels as well.

Probable Pitchers

ROGER BENJAMIN . . . lifting 465 pounds is as easy as it looks.

They Get A Lift Out Of Life

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Weightlifting.

You picture yourself paying a quarter at the circus or state fair and walking behind a facade and watching some enormous hulk toting horses, barbells and what all. Or watching some Russian with a belly as big as a beer keg hefting weights on television.

But weightlifting, powerlifting in particular, has come a long way since the old "strongman" days, and now almost every high school and college have added some sort of weightlifting program to develop muscles for every sport.

So you get the big arms and legs. So what?

Well, to Lincolnites like Roger Benjamin and Tom Pollard, powerlifting is a way for you to prove yourself and set yourself apart from others.

Benjamin, who holds a Master's degree from the University of Nebraska, was overweight and teaching music before he started a powerlifting program.

Now he's preparing to go to Valencia, Venezuela, for the Pan-Am powerlifting championships April 24-25. At 220 pounds, Benjamin is one of the nation's top powerlifters in his class, and he's top-seeded in the Pan-Am championships.

His qualification lifts included 610 pounds in the squat-lift, 390 in the bench press and 720 in the deadlift.

"Everything boils down to nine seconds (three seconds, three lifts) in powerlifting competition," Benjamin said. "You become totally absorbed in working towards a three-second blast that will (hopefully) be the most energy you've ever produced in your life, when you lift. I haven't missed a workout in 58 months and that includes the times when I've been injured. The only way to gain the top is to keep working on more repetitions (lifts) and higher weights, over and over again."

Pollard, an assistant wrestling coach at Nebraska, just returned from the NCAA-AAU Collegiate Powerlifting Championships with a three-lift total of 935 pounds. Pollard weighs 123 pounds.

The NU Masters candidate has won titles in five of the six meets he's entered this year and set records in all six. His recent mark was a 430-pound deadlift in the Collegiate championships in Athens, Ohio.

"My goal is to deadlift 500 pounds," Pollard said. "There are only three other people in the world in my weight class that have done it."

"Eventually I want to start a program for executives and businessmen to show how lifting can help people see what they are capable of doing," said Pollard, who graduates in May. "My lifting will help me show others what I've done for myself and what I can teach others."

"The psychology of wrestling and weightlifting is the same," Pollard said. "It's a personal battle with yourself.

"I started as an Olympic lifter (clean and jerk, snatch lifts) but there is more competition in powerlifting. And unlike Olympic lifting, you get better as you get older in powerlifting.

"This year's college championship was cosponsored by the NCAA and AAU but next year the NCAA is taking over and will establish a meet of their own. Dual meets and regional meets along with a tournament type of competition are expected," Pollard said.

A powerlifting meet is slated at 10 a.m. Saturday at the men's Physical Education building on the University campus.

More than 60 persons have entered and more entries still are arriving. Five teams have entered, including the Lincoln Health Club and the Nebraska-Lincoln Weightlifting team.

Favorites in the meet include Pollard, at 123 pounds, Howard Nissen, a heavyweight, and Jim Demetry, at 198-pounds.

Nissen, a Nebraska state trooper, weighs 260 pounds and can squat lift "about 550 pounds" according to Benjamin, his coach. Demetry, a computer technician and navigator in the Air National Guard, also seeks "some big lifts," said Benjamin.

"Powerlifting is the competition of the future in weightlifting," said Benjamin. "The Olympic style is too easily altered and involved with too much politics, while the powerlifts can't really be tampered with."

Benjamin noted that for every Olympic style lifter there are now five powerlifters in the country. "The press was taken out of Olympic lifting because of the changes in the lift and now the other two lifts are being changed and don't challenge the overall physique the way powerlifting does."

"The deadlift tests the back and overall body, the bench press the upper body strength, and the squat the lower muscles," Benjamin said. "The only limits to how much a person can powerlift is the condition of the connective tissue and the body structure."

No. 1 Favorite At Masters? Mr. Nicklaus

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, possessor of the greatest record in the history of golf and—he insists—still building to the peak of his powers, occupies his familiar role as the overwhelming favorite going into the 40th Masters championship.

"It is more difficult to win now than ever before," Nicklaus said before Thursday's start to this annual spring celebration that holds such a unique role in sports. "It is more difficult because there are more good players than ever before."

He paused, smiled and added: "But I'm a better player than I've ever been before.

"That's not to say I'll play better than I have. I don't know whether I will or not. No one knows. But I know I'm a better, smarter player than I ever have been. I hope I'm improving every year.

"When you stop improving, there's only one way to go," he said, making a sliding, downhill gesture with his hands.

And Nicklaus, 36, holder of almost all the golf records worth owning, has the figures to support his contention that he's still improving. Last year was one of his best. He won five American titles—including the Masters and the PGA—and the Australian Open. He was the Player of the Year and the leading money winner. He missed the unaccomplished Grand Slam—a one-year sweep of the game's Big Four—by three strokes.

And, he says, he playing even better now.

"I haven't won as much this year as I did last," he said. "But, actually, I really think I'm playing better. My over-all performance has been better. My game is in better shape for the Masters than it was last year."

But the competition is greater, too, said the man who has won a record five Masters titles, along with four PGA national crowns, two British Opens and three American Opens.

Arrayed against him, however, is perhaps the strongest field of challengers he's ever encountered over the flower-bedecked, beautifully-manicured rolling hills of the Augusta National Golf Club course.

"There probably are more players with a chance to win—not just with a look but with a real chance to win—than ever before," Nicklaus said, pointing to an ambitious, confident corps of seasoned, tested performers who are threatening to claim the pro tour for their very own.

Chief among them are Hubert Green, the lanky, likeable guy who is unbeaten in his last three starts, and two-time 1976 champions Hale Irwin, Johnny Miller and Ben Crenshaw.

Among the more traditional challengers to Nicklaus' supremacy are Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and, possibly, Arnold Palmer.

"I'm playing so good it scares me. I'm very, very close to playing really well," said the 46-year-old Palmer, who has spent the last two weeks working on his game, seeking to recapture the magic that once was his alone.

"I'm just afraid I'm playing good enough that I'll put myself in position to choke," added the four-time Masters champion, who hasn't scored an American victory in more than three long years.

And it's been more than a year since Player—who, with Palmer and Nicklaus, once formed golf's Big Three—won in the United States. But that doesn't mean the gritty, determined little South African isn't a definite threat.

"Gary's just Gary," Nicklaus said. "You know what he can do."

"I haven't won," Player said, "but there's hardly a tournament in America this year that I haven't been in contention. I'm grinding. That's how you win. You stay close, keep moving at the top players and eventually you are going to win."

Trevino, who once vowed he'd never again play in this event, has a brand-new interest in an Augusta victory.

"I've got a new attitude about this golf tournament and that makes a lot of difference," said Trevino, who has abandoned his role of quick-quipping clown and turned dead-serious. The change occurred when he won the 1974 PGA national championship.

"Now I've got a chance," he said. "Only four guys—Nicklaus, Player, Hogan and Sarazen—have ever won all of the Big Four. That's pretty good company for a little fat Mexican. I'd be outta my mind not to try to get in there.

"It's probably the biggest goal of my career."

The tall, undeniably talented but sometimes tempermental Weiskopf has his own reasons to covet the green jacket that goes to the winner.

"I'm tired of finishing second," said Weiskopf.

Orr To Miss Playoffs

By United Press International

Preliminary round participants in the Stanley Cup playoffs can take heart. Whoever gets past the early National Hockey League post-season games won't have to face Bobby Orr in subsequent rounds.

Orr, pro hockey's premier defenseman, was scrubbed from action for the rest of the season when his damaged knee failed to pass the strength test in a hard Boston workout this week.

While the Bruins, who drew a preliminary bye, wait to learn their opening Cup opponent, Buffalo, Vancouver and Atlanta seek their first playoff victories Thursday night with home court stands in the best-of-three series matchups.

On Tuesday night, St. Louis surprised Buffalo, 5-2, Vancouver lost to the New York Islanders, 5-3, and Atlanta lost a 2-1 decision to Los Angeles.

Buffalo finished the season 33 points better than the Blues, but ran into rookie goalie Ed Staniowski on one of his best nights of the season.

"Ed's saves in the first four minutes of the game made the difference," said Blues' coach Leo Boivin.

Ironically, Buffalo passed up Staniowski in the first round of last year's junior draft and St. Louis grabbed him on the second go-around. The Blues' netminder made the Sabres front office look a little silly as he shut out Buffalo until midway through the final period while St. Louis was building a 4-0 lead.

Vancouver beat the Islanders in all five regular season games, but New York finally solved Canuck goalie Curt Ridley's defense when it counted the most.

The loss did not erase Canuck coach Phil Maloney's optimism.

"We beat them five out of six, so to lose a game is not the end of the world," Maloney said. "Still, we let them come in and manhandle our goaltender. We didn't play well enough to win."

On the other end of the ice, goalie Glen Resch insists his Islanders "have gotta play better, more physically on Thursday. We were nervous and scared as hell, especially in the first period. Maybe we won't be so tight Thursday. Their backs are against the wall."

Lorne Henning's short-handed goal with 10 seconds gone in the second period was the turning point in the game since it gave the Islanders a three-goal lead. Little Rogie Vachon, a 5-foot-7 giant killer in the Los Angeles nets, blocked 19 of 20 Atlanta shots to maintain expansionist Atlanta's winless string in playoff competiton.

Vachon posted a shutout over the Flames during the season, but he didn't think he would survive the barrage in Tuesday's game.

"I felt like they fired 50 shots," Vachon said in recalling the action. "They were getting a lot of shots that were missing the net."

Leroy Selmon Invades 'Runner' Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League scouts will tell you this is the Year of the Runner—but the first choice in Thursday's college draft is almost certain to be a player whose job it is to stop those runners—defensive tackle Leroy Selmon.

The expansionist Tampa Bay Buccaneers own the opening selection in the draft lottery and unless there is a very sudden, very unexpected change of plans, Selmon, an All-American at Oklahoma, will be their man.

"I think we'll go for him," said Ron Wolfe, Tampa Bay's vice president of operations. "I've felt pretty much that way all along and I haven't seen anything to change my mind."

Selmon, winner of the Outland Trophy as college football's outstanding lineman, said the Buccaneers had been in touch with him. "They've told me there's a lot of interest in me," the 6-foot-2, 256-pound lineman said.

Playing for a brand new team won't bother Selmon. "It's all right. It's a chance to play in the NFL. With an expansion team, you have a chance to grow with it. It might be neat."

It could be even neater for the family if Leroy's brother, All-American nose guard Dewey Selmon, winds up be drafted by Tampa, too.

"I hope to go in the first two rounds," said Dewey.

Tampa's expansion partners, the Seattle Seahawks, will draft second and are expected to select running back Chuck Muncie of California.

Seahawks' Coach Jack Patera believes football games are won on defense, but that won't prevent the Seahalks from going for an offensive player like Muncie with the first of their 25 draft choices.

"If the 25 best players available are offensive guards," said Patera. "then we'll take 25 offensive guards and sort them out later."

Muncie heads the rushing class that includes Ohio State's Archie Griffin, a two-time Heisman Trophy winner and college football's first 5,000-yard man, Joe Washington of Oklahoma, Tony Galbreath of Missouri and Lawrence Gaines of Wyoming.

Besides the Selmons, linemen who figure to go early include Charles Philyaw of Texas Southern, Arizona's Mike Dawson and Ken Novak of Purdue. The top tight ends include Bennie Cunningham of Clemson and Mike Barber of Louisiana Tech with Larry Dorsey of Tennessee State and Bill Brooks of Oklahoma among the best wide receivers.

The quarterback class seems slim with the best of the crop Craig Penrose of San Diego State, Gene Swick of Toledo, Scott Gardner of Virginia and Richard Todd of Alabama.

The New England Patriots own the most first-round selections with three, two of them acquired from San Francisco in the the Jim Plunkett trade this week. Five teams, Houston, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Washington and Oakland, will sit out the first round, having swapped their choices away earlier.

Giants Sign Csonka

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fullback Larry Csonka, whose bone-jarring running powered the Miami Dolphins to two straight Super Bowl championships, signed a million dollar, multi-year contract with the New York Giants Wednesday night.

Announcement of Csonka's suprise signing was made jointly by the 29-year-old fullback, Wellington Mara, President of the Giants, and Club General Manager Andy Robustelli at a hurriedly called news conference.

Specific terms of the deal were not announced, but it was reported that Csonka received close to the $250,000 per year contract he had been seeking from the Dolphins, who lost his services to the World Football League two years ago.

"It's great to be here," said Csonka. "It's nice to be here and have a deal worked out at this early stage. It's nice to be able to know where I'm and get my head together. It's tough being a football player in the off-season without a team."

Csonka said Giant' Coach Bill Arnsparger was the biggest factor influencing his decision to sign.

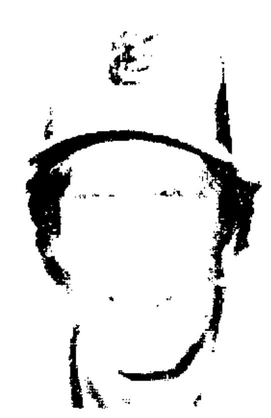
"The biggest reason I chose New York was Coach Bill Arnsparger," he explained. "I got to know him in Miami and I think he's a great coach. I know we'll work together well.

"Also, this is New York. The promotional possibilities are just great. Everyone wants to be a pro athlete in New York and here I am."

Csonka, who signed an incredible $3 million contract to play in the World Football League two years ago, returns to the NFL after a one-year absence. He became a free agent last month when National Football League owners turned down a bid by John Bassett, owner of the defunct Memphis Southmen of the WFL, to join the NFL.

Morning Briefing

Palmer Accepts Contract



Jim Palmer
Three-Year Pact

Pitcher Jim Palmer, the American League's Cy Young Award winner in two of the past three seasons, signed a lucrative three-year contract Wednesday with the Baltimore Orioles.

Contract terms were not announced, but Palmer certainly received a substantial boost over his estimated $135,000 salary of 1975.

Other Baseball

James "Lou" Gorman, No. 2 man in the Kansas City Royals organization, apparently will become general manager of Seattle's new American League baseball franchise, the Seattle Times said.

Whitey Ford, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, will be honored by the Boys' Athletic League as New York City's greatest native-born baseball player. Other native New Yorkers previously honored with this award include football star Sid Luckman and boxer Sugar Ray Robinson.

Bobby Bonds will be out of action for the New York Yankees for the start of the American League season with a broken finger.

The Atlanta Braves obtained first baseman Terry Crowley from the Reds for pitcher Mike Thompson and asked waivers on pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom. Pitcher Buzz Capra was put on the disabled list.

The New York Yankees asked waivers on 16-year veteran Tommy Davis for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The Chicago White Sox optioned outfielders Morris Nettles and Alan Bannister, players obtained in the winter trade sending Bill Melton to the Angels and Jim Kaat to the Phillies.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's seven-day deadline for the AL to present a formula for returning baseball to Washington, D.C., will be reached Thursday — with no solution in sight.

The Celveland Indians acquired pitcher Harry Parker from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for pitcher Roric Harrison.

The Philadelphia Phillies sold pitcher Wayne Simpson to Salt Lake City for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Hockey

Officials were investigating a complaint that the defunct Denver Spurs of the WHA left town last year without contributing $1,800 from a benefit game to the March of Dimes.

Billings, Mont., police had to use mace and nightsticks Wednesday to break up a brawl involving players and fans at a southwest hockey league game between the Butte Copper Kings and the Billings Blazers.

Basketball

Marvin Adams, assistant basketball coach at Kansas State for the past three years, has been named basketball coach at Arkansas State.

Darrell Griffith, recently named the No. 1 prep player in the nation by Parade Magazine, says he may turn pro if the money is right, but he indicated it would take a $1.5 million offer to make him turn pro. He is the only high school player invited to the U.S. Olympic team tryouts.

Other Sports

Clifford Roberts, master of the Masters since its inception in 1933, resigned as chairman of one of golf's premier events. He handed the job to William H. Lane of Houston.

Claudine Longet will be arraigned for the March 21 shooting death of "Spider" Sabich. The minimum charge she will face is criminally negligent homicide, with a two-year prison term and a $5,000 fine possible.

Homers Aid Pirate Win

By The Associated Press

Manny Sanguillen and Willie Stargell each homered to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday, closing out the exhibition baseball season for both teams.

Dave Parker's two-run single helped the Pirates to a 3-0 lead in the first inning off losing pitcher Rick Camp, who also allowed a solo homer by Sanguillen in the second and a two-run shot by Stargell in the fourth.

Richie Hebner had a pair of run-scoring singles for Pittsburgh and finished spring training with 19 hits in 38 times at bat. Atlanta's Earl Williams hit a homer in the second after a single by Tom Paciorek off winning pitcher Larry Demery.

Elsewhere, the New York Yankees beat the New York Mets 5-4 in 10 innings, the Detroit Tigers stopped the Boston Red Sox 3-2, the Chicago White Sox turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2, the Chicago Cubs whipped the Cleveland Indians 2-1, the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the San Francisco Giants 5-4, the Minnesota Twins routed the Houston Astros 10-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat their Spokane farm team 7-5. A doubleheader between Kansas City and Montreal was rained out.

The Yankees scored two runs in the last of the 10th inning, one on an outfield error and another on Chris Chambliss' RBI single, to beat the Mets. The Mets had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning on Jerry Grote's home run.

Alex Johnson drove in two runs with a ninth-inning double, then scored the game-winner on Aurelio Rodriguez' sacrifice fly as Detroit beat Boston. Buckey Dent's two-run omer and Buddy Bradford's two-run single in the fifth inning boosted the Chicago White Sox over St. Louis.

Geoff Zahn spaced five hits over six innings to help the Chicago Cubs defeat Cleveland. Rick Monday and Bill Madlock drove in runs during a two-run uprising in the Chicago third.

Henry Cruz drove home two runs with a sixth-inning triple, leading Los Angeles past San Francisco. Butch Wynegar drove in three runs to trigger Minnesota past Houston. Astro starter Joe Niekro struck out five batters in the first inning, but catcher Cliff Johnson committed five passed balls that led to two Minnesota runs.

Gorman Thomas and Pedro Garcia collected two hits apiece and Bobby Darwin smacked a 450-foot homer as Milwaukee beat Spokane.

In night exhibition baseball, the Oakland A's played the San Diego Padres, the California Angels met the University of Southern California and the Texas Rangers took on the University of Texas.

Twin Bills Set Today

Because of heavy rains that postponed the game Wednesday, Nebraska's baseball team will host Wayne State in a doubleheader at 2 p.m. Thursday on the Husker diamond.

Wesleyan also will make up a rain out of Wednesday's doubleheader at UNO. The twin bill has been rescheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in Omaha.

The Cornhuskers are 8-13, while Wayne is 6-8.

Leading the Husker pitching staff are senior Boyd Batenhorst and junior Steve McManaman. Batenhorst is undefeated with a 3-0 mark and an earned run average of 1.77. McManaman has a 1.13 ERA with an 0-1 overall mark.

Following the Wayne State twin bill, Nebraska will host Morningside in a doubleheader Saturday at 2 p.m. on the Husker diamond.

Connors Out Of Tourney

HOUSTON (UPI) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors withdrew from the $64,000 River Oaks Tennis Tournament Wednesday and No. 2 seed Eddie Dibbs advanced to the second round with a 6-7, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Alan Stone.

Connors, who was entered in his second World Championship Tennis event this year, became ill with the flu and told tournament officials he would not be ready to play Thursday.

Afternoon rains Wednesday allowed only one singles match to be played, but that one was a thriller.

Dibbs lost the first set to Stone by a 7-5 count in a tiebreaker but then surged back in a steady drizzle to win the next two sets and joined five other players in the quarterfinal round.

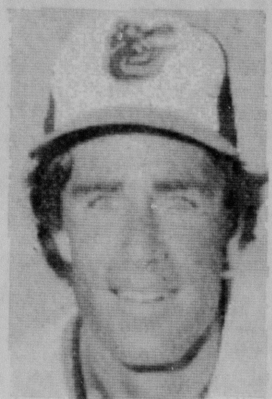
Morning Briefing

Palmer Accepts Contract



Jim Palmer
Three-Year Pact

Pitcher Jim Palmer, the American League's Cy Young Award winner in two of the past three seasons, signed a lucrative three-year contract Wednesday with the Baltimore Orioles.

Contract terms were not announced, but Palmer certainly received a substantial boost over his estimated $135,000 salary of 1975.

Other Baseball

James "Lou" Gorman, No. 2 man in the Kansas City Royals organization, apparently will become general manager of Seattle's new American League baseball franchise, the Seattle Times said.

Whitey Ford, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, will be honored by the Boys' Athletic League as New York City's greatest native-born baseball player. Other native New Yorkers previously honored with this award include football star Sid Luckman and boxer Sugar Ray Robinson.

Bobby Bonds will be out of action for the New York Yankees for the start of the American League season with a broken finger.

The Atlanta Braves obtained first baseman Terry Crowley from the Reds for pitcher Mike Thompson and asked waivers on pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom. Pitcher Buzz Capra was put on the disabled list.

The New York Yankees asked waivers on 16-year veteran Tommy Davis for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The Chicago White Sox optioned outfielders Morris Nettles and Alan Bannister, players obtained in the winter trade sending Bill Melton to the Angels and Jim Kaat to the Phillies.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's seven-day deadline for the AL to present a formula for returning baseball to Washington, D.C., will be reached Thursday — with no solution in sight.

The Celveland Indians acquired pitcher Harry Parker from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for pitcher Roric Harrison.

The Philadelphia Phillies sold pitcher Wayne Simpson to Salt Lake City for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Hockey

Officials were investigating a complaint that the defunct Denver Spurs of the WHA left town last year without contributing $1,800 from a benefit game to the March of Dimes.

Billings, Mont., police had to use mace and nightsticks Wednesday to break up a brawl involving players and fans at a southwest hockey league game between the Butte Copper Kings and the Billings Blazers.

Basketball

Marvin Adams, assistant basketball coach at Kansas State for the past three years, has been named basketball coach at Arkansas State.

Darrell Griffith, recently named the No. 1 prep player in the nation by Parade Magazine, says he may turn pro if the money is right, but he indicated it would take a $1.5 million offer to make him turn pro. He is the only high school player invited to the U.S. Olympic team tryouts.

Other Sports

Clifford Roberts, master of the Masters since its inception in 1933, resigned as chairman of one of golf's premier events. He handed the job to William H. Lane of Houston.

Claudine Longet will be arraigned for the March 21 shooting death of "Spider" Sabich. The minimum charge she will face is criminally negligent homicide, with a two-year prison term and a $5,000 fine possible.

Homers Aid Pirate Win

By The Associated Press

Manny Sanguillen and Willie Stargell each homered to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday, closing out the exhibition baseball season for both teams.

Dave Parker's two-run single helped the Pirates to a 3-0 lead in the first inning off losing pitcher Rick Camp, who also allowed a solo homer by Sanguillen in the second and a two-run shot by Stargell in the fourth.

Richie Hebner had a pair of run-scoring singles for Pittsburgh and finished spring training with 19 hits in 38 times at bat. Atlanta's Earl Williams hit a homer in the second after a single by Tom Paciorek off winning pitcher Larry Demery.

Elsewhere, the New York Yankees beat the New York Mets 5-4 in 10 innings, the Detroit Tigers stopped the Boston Red Sox 3-2, the Chicago White Sox turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2, the Chicago Cubs whipped the Cleveland Indians 2-1, the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the San Francisco Giants 5-4, the Minnesota Twins routed the Houston Astros 10-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat their Spokane farm team 7-5. A doubleheader between Kansas City and Montreal was rained out.

The Yankees scored two runs in the last of the 10th inning, one on an outfield error and another on Chris Chambliss' RBI single, to beat the Mets. The Mets had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning on Jerry Grote's home run.

Alex Johnson drove in two runs with a ninth-inning double, then scored the game-winner on Aurelio Rodriguez' sacrifice fly as Detroit beat Boston. Buckey Dent's two-run omer and Buddy Bradford's two-run single in the fifth inning boosted the Chicago White Sox over St. Louis.

Geoff Zahn spaced five hits over six innings to help the Chicago Cubs defeat Cleveland. Rick Monday and Bill Madlock drove in runs during a two-run uprising in the Chicago third.

Henry Cruz drove home two runs with a sixth-inning triple, leading Los Angeles past San Francisco. Butch Wynegar drove in three runs to trigger Minnesota past Houston. Astro starter Joe Niekro struck out five batters in the first inning, but catcher Cliff Johnson committed five passed balls that led to two Minnesota runs.

Gorman Thomas and Pedro Garcia collected two hits apiece and Bobby Darwin smacked a 450-foot homer as Milwaukee beat Spokane.

In night exhibition baseball, the Oakland A's played the San Diego Padres, the California Angels met the University of Southern California and the Texas Rangers took on the University of Texas.

Twin Bills Set Today

Because of heavy rains that postponed the game Wednesday, Nebraska's baseball team will host Wayne State in a doubleheader at 2 p.m. Thursday on the Husker diamond.

Wesleyan also will make up a rain out of Wednesday's doubleheader at UNO. The twin bill has been rescheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in Omaha.

The Cornhuskers are 8-13, while Wayne is 6-8.

Leading the Husker pitching staff are senior Boyd Batenhorst and junior Steve McManaman. Batenhorst is undefeated with a 3-0 mark and an earned run average of 1.77. McManaman has a 1.13 ERA with an 0-1 overall mark.

Following the Wayne State twin bill, Nebraska will host Morningside in a doubleheader Saturday at 2 p.m. on the Husker diamond.

Connors Out Of Tourney

HOUSTON (UPI) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors withdrew from the $64,000 River Oaks Tennis Tournament Wednesday and No. 2 seed Eddie Dibbs advanced to the second round with a 6-7, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Alan Stone.

Connors, who was entered in his second World Championship Tennis event this year, became ill with the flu and told tournament officials he would not be ready to play Thursday.

Afternoon rains Wednesday allowed only one singles match to be played, but that one was a thriller.

Dibbs lost the first set to Stone by a 7-5 count in a tiebreaker but then surged back in a steady drizzle to win the next two sets and joined five other players in the quarterfinal round.

Holdrege's Means Criticizes NSAA Cutback Criticism

Prep Panorama

By Randy York

Describing himself as one who has benefitted from athletics, Holdrege's Arden Means reacted to proposed athletic program cutbacks before Friday's Nebraska School Activities Association Representative Assembly.

Means, past president and board member for the Holdrege Public Schools, said recent columns criticizing those proposed cutbacks must be "an intrusion into the Hallowed Halls of Administrative Heaven."

He reminds administrators that "the school board is the body that sets policies — no one else' The function of the superintendent is to see these policies are carried out "

According to Means, "any member of the Representative Assembly should first give the proposals to all school boards and, in return, receive a directive from the boards concerning what programs they want and how they want them carried out."

Means maintains "getting hung up because of girls sports and lack of facilities is a loser's attitude. It's also stupid. It is just as important for girls to compete and learn the lessons that sports have to teach as it is for boys."

The Holdrege dentist refers to Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes to capsulize his viewpoint. "Without competition," Hayes said, "there wouldn't be civilization."

Means believes "it would be wise to refresh administrators' memories of the lessons that competitive athletics teaches that you don't learn in chemistry, English or bookkeeping classes."

His list includes "integrity, courage, learning to love people, respect, unselfishness, prayer, cooperation, thrill of victory, depths of defeat, endurance to achieve, learning that losing isn't everything, but quitting is and positive goal-setting "

Means says he's constantly bedeviled by such newspaper headlines as "$16 million to Angola" in a bribe to win over a tiny country's leaders. "Yet here we sit complaining that we can't build new facilities to further programs to help expand our children's educational growth because it raises the mill levy and taxes."

That observation leads Means into his challenge: "How about you administrators and your Representative Assembly finding out from your school board, the taxpayers' representative, where it wants their money spent? Those taxes are deductible before we send money to Angola or Afghanistan

"As a school board member and taxpayer, I want an input into my school's policies," says Means "I'd rather spend my tax money in my own district and the state of Nebraska before I send it to Inner Somewhere

"I want our kids to have an expanded program with more opportunity, not less to compete," he adds. "I don't want a crybaby administration voting for less. Let Outer Anywhere have the leftovers. Let our kids have the cream."

Means ends his response with these thoughts

"Success is won by uncommon people willing to do the things that common people are not willing to do Instead of the Representative Assembly folding and being common, let's suck in our guts and get the programs we need and quit denying our kids and the truth

"And to all board members, let's be board members with courage and conviction and purpose and keep our main concern with what's best for our kids, not what we are unwilling to do

"Too many board members are full of saddle sores from riding the superintendents' fences or suffering from blood poisoning by rubber stamping administrators' policies which are voting control of their schools down the drain "

Nebraskan Uses $300 BB Gun For Shooting

Indianapolis (AP) — Who in the world would buy a $300 BB gun? About a million Germans and an increasing number of Americans, says a two-time Olympic gold medal winner.

Actually, the game is called precision air rifle shooting and while it's good for kids, it's not kid's stuff.

Gary Anderson, a soft-spoken minister-legislator from Axtell, Neb., came to town to promote the sport at the annual meeting of the National Rifle Association which ended Tuesday.

Anderson, 36, won Olympic gold in 1964 and 1968 in the 300-meter free-style rifle event while he was a student in divinity school. That contest is no longer a part of the Olympic program, a casualty an overall cutback in number of events. He currently holds the National High Power Rifle Championship.

Anderson said he lived in West Germany in 1969 and attended a number of their air rifle competitions.

"They have what they call prize shoots," he said. "You go to a small town, maybe with a couple of thousand people, and they'll have 5,000 competitors — all from within a radius of 50 miles They might have as much as $25,000 worth of prizes.

"During the shoot at the Oktoberfest, they might have 25,000 shooters," he said.

Anderson, who is running for his second term in the Nebraska Unicameral as a Democrat, said the Germans began shooting the precision arms in competition after World War II when they were forbidden to own firearms.

"They have a history of competitive shooting that goes back to 1400-1500," he said. "They had to have something to shoot."

The precision air rifles cost between $275 and $400 and are made in West Germany. They fire a .177-caliber lead pellet at 550 feet a second — about half the velocity of the .22-caliber bullets used in other shooting.

An air rifle match consists of 40 shots from the standing position at a pinhead-sized target at 10 meters 33 feet. Because the pellet takes longer to leave the barrel than in a firearm, a small wiggle causes greater shot dispersion

Antinoise ordinances have severely limited the number of 50-meter ranges where .22-caliber rifles are fired and 300-meter ranges where high powered rifles are fired are practically nonexistent, he said.

A miniscule number of air rifle matches are scheduled in the United States each year — about four or five a month compared with hundreds of other rifle and pistol matches

Anderson said air rifles will be used in training for the Olympic biathlon, a shooting-skiing event of the winter olympics.

Air rifles are also being used for a reduced form of the running boar contest that will be fired at the summer olympics.

Anderson sees precision air rifles as the next logical step for the 7 million junior shooters trained in the Jaycees air gun program.

The initial cost for the weapon may be high but the pellets are much cheaper than .22 cartridges and the air guns may be used inside.

New Creighton Loop Acquires New Image

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The recent admission of Indiana State and Creighton to the far-flung Missouri Valley Conference provides the 70-year-old loop "with a new look of extreme credibility in basketball," Commissioner Mickey Holmes said Wednesday.

Both were admitted less than a month ago to make it a nine-member conference based at Tulsa, Okla.

"We will have real balance in basketball," Holmes told a news conference. "In another year we'll play a 16-game, double round-robin schedule."

The MVC completes its basketball season with an all-league tourney, with the winner advancing to the NCAA championship.

Indiana State will not compete in MVC basketball until the 1977-78 season, but Holmes indicated the Sycamores could compete in next year's league tourney if they were willing to give up a possible NCAA at-large berth or participation in the National Invitation Tournament.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Lots Goin' On

For the outdoor sportspeople, many things are happening these days as the temperature rises, rains dampen the soil and interest begins boiling for all those outdoor happenings to follow.

Mushroom hunters had best keep on their toes. The elements are making things appetizing for the morel eaters. Creek bottoms, gullies, riverways, almost any place shaded, moist and luke warm will harbor some sort of mushroom crop.

Be wary of the "brands" you are about to take home for consumption. Unless you know what you're doing when it comes to mushrooming, stay with the sponge-type, or better yet, buy yourself one of the good books out on mushrooms, then consult one of the local experts at the University of Nebraska extension office or agriculture department. If they can't help you, they'll know someone who can.

Dog field trials are in full swing. Nearly every weekend will find a dog trial in progress on the Branched Oak or Wagon Train dog trial areas. Branched Oak is one of the top dog trialing areas in the country, and regularly hosts many of the top individual dogs in the nation as well.

One of the "biggie" trials in the area is coming up April 30, May 1 and 2. The Nebraska Dog and Hunt Club's 35th annual AKC Licensed Field Trial will be held on the club grounds west of Highway 77 (going north out of Lincoln) just before you reach the Interstate.

Camp Workshop

Spring is also time for thoughts of camping. Tents start popping up in many backyards at this time of year as tenters air out their mobile houses for another season.

The American Camping Assn. Nebraska Section, is also prepared to help young adults get into this outdoor scene. The association will host a Spring Campcraft Workshop April 23 to 25 at Camp Calvin Crest near Fremont.

The camp will help youngsters, ages 16 and older, develop outdoor skills in toolcraft, ropecraft, gear and shelter, health and safety, map and compass reading, campsite selection, food and firecraft. Interested parties should write: Campcrafters Workshop, American Camping Assn., 1248 So. 10th St., Omaha 68108.

Lincoln area fishermen are also finding out spring is an excellent time to hit the ole fishing hole. Lincolnite Curly Pearson lately has found the Louisville sandpits amiable. He caught bass weighing five pounds, 10 ounces and another at 3¼ pounds.

Crappie fisherman at Pawnee Lake made a killing Sunday evening off the dam facing. A couple of youngsters even had a contest. The winner caught 52. The loser only had 48. The winner also won the award for being the faster hook baiter.

These spring rains have made it ideal for the nightcrawler fishermen. It's a good time to stock up on bait for the summer to come. All it takes is a container with worm bedding, a flashlight, quick hands, a steady pull and someplace cool to keep crawlers you've caught. At the going rates of 65 to 85 cents per dozen, it's worth an evening or two for the frequent fisherman.

Mistake Noted

I'd also like to note a mistake in the Sunday Journal and Star story concerning the National Audubon Society meeting in Kearney over the weekend. Lincoln's Ann Ruesch made a comment concerning a study of the Platte River islands, made in 1967. The study was made by the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), not the Bureau of Reclamation as stated in the story.

York Slated For Ruskin

Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star prep editor Randy York is the featured speaker Thursday night at the annual Ruskin High School Athletic Banquet

York also is scheduled to speak May 1 at Tri County, May 3 at Hebron, May 6 at Waterloo for the Omaha Metro Basketball Coaches Association annual banquet and May 11 at the annual North Platte Sportscasters awards.

Platte River 'Important'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The importance of the Platte River as a natural habitat was emphasized Wednesday by a National Audubon Society official.

Charles Callison, executive vice president, said the river area provides survival for the sandhill cranes and offers some of the nation's best duck hunting.

He said these natural attractions would vanish if the river is altered by dams or other means.

He reminds administrators that "the school board is the body that sets policies — no one else! The function of the superintendent is to see these policies are carried out."

According to Means, "any member of the Representative Assembly should first give the proposals to all school boards and, in return, receive a directive from the boards concerning what programs they want and how they want them carried out."

Means maintains "getting hung up because of girls sports and lack of facilities is a loser's attitude. It's also stupid. It is just as important for girls to compete and learn the lessons that sports have to teach as it is for boys."

The Holdrege dentist refers to Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes to capsulize his viewpoint. "Without competition," Hayes said, "there wouldn't be civilization."

Means believes "it would be wise to refresh administrators' memories of the lessons that competitive athletics teaches that you don't learn in chemistry, English or bookkeeping classes."

His list includes "integrity, courage, learning to love people, respect, unselfishness, prayer, cooperation, thrill of victory, depths of defeat, endurance to achieve, learning that losing isn't everything, but quitting is and positive goal-setting."

Means says he's constantly bedeviled by such newspaper headlines as "$16 million to Angola" in a bribe to win over a tiny country's leaders. "Yet here we sit complaining that we can't build new facilities to further programs to help expand our children's educational growth because it raises the mill levy and taxes."

That observation leads Means into his challenge: "How about you administrators and your Representative Assembly finding out from your school board, the taxpayers' representative, where it wants their money spent? Those taxes are deductible before we send money to Angola or Afghanistan.

"As a school board member and taxpayer, I want an input into my school's policies," says Means. "I'd rather spend my tax money in my own district and the state of Nebraska before I send it to Inner Somewhere.

"I want our kids to have an expanded program with more opportunity, not less to compete," he adds. "I don't want a crybaby administration voting for less. Let Outer Anywhere have the leftovers. Let our kids have the cream."

Means ends his response with these thoughts:

"Success is won by uncommon people willing to do the things that common people are not willing to do. Instead of the Representative Assembly folding and being common, let's suck in our guts and get the programs we need and quit denying our kids and the truth.

"And to all board members, let's be board members with courage and conviction and purpose and keep our main concern with what's best for our kids, not what we are unwilling to do.

"Too many board members are full of saddle sores from riding the superintendents' fences or suffering from blood poisoning by rubber stamping administrators' policies which are voting control of their schools down the drain."

Nebraskan Uses $300 BB Gun For Shooting

Indianapolis (AP) — Who in the world would buy a $300 BB gun? About a million Germans and an increasing number of Americans, says a two-time Olympic gold medal winner.

Actually, the game is called precision air rifle shooting and while it's good for kids, it's not kid's stuff.

Gary Anderson, a soft-spoken minister-legislator from Axtell, Neb., came to town to promote the sport at the annual meeting of the National Rifle Association which ended Tuesday.

Anderson, 36, won Olympic gold in 1964 and 1968 in the 300-meter free-style rifle event while he was a student in divinity school. That contest is no longer a part of the Olympic program, a casualty an overall cutback in number of events. He currently holds the National High Power Rifle Championship.

Anderson said he lived in West Germany in 1969 and attended a number of their air rifle competitions.

"They have what they call prize shoots," he said. "You go to a small town, maybe with a couple of thousand people, and they'll have 5,000 competitors — all from within a radius of 50 miles. They might have as much as $25,000 worth of prizes.

"During the shoot at the Oktoberfest, they might have 25,000 shooters," he said.

Anderson, who is running for his second term in the Nebraska Unicameral as a Democrat, said the Germans began shooting the precision arms in competition after World War II when they were forbidden to own firearms.

"They have a history of competitive shooting that goes back to 1400-1500," he said. "They had to have something to shoot."

The precision air rifles cost between $275 and $400 and are made in West Germany. They fire a .177-caliber lead pellet at 550 feet a second — about half the velocity of the .22-caliber bullets used in other shooting.

An air rifle match consists of 40 shots from the standing position at a pinhead-sized target at 10 meters 33 feet. Because the pellet takes longer to leave the barrel than in a firearm, a small wiggle causes greater shot dispersion.

Antinoise ordinances have severely limited the number of 50-meter ranges where .22-caliber rifles are fired and 300-meter ranges where high powered rifles are fired are practically nonexistent, he said.

A miniscule number of air rifle matches are scheduled in the United States each year — about four or five a month compared with hundreds of other rifle and pistol matches.

Anderson said air rifles will be used in training for the Olympic biathlon, a shooting-skiing event of the winter olympics.

Air rifles are also being used for a reduced form of the running boar contest that will be fired at the summer olympics.

Anderson sees precision air rifles as the next logical step for the 7 million junior shooters trained in the Jaycees air gun program.

The initial cost for the weapon may be high but the pellets are much cheaper than .22 cartridges and the air guns may be used inside.

New Creighton Loop Acquires New Image

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The recent admission of Indiana State and Creighton to the far-flung Missouri Valley Conference provides the 70-year-old loop "with a new look of extreme credibility in basketball," Commissioner Mickey Holmes said Wednesday.

Both were admitted less than a month ago to make it a nine-member conference based at Tulsa, Okla.

"We will have real balance in basketball," Holmes told a news conference. "In another year we'll play a 16-game, double round-robin schedule."

The MVC completes its basketball season with an all-league tourney, with the winner advancing to the NCAA championship.

Indiana State will not compete in MVC basketball until the 1977-78 season, but Holmes indicated the Sycamores could compete in next year's league tourney if they were willing to give up a possible NCAA at-large berth or participation in the National Invitation Tournament.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Lots Goin' On

For the outdoor sportspeople, many things are happening these days as the temperature rises, rains dampen the soil and interest begins boiling for all those outdoor happenings to follow.

Mushroom hunters had best keep on their toes. The elements are making things appetizing for the morel eaters. Creek bottoms, gullies, riverways, almost any place shaded, moist and luke warm will harbor some sort of mushroom crop.

Be wary of the "brands" you are about to take home for consumption. Unless you know what you're doing when it comes to mushrooming, stay with the sponge-type, or better yet, buy yourself one of the good books out on mushrooms, then consult one of the local experts at the University of Nebraska extension office or agriculture department. If they can't help you, they'll know someone who can.

Dog field trials are in full swing. Nearly every weekend will find a dog trial in progress on the Branched Oak or Wagon Train dog trial areas. Branched Oak is one of the top dog trialing areas in the country, and regularly hosts many of the top individual dogs in the nation as well.

One of the "biggie" trials in the area is coming up April 30, May 1 and 2. The Nebraska Dog and Hunt Club's 35th annual AKC Licensed Field Trial will be held on the club grounds west of Highway 77 (going north out of Lincoln) just before you reach the Interstate.

Camp Workshop

Spring is also time for thoughts of camping. Tents start popping up in many backyards at this time of year as tenters air out their mobile houses for another season.

The American Camping Assn. Nebraska Section, is also prepared to help young adults get into this outdoor scene. The association will host a Spring Campcraft Workshop April 23 to 25 at Camp Calvin Crest near Fremont.

The camp will help youngsters, ages 16 and older, develop outdoor skills in toolcraft, ropecraft, gear and shelter, health and safety, map and compass reading, campsite selection, food and firecraft. Interested parties should write: Campcrafters Workshop, American Camping Assn., 1248 So. 10th St., Omaha 68108.

Lincoln area fishermen are also finding out spring is an excellent time to hit the ole fishing hole. Lincolnite Curly Pearson lately has found the Louisville sandpits amiable. He caught bass weighing five pounds, 10 ounces and another at 3¼ pounds.

Crappie fisherman at Pawnee Lake made a killing Sunday evening off the dam facing. A couple of youngsters even had a contest. The winner caught 52. The loser only had 48. The winner also won the award for being the faster hook baiter.

These spring rains have made it ideal for the nightcrawler fishermen. It's a good time to stock up on bait for the summer to come. All it takes is a container with worm bedding, a flashlight, quick hands, a steady pull and someplace cool to keep crawlers you've caught. At the going rates of 65 to 85 cents per dozen, it's worth an evening or two for the frequent fisherman.

Mistake Noted

I'd also like to note a mistake in the Sunday Journal and Star story concerning the National Audubon Society meeting in Kearney over the weekend. Lincoln's Ann Ruesch made a comment concerning a study of the Platte River islands, made in 1967. The study was made by the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), not the Bureau of Reclamation as stated in the story.

York Slated For Ruskin

Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star prep editor Randy York is the featured speaker Thursday night at the annual Ruskin High School Athletic Banquet.

York also is scheduled to speak May 1 at Tri County, May 3 at Hebron, May 6 at Waterloo for the Omaha Metro Basketball Coaches Association annual banquet and May 11 at the annual North Platte Sportscasters awards.

Platte River 'Important'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The importance of the Platte River as a natural habitat was emphasized Wednesday by a National Audubon Society official.

Charles Callison, executive vice president, said the river area provides survival for the sandhill cranes and offers some of the nation's best duck hunting.

He said these natural attractions would vanish if the river is altered by dams or other means.

Big Game Seasons Scheduled

Regulations for Nebraska deer and antelope seasons were enacted by Game and Parks Commissioners at their regular monthly meeting in Lincoln

Deer permit applications will be accepted April 10 through May 10 from Nebraskans who did not have a firearm deer permit last year or from antelope hunters who did not have a firearm antelope permit the last two years A reglation change that rifle antelope hunters should be aware of is a three-year waiting period between permits for pronghorns beginning in 1977

The regulations include a special late deer season on the DeSoto National Wildlife Refuge that will be open only to hunters using muzzle-loaders The Commissioners authorized 100 DeSoto permits good for deer of either sex Dates for the DeSoto season have not been set

LINCOLN TELEPHONE
EMERGENCY
Please Understand

On Monday night, March 29, a severe sleet storm downed more than 2,500 telephone poles, interrupting service to more than 7,000 telephone customers in a 16-county area covering over 6,400 square miles served by the Lincoln Telephone Company Most affected were the Lincoln - Seward - Hastings - Geneva - Hebron - York - Fairbury and Superior areas To restore telephone service in those areas suffering the most extensive damage. Lincoln Telephone has transferred manpower trucks and equipment from less affected areas As a result, you will experience a delay in getting a new telephone installed However, there should be no unusual delays in getting your telephone repaired.

We are sorry for this inconvenience and ask for your cooperation and understanding until service in the above areas can be restored The emergency crews are working as many hours a day as possible and will continue to do so until the damaged poles and lines are repaired and service is restored

Adequate forces will be maintained in all communities to handle critical service problems We appreciate your cooperation

Bargen Fired, To Seek Hearing

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Four weeks and one day after he had first heard about it, Milford basketball coach Bob Bargen received his official notice in the mail Wednesday morning — he was being fired

'I m going to fight it right down to the end Bargen said "I have five days to file a written request for a hearing with the board of education It s as good as done

The letter informed Bargen that his contract may be amended by deletion of his basketball duties The alleged grounds for such amendment, it read, 'are the allegations of unprofessional conduct in that allegedly off-colored stories were told in foul and indecent language to, at and around members of the high school basketball team

Bargen had been told a month earlier that he was being fired, but no charges were brought forward

'They are offering my teaching contract and my assistant track coaching job back,' Bargen said 'but taking away the basketball job

A month ago when principal Dale Hall informed Bargen of the school board s decision 'it was like a ton of bricks hit me right in the head Bargen said

'I had been recommended for reappointment by the superintendent (Larry Sims) and the principal, ' Bargen said "I think it s a railroad job They stalled for a month to come up with something Bargen admitted his first emotions were mixed towards his firing 'I thought Why fight to stay somewhere they don't want me? Then I thought Who is it that doesn t want me? Going through a hearing, I'll find out "

Bargen reasoned if he bowed out of his basketball job gracefully, "I'd be going against everything I've tried to teach to my team in three years — I'd be giving up

"If our players had quit when we were 14 points down going into the fourth quarter against Friend this season, we'd never have won the conference championship," he observed

Bargen's three-year record at Milford is 44-22 The Eagles won the Southern Nebraska Conference Tournament in February It is the same conference which produced state Class C champion Geneva

The Milford situation was made even more explosive this week with the announced resignation of Sims, who served as the school's superintendent for eight years

Larry Westrum, president of the Milford Board of Education, said Bargen's problem is mostly a matter of professional conduct on the court We're concerned with the effect it has on the kids

"We think Bob has the potential to be an outstanding classroom teacher," added Westrum "Relieving him of his basketball duties should help him concentrate more in that direction "

Westrum said "the thing that burns me up in education all over the country is that a coach s expertise is looked at more on the field or on the court than his or her expertise in the classroom This is the wrong priority "

According to Westrum, "the state of this town is already heated up on this issue Most people have chosen sides A hearing is the fairest way to resolve it "

Superintendent Sims told Bargen he had written a letter to the school board in January, asking if there were any problems with any teacher's contracts

He told me the board indicated at that time there were no problems," Bargen said

Bargen also has been told that 39 players in the Milford basketball program were questioned on the alleged off-color storytelling incident

Three players have indicated they will testify at the hearing

Bargen Fired, To Seek Hearing

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Four weeks and one day after he had first heard about it, Milford basketball coach Bob Bargen received his official notice in the mail Wednesday morning — he was being fired.

"I'm going to fight it right down to the end," Bargen said. "I have five days to file a written request for a hearing with the board of education. It's as good as done."

The letter informed Bargen that his contract may be amended by deletion of his basketball duties. The alleged grounds for such amendment, it read, "are the allegations of unprofessional conduct in that allegedly off-colored stories were told in foul and indecent language to, at and around members of the high school basketball team."

Bargen had been told a month earlier that he was being fired, but no charges were brought forward.

"They are offering my teaching contract and my assistant track coaching job back," Bargen said, "but taking away the basketball job."

A month ago, when principal Dale Hall informed Bargen of the school board's decision, "it was like a ton of bricks hit me right in the head," Bargen said.

"I had been recommended for reappointment by the superintendent (Larry Sims) and the principal," Bargen said. "I think it's a railroad job. They stalled for a month to come up with something."

Bargen admitted his first emotions were mixed towards his firing. "I thought: Why fight to stay somewhere they don't want me? Then I thought: Who is it that doesn't want me? Going through a hearing, I'll find out."

Bargen reasoned if he bowed out of his basketball job gracefully, "I'd be going against everything I've tried to teach to my team in three years — I'd be giving up.

"If our players had quit when we were 14 points down going into the fourth quarter against Friend this season, we'd never have won the conference championship," he observed.

Bargen's three-year record at Milford is 44-22. The Eagles won the Southern Nebraska Conference Tournament in February. It is the same conference which produced state Class C champion Geneva.

The Milford situation was made even more explosive this week with the announced resignation of Sims, who served as the school's superintendent for eight years.

Larry Westrum, president of the Milford Board of Education, said Bargen's problem "is mostly a matter of professional conduct on the court. We're concerned with the effect it has on the kids.

"We think Bob has the potential to be an outstanding classroom teacher," added Westrum. "Relieving him of his basketball duties should help him concentrate more in that direction."

Westrum said "the thing that burns me up in education all over the country is that a coach's expertise is looked at more on the field or on the court than his or her expertise in the classroom. This is the wrong priority."

According to Westrum, "the state of this town is already heated up on this issue. Most people have chosen sides. A hearing is the fairest way to resolve it."

Superintendent Sims told Bargen he had written a letter to the school board in January, asking if there were any problems with any teacher's contracts.

"He told me the board indicated at that time there were no problems," Bargen said.

Bargen also has been told that 39 players in the Milford basketball program were questioned on the alleged off-color storytelling incident.

Three players have indicated they will testify at the hearing.

York Coach Regains Job After Hearing

York — Dale Neal, York's head basketball coach who had been told his coaching contract would not be renewed for next season, has retained his position following a hearing with the York Board of Education.

A group of sophomore and junior players and their parents initiated a petition, which led to a school board decision to strip Neal of his basketball duties.

He filed a written request for a hearing and after a nine-hour meeting Monday, the York Board of Education reversed itself with a vote of 4-1 in favor of Neal keeping his basketball position.

Twenty-one testified against Neal at the hearing, charging his discipline in basketball was too harsh and his communication was weak.

A Nebraska State Education Association attorney represented Neal at the hearing, which started at 3 p.m. and concluded at 1 a.m. after a 1½ hour executive session for the board decision.

He was granted a one-year conditional teaching and coaching contract for the 1976-77 school year.

Record Number Enters Trap Shoot

Doniphan — A record number of high school and collegiate trap shooters from Nebraska and surrounding states have entered the Sixth Annual Cornhusker Trapshoot, according to Ron Hoffmann, information officer for the Game and Parks Commission.

The Cornhusker Invitational Trapshoot is sanctioned by the Nebraska School Activities Association and is sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The shoot was originated in 1970 by Dave Wells, a shooting enthusiast from Norfolks. Wells has built the shoot to its present magnitude and is currently the shoot coordinator in charge of the two day program.

According to Wells, a couple of firsts were established with this year's shoot. The event has been expanded to nation-wide status, making it the first national trapshoot for high school teams. The event is also the first in U.S history to combine both high school and college gunners in national competition. In recognition for the importance of high school and collegiate sport shooting, Governor James J. Exon has proclaimed the weekend of April 10 and 11 as Trapshooting Weekend in Nebraska.

The event provides the primary competition for the Game and Parks Commission's sport shooting program. The Commission introduced the program in 1974 as an extracurricular life sport activity. The shooting program encompasses trapshooting and smallbore rifle marksmanship, and nearly 40 Nebraska high schools are currently involved in trapshooting alone.

Track Meet On Sunday

An all-comers and masters track meet has been slated for Sunday at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Running events will begin at 3 p.m. and field events will start at 2 p.m. There will be an entry fee. The meet is sponsored by the Lincoln Track Club.

Big Game Seasons Scheduled

Regulations for Nebraska deer and antelope seasons were enacted by Game and Parks Commissioners at their regular monthly meeting in Lincoln.

Deer permit applications will be accepted April 10 through May 10 from Nebraskans who did not have a firearm deer permit last year, or from antelope hunters who did not have a firearm antelope permit the last two years. A reglation change that rifle antelope hunters should be aware of is a three-year waiting period between permits for pronghorns beginning in 1977.

The regulations include a special late deer season on the DeSoto National Wildlife Refuge that will be open only to hunters using muzzle-loaders. The Commissioners authorized 100 DeSoto permits good for deer of either sex. Dates for the DeSoto season have not been set.

LINCOLN TELEPHONE
EMERGENCY

Please Understand

On Monday night, March 29, a severe sleet storm downed more than 2,500 telephone poles, interrupting service to more than 7,000 telephone customers in a 16-county area covering over 6,400 square miles served by the Lincoln Telephone Company. Most affected were the Lincoln - Seward - Hastings - Geneva - Hebron - York - Fairbury and Superior areas. To restore telephone service in those areas suffering the most extensive damage, Lincoln Telephone has transferred manpower trucks and equipment from less affected areas. As a result, you will experience a delay in getting a new telephone installed. However, there should be no unusual delays in getting your telephone repaired.

We are sorry for this inconvenience and ask for your cooperation and understanding until service in the above areas can be restored. The emergency crews are working as many hours a day as possible and will continue to do so until the damaged poles and lines are repaired and service is restored.

Adequate forces will be maintained in all communities to handle critical service problems. We appreciate your cooperation.

Illinois Girl Charged After Chase On I-80

Grand Island (UPI) — Three felony charges were filed Wednesday in Hall County court against an East Moline, Ill., girl in connection with a high-speed chase in the wrong lane of Interstate 80 near Wood River.

Jackie Humphrey, 14, was charged with unlawful flight to avoid arrest, possession of a stolen vehicle and willful reckless driving. Authorities said she was the driver of a car reported stolen from Carmel's Island, Ill.

Two other teenage East Moline area girls in the car during the 12- to 15-mile chase were released to their parents, along with a fourth girl who had been left at an interstate restaurant at the Giltner interchange.

Shelton Police Chief George Svoboda used a shotgun to blow out two tires of the car near a roadblock set up about four miles west of the Wood River interchange.

Hruska Says Fricke Charge 'Misleading'

Washington (AP) — Nebraska Sen. Roman Hruska says charges that the Nebraska congressional delegation had shown little support for a proposed Gasohol program were misleading and inaccurate.

The charges were made by Charles Fricke of Lincoln in a recent report to the Nebraska Agricultural Products Industrial Utilization Committee on a trip he and Dr. William Scheller made to Washington.

Hruska wrote Fricke that the charges were "misleading and grossly inaccurate" and resulted in a "false impression of my interest in the program."

"Your ill-conceived comment about the Nebraska congressional delegation is not a helpful way to solicit support for the Gasohol program in Nebraska," Hruska wrote.

Scheller, technical adviser to the Nebraska Gasohol Committee, later disagreed with Fricke, saying the delegation has "a continuing record of providing assistance to the program."

Fricke also reported that Hruska was not available to see him and Scheller and that the senator's secretaries did not know of the appointment.

But the senator said he did not have a formal appointment with Fricke but that Fricke had only informed him by form letter that he would be in Washington.

Ex-Lincoln Man Develops $400 Talking Calculator

A former Lincoln resident now teaching at the University of California at Berkeley has invented a talking calculator for the blind.

Berkeley physics professor Forrest S. Mozer, a 1947 Lincoln High graduate and 1951 University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate, has marketed a $400 talking calculator which figures answers, then reports them verbally.

Mozer originally intended the device for use by a blind graduate student.

The student, Kent Cullers, did much of the work to develop the calculator. Two other Berkeley staff members and Mozer's high school age son Michael helped with the project.

LT&T Says Revenue Up $3.4 Million

Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. operating revenues rose from $45,151,977 in 1974 to $48,562,358 in 1975, the company has reported.

Primary earnings per common share of stock increased from $3.38 to $3.81.

Operating expenses rose from $28,151,378 in 1974 to $31,831,711 in 1975.

The number of telephones in service increased from 265,134 to 277,764. The value of property and equipment rose from $170,403,897 to $194,183,077.

Nineteen buried rural projects were completed in 1975, representing 521 miles of cable worth $1,872,399.

Installation began recently on Lincoln's second electronically controlled telephone central office at 15th and M Sts. The equipment will provide 17,000 additional telephone lines around certain sections of Lincoln.

Completion of the project will take over a year, with initial service expected in December 1976, to Lincoln telephone numbers beginning with the 474 and 475 prefixes.

Stock Mart Registers Sharp Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took its sharpest drop in nearly a month Wednesday in a midafternoon wave of profit taking.

Analysts said traders seemed to have grown impatient and edgy over the Dow Jones industrial average's repeated failures to break clear of the 1,000 level in the past several weeks.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 3-1 margin in the daily tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow had built up an early 7-point gain on Tuesday to about the 1,010 level, only to fall back and finish the day with a 2.44 loss.

The declines extended into almost every corner of the market except for the gold stocks, which turned in a mixed showing.

Farm Futures Hit By Selling

Chicago (AP) — Most farm futures prices fell on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday with late selling trimming early gains.

Wheat prices fluctuated throughout the day. Prices dropped at the opening, feeling the effects of rain in the Wheat Belt and a denial by the Agriculture Department of a new grain deal with Russia.

Speculative and commission house buying boosted prices by midsession. But by the close, commission house and speculative selling set in and wheat prices were as much as 4 cents a bushel lower.

Butcher Hog Prices Rise

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Butcher hog prices made moderate gains on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday, while cattle were sharply higher, topping the $40.00 mark, and another record top was set in the sheep pens.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 4,000 head, and the trade on barrows and gilts was called active.

The trade on the estimated 3,500 cattle on offer was described as fairly active.

Steer prices moved 50-cents to $1.00 higher, while heifers pushed 25-to-75 cents higher. Cows trended 50-cents to $1.00 lower, instances $1.50 off.

There were about 600 sheep on offer.

Hruska Says Fricke Charge 'Misleading'

Washington (AP) — Nebraska Sen. Roman Hruska says charges that the Nebraska congressional delegation had shown little support for a proposed Gasohol program were misleading and inaccurate.

The charges were made by Charles Fricke of Lincoln in a recent report to the Nebraska Agricultural Products Industrial Utilization Committee on a trip he and Dr. William Scheller made to Washington.

Hruska wrote Fricke that the charges were "misleading and grossly inaccurate" and resulted in a "false impression of my interest in the program."

"Your ill-conceived comment about the Nebraska congressional delegation is not a helpful way to solicit support for the Gasohol program in Nebraska," Hruska wrote.

Scheller, technical adviser to the Nebraska Gasohol Committee, later disagreed with Fricke, saying the delegation has "a continuing record of providing assistance to the program."

Fricke also reported that Hruska was not available to see him and Scheller and that the senator's secretaries did not know of the appointment.

But the senator said he did not have a formal appointment with Fricke but that Fricke had only informed him by form letter that he would be in Washington.

LT&T Says Revenue Up $3.4 Million

Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. operating revenues rose from $45,151,977 in 1974 to $48,562,358 in 1975, the company has reported.

Primary earnings per common share of stock increased from $3.38 to $3.81.

Operating expenses rose from $28,151,378 in 1974 to $31,831,711 in 1975.

The number of telephones in service increased from 265,134 to 277,764. The value of property and equipment rose from $170,403,897 to $194,183,077.

Nineteen buried rural projects were completed in 1975, representing 521 miles of cable worth $1,872,399.

Installation began recently on Lincoln's second electronically controlled telephone central office at 15th and M Sts. The equipment will provide 17,000 additional telephone lines around certain sections of Lincoln.

Completion of the project will take over a year, with initial service expected in December 1976, to Lincoln telephone numbers beginning with the 474 and 475 prefixes.

Ex-Lincoln Man Develops $400 Talking Calculator

A former Lincoln resident now teaching at the University of California at Berkeley has invented a talking calculator for the blind.

Berkeley physics professor Forrest S. Mozer, a 1947 Lincoln High graduate and 1951 University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate, has marketed a $400 talking calculator which figures answers, then reports them verbally.

Mozer originally intended the device for use by a blind graduate student.

The student, Kent Cullers, did much of the work to develop the calculator. Two other Berkeley staff members and Mozer's high school age son Michael helped with the project.

Stock Mart Registers Sharp Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took its sharpest drop in nearly a month Wednesday in a midafternoon wave of profit taking.

Analysts said traders seemed to have grown impatient and edgy over the Dow Jones industrial average's repeated failures to break clear of the 1,000 level in the past several weeks.

The Dow average of 30 blue chip stocks dropped 15.43 to 986.22, its largest loss since it posted a 15.67-point decline on March 12.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 3-1 margin in the daily tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow had built up an early 7-point gain on Tuesday to about the 1,010 level, only to fall back and finish the day with a 2.44 loss.

The declines extended into almost every corner of the market except for the gold stocks, which turned in a mixed showing.

Farm Futures Hit By Selling

Chicago (AP) — Most farm futures prices fell on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday with late selling trimming early gains.

Wheat prices fluctuated throughout the day. Prices dropped at the opening, feeling the effects of rain in the Wheat Belt and a denial by the Agriculture Department of a new grain deal with Russia.

Speculative and commission house buying boosted prices by midsession. But by the close, commission house and speculative selling set in and wheat prices were as much as 4 cents a bushel lower.

Cigarette Flavor Decoded.

Scientists isolate tobacco ingredients most essential to taste –'Enriched Flavor' packed into new low tar MERIT.

By "cracking" cigarette smoke down into separate ingredients, researchers at Philip Morris have discovered very special "key" flavor units that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.'

The cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' is MERIT. At 9 mg., one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Yet MERIT actually packs the taste of cigarettes having more tar.

Up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Verify Taste

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results were conclusive. Against five current leading low tar brands, 9 mg. MERIT was reported by a significant majority of smokers to deliver more taste.*

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

Repeat: deliver more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported MERIT MENTHOL delivered as much—or more—taste.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL.

Both packed with 'Enriched Flavor.'

Both lower in tar than 98% of all cigarettes sold today.

Both turning in extraordinary flavor performances against higher tar competition.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette MERIT.

Mary Margaret McBride Dies

WEST SHOKAN, N Y (AP) — Mary Margaret McBride, the undisputed First Lady of radio for more than 20 years, died at her home in the Catskill Mountains here Wednesday after a long illness She was 76

From 1934 to 1954, Miss McBride was the window of the world for millions of women who were seeking escape from the boredom of housework She was often referred to as the "female Arthur Godfrey"

She interviewed famous people of the day, including presidents, movie stars, writers and just plain people

She was born on a farm outside Paris, Mo At the age of 5, she said she decided she wanted to "be another Charles Dickens"

She began a newspaper career in Missouri at age 15 and then moved to Cleveland and later to New York City

Her first story in the now-defunct New York Evening Mail appeared on Page 3 In interviews later, she said she then realized it was a good story but not a great one and she knew she would never be the great writer she wanted to be

Her first job in radio paid $25 a week and called for her to act the part of a kindly old grandmother that had a flock of grandchildren she could tell stories about

Mary Margaret McBride AP

At the time, Miss McBride was in her 30s

The fiction finally started to bother her, and she told her listeners the truth She often recalled that she "killed" grandma right on the air

The sponsors of the program were furious then but softened their position when fan mail favoring her started to pour in several days later

Her listeners were so devoted that on her 10th anniversary in radio they packed Madison Square Garden for a party in her honor On her 15th anniversary, fans filled Yankee Stadium

On her 20th anniversary, shortly after the death of her longtime friend and manager, Stella Karn, she signed off the air However, she later made a number of appearances on other radio shows and did a 13-week stunt on television

Miss McBride kept busy during retirement with various projects, including a daily newspaper column for The Associated Press She also had a three-day-a-week radio program that she did from the living room of her 200-year-old Catskill Mountain home until several months ago

Mary Margaret McBride Dies

WEST SHOKAN, N.Y. (AP) — Mary Margaret McBride, the undisputed First Lady of radio for more than 20 years, died at her home in the Catskill Mountains here Wednesday after a long illness. She was 76.

From 1934 to 1954, Miss McBride was the window of the world for millions of women who were seeking escape from the boredom of housework. She was often referred to as the "female Arthur Godfrey."

She interviewed famous people of the day, including presidents, movie stars, writers and just plain people.

She was born on a farm outside Paris, Mo. At the age of 5, she said she decided she wanted to "be another Charles Dickens."

She began a newspaper career in Missouri at age 15 and then moved to Cleveland and later to New York City.

Her first story in the now-defunct New York Evening Mail appeared on Page 3. In interviews later, she said she then realized it was a good story but not a great one and she knew she would never be the great writer she wanted to be.

Her first job in radio paid $25 a week and called for her to act the part of a kindly old grandmother that had a flock of grandchildren she could tell stories about.

At the time, Miss McBride was in her 30s.

The fiction finally started to bother her, and she told her listeners the truth. She often recalled that she "killed" grandma right on the air.

The sponsors of the program were furious then but softened their position when fan mail favoring her started to pour in several days later.

Her listeners were so devoted that on her 10th anniversary in radio they packed Madison Square Garden for a party in her honor. On her 15th anniversary, fans filled Yankee Stadium.

On her 20th anniversary, shortly after the death of her longtime friend and manager, Stella Karn, she signed off the air. However, she later made a number of appearances on other radio shows and did a 13-week stint on television.

Miss McBride kept busy during retirement with various projects, including a daily newspaper column for The Associated Press. She also had a three-day-a-week radio program that she did from the living room of her 200-year-old Catskill Mountain home until several months ago.

Sculptor Reports Artists Competed On I-80 Project

Sidney (AP) — A sculptor commissioned to do this community's "Confluence of Roads" says there was "tremendous" competition among American artists to create Nebraska's Interstate 80 Bicentennial sculptures

Hans Van De Bovenkamp, 38, of Tillison, N Y, said he was aware of controversy involving the I-80 sculptures, which some Nebraskans said would not be representative of the state's history "But quite often controversy is beneficial," he said

Van De Bovenkamp predicted the sculptures "will become a major tourist attraction in the state of Nebraska "

His 30-foot aluminum contemporary "ode to transportation" will be built in New York and transported to Sidney "I just found out that several wagon trains passed through the community during the 1800s," lending historical significance to the work, he said

All 10 sculptures commissioned by the Nebraska I-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Corp. are to be dedicated July 4

Tourism Has Deficit

Bonn West Germany (UPI) — West German tourists spent $8 05 billion abroad last year, according to Martin Gruener parliamentary state secretary in the economics ministry West German proceeds from foreign tourists were worth only $2 72 billion Gruener said He said he expected a 2 to 3% increase in the number of foreign tourists visiting West Germany in 1976

March Liquor Revenue Rises Over Last Year

The Nebraska Liquor Control Commission said Wednesday liquor revenues for March totaled $785,547, up from $668,823 for the same month a year ago

The cumulative total for the year stood at $2,443,969 through the end of March, compared with $2,315,965 last year

The breakdown for the month included alcohol, spirits and wine taxes, $426,124, beer taxes, $274,240, license fees, $69,875, registration fees $1,820 shipper permits, $8,200, miscellaneous revenue, $5,286

Sculptor Reports Artists Competed On I-80 Project

Sidney (AP) — A sculptor commissioned to do this community's "Confluence of Roads" says there was "tremendous" competition among American artists to create Nebraska's Interstate 80 Bicentennial sculptures.

Hans Van De Bovenkamp, 38, of Tillison, N.Y., said he was aware of controversy involving the I-80 sculptures, which some Nebraskans said would not be representative of the state's history. "But quite often controversy is beneficial," he said.

Van De Bovenkamp predicted the sculptures "will become a major tourist attraction in the state of Nebraska."

His 30-foot aluminum contemporary "ode to transportation" will be built in New York and transported to Sidney. "I just found out that several wagon trains passed through the community during the 1800s," lending historical significance to the work, he said.

All 10 sculptures commissioned by the Nebraska I-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Corp. are to be dedicated July 4.

Tourism Has Deficit

Bonn, West Germany (UPI) — West German tourists spent $8.05 billion abroad last year, according to Martin Gruener, parliamentary state secretary in the economics ministry. West German proceeds from foreign tourists were worth only $2.72 billion, Gruener said. He said he expected a 2 to 3% increase in the number of foreign tourists visiting West Germany in 1976.

March Liquor Revenue Rises Over Last Year

The Nebraska Liquor Control Commission said Wednesday liquor revenues for March totaled $785,547, up from $668,823 for the same month a year ago.

The cumulative total for the year stood at $2,443,969 through the end of March, compared with $2,315,965 last year.

The breakdown for the month included: alcohol, spirits and wine taxes, $426,124; beer taxes, $274,240; license fees, $69,875; registration fees, $1,820; shipper permits, $8,200; miscellaneous revenue, $5,286.

French Visit Planned

Paris (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will pay an official visit to France on April 27-29, government sources said.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION SCHOOL DISTRICT NUMBER 107 OF LANCASTER COUNTY, NEBRASKA

Public notice is hereby given to the qualified and registered electors and voters of School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska, that a special election has been called and will be held in said District on the 20th day of April 1976, at which time there shall be submitted to the qualified electors of said District the following proposition:

> "Shall School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska issue the negotiable bonds of said District in the principal amount of not to exceed Fifty Thousand ($50,000.00) Dollars for the purpose of paying for additions to the existing schoolhouse, and furnishing the necessary furniture and apparatus for the same for said District, said bonds to be dated at the time of their issuance, to become due and payable on such dates as may be fixed by the School Board at the time of their issuance, but in a period not exceeding twenty years from their date, and said bonds to bear interest from date of issuance at such rate or rates to be determined by the School Board, payable annually the first year and semiannually thereafter; provided, however, any or all of said bonds shall be redeemable at the option of the District at any time on or after five years from date of their issuance; and
> "Shall the District cause to be levied and collected annually a special levy of taxes against all the taxable property in said District sufficient in rate and amount to pay the principal of and interest on said bonds as such principal and interest become due and payable?"
>
> ☐ YES (FOR SAID BONDS AND TAX)
> ☐ NO (AGAINST SAID BONDS AND TAX)

Electors voting in favor of the proposition shall mark an "X" in the square opposite the words "YES (FOR SAID BONDS AND TAX)" following said proposition, and electors voting against said proposition shall mark an "X" in the square opposite the words "NO (AGAINST SAID BONDS AND TAX)" following the proposition.

The polls will be open continuously from 8:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. on said date, and the polling place shall be the schoolhouse in School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska, located about two miles west of the city limits of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, on U.S. Highway, No. 6, on the south side of said Highway 6, on Lot 5, of Irregular Tracks of the Northeast Quarter (NE ¼) of Section 25, Township 10 North, Range 5, East of the 6th P.M., Lancaster County, Nebraska, consisting of 1.14 acres, more or less, on the 20th day of April, 1976, as designated by the Election Commissioner of Lancaster County, Nebraska.

Absent and disabled and confined voters' ballots may be obtained from the Election Commissioner's Office of Lancaster County, Nebraska, as provided by law.

BY ORDER OF THE SCHOOL BOARD OF SAID DISTRICT this 13th day of March, 1976.

1. MINI-ACREAGE:
Located in South Lincoln. Sub-divide a beautiful corner lot off, or leave a little room for your kids to play. Nearly 1300 sq. ft., with new plumbing, wiring, storage shed and more.
2. A REAL BUY:
On this like new 1971 Bella Vista mobile home. Nearly all the furniture stays and it's all at a price you can afford. A great way to get started.
3. MINUTES AWAY:
Get out of the city and into the nice small community of Eagle. This ranch plan features 3 bedrooms up and 2 more in the walkout lower level. With a price in the lower 30s you've got to see this one!
4. COMMERCIALLY ZONED:
4 acre tracts like this one are hard to find, and this one has lots to offer; a 40 X 60 heated and central air conditioned warehouse, double wide modular home and detached garage and the Waverly bus stops right in front.
5. LANDONS:
That's the name of Lincolns newest & most exciting sub-division. Lots of lots to choose from and with your plans or ours that dream home you've talked about can become a reality.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, April 8, 1976

Pisces youngsters are poetic, shy sensitive The Pisces boy or girl needs plenty of encouragement The child of this zodiacal sign has extrasensory perception is subject to the moods of others and is very difficult to deceive The children of Pisces should be permitted to make decisions to arrive at their own conclusions These are persons of quality — integrity is more than a word it is a way of life The imagination of this child is enormous — it can be a source of creative wonder

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21 April 19) Many good things occur — some persons try to throw a wet blanket over encouraging news, events Key is to maintain balance to heed your own counsel Love is very much in picture too You re due for more recognition — and money

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can expand now — make new contacts stress originality and independence Permit creative urge to find outlet Means go beyond what appears to be a barrier Your feelings can be synthesized articulated Know it and act like you are aware of it

GEMINI (May 21 June 20) Follow through on ideas — share knowledge Learn by teaching — deal with Aquarian who is willing to take a chance What seemed an obstacle could boomerang in your favor Partner or mate will come over to your point of view

CANCER (June 21 July 22) Refuse to sell yourself short Get money's worth — and count your change Emphasis on wish fulfillment possessions, the purchases you make and the sales, too Gemini Sagittarius could be in picture Member of opposite sex may ask too much, too soon Be mature!

LEO (July 23-Aug 22 Lunar cycle is high — get going on new project One at top will aid even though current indications point in opposite direction Be aware of basics Do homework Someone may want to surprise or embarrass you Remain on your toes You are going to win

VIRGO (Aug 23 Sept 22) Be analytical — take nothing for granted Look behind scenes Open lines of communication Be aware of property values You may be asked to represent special group club Be confident especially if appearing before media

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22) Make room for charming person who may not agree with all of your views Be diplomatic Friends may have dispute Don t get drawn in middle Be neutral without giving up all of your fire conviction Key is to understand that loved ones do not always know their own minds — or hearts

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) You need additional material support Key is to avoid promising more than can be delivered Pisces Virgo persons figure prominently Accent is on standing in community advancement ambition legal ramifications

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 Dec 21) Be willing to accept responsibility — in business and love You get nothing for nothing Special communications could cause change of plans and this does include travel Capricorn Libra and Cancer are likely to be in picture

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 Jan 19) Enthusiasm returns Personal magnetism surfaces You have wider appeal You gain better chance for distribution display Aries Libra could be in picture Accent on money as it affects partnership marriage You are able to complete important project

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18 Be aware of security long range goals Don t rush, push or force a deadline Time is on your side Those who seem to oppose you can have change of heart Emphasis on co-operative efforts, legal ties and emotional commitments

PISCES Feb 19 March 20) Follow through on teaching procedures Means others are apt to be attentive, receptive Aquarian could play significant role Give attention to work, health services ways to improve basic techniques Neighbor or relative provides impetus for profitable project

IF APRIL 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are able to organize to create to instill confidence in others to run a business and to transform losing proposition into something that pays dividends You also are insistent on having your own way you are intense temperamental and passionate

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, April 8, 1976

Pisces youngsters are poetic, shy, sensitive. The Pisces boy or girl needs plenty of encouragement. The child of this zodiacal sign has extrasensory perception, is subject to the moods of others and is very difficult to deceive. The children of Pisces should be permitted to make decisions, to arrive at their own conclusions. These are persons of quality — integrity is more than a word; it is a way of life. The imagination of this child is enormous — it can be a source of creative wonder.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Many "good things" occur — some persons try to throw a wet blanket over encouraging news, events. Key is to maintain balance, to heed your own counsel. Love is very much in picture, too. You're due for more recognition — and money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can expand now — make new contacts, stress originality and independence. Permit creative urge to find outlet. Means go beyond what appears to be a barrier. Your feelings can be synthesized, articulated. Know it and act like you are aware of it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow through on ideas — share knowledge. Learn by teaching — deal with Aquarian who is willing to "take a chance." What seemed an obstacle could boomerang in your favor. Partner or mate will come over to your point of view.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Refuse to sell yourself short. Get money's worth — and count your change. Emphasis on wish fulfillment, possessions, the purchases you make and the sales, too. Gemini, Sagittarius could be in picture. Member of opposite sex may ask too much, too soon. Be mature!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle is high — get going on new project. One "at top" will aid, even though current indications point in opposite direction. Be aware of basics. Do homework. Someone may want to surprise or embarrass you. Remain on your toes. You are going to win.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be analytical — take nothing for granted. Look behind scenes. Open lines of communication. Be aware of property values. You may be asked to represent special group, club. Be confident, especially if appearing before media.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make room for charming person who may not agree with all of your views. Be diplomatic. Friends may have dispute. Don't get drawn in middle. Be neutral without giving up all of your fire, conviction. Key is to understand that loved ones do not always know their own minds — or hearts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You need additional material, support. Key is to avoid promising more than can be delivered. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. Accent is on standing in community, advancement, ambition, legal ramifications.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be willing to accept responsibility — in business and love. You get nothing for nothing. Special communications could cause change of plans and this does include travel. Capricorn, Libra and Cancer are likely to be in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Enthusiasm returns. Personal magnetism surfaces. You have wider appeal. You gain better chance for distribution, display. Aries, Libra could be in picture. Accent on money as it affects partnership, marriage. You are able to complete important project.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be aware of security, long-range goals. Don't rush, push or force a deadline. Time is on your side. Those who seem to oppose you can have change of heart. Emphasis on co-operative efforts, legal ties and emotional commitments.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Follow through on teaching procedures. Means others are apt to be attentive, receptive. Aquarian could play significant role. Give attention to work, health, services, ways to improve basic techniques. Neighbor or relative provides impetus for profitable project.

IF APRIL 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are able to organize, to create, to instill confidence in others, to run a business and to transform losing proposition into something that pays dividends. You also are insistent on having your own way; you are intense, temperamental and passionate.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
